21 FOUND GUILTY OF LIQUOR CONSPIRACY

ROXIE LONG JURY, OUT 34 HOURS, FREES 2

Twenty Have Already Pleaded Guilty in Liquor Plot

Twenty-one men accused of being involved in a huge liquor conspiracy with ramifications in Washington County and Steubenville, O., were found guilty in Federal Court today.

Two others were acquitted by the jury, which deliberated 34 hours and returned a sealed verdict when court convened this morning before Judge F. P. Schoonmaker.

One of the jurors, James Welsh, of Bellevue, was not in court, having been stricken ill during the deliberations, and remained at the hotel where the jury was locked up Saturday afternoon.

"ROXIE" WITNESS

The principal testimony against the defendants was that of Rocco DiPippa, alias Roxie Long, described by defense counsel as "the Al Capone of Allegheny County." DiPippa was not in court when the verdict was returned. Among those convicted were his brother-in-law, Harry Kelly, and a nephew, Angelo Vernacchio.

The others were:

Patsy Meloragno and Mike Mamus, grocers and corn sugar dealers; Arco Triano, identified by DiPippa as part owner of a still; J. G. Cancilla and J. Diznoff, hardware dealers; Leo Huber, James Totino, Edward Albert and Joe Totino, drivers; Caesar Kelly, Harry Abbott, A. Shehab and Louis Magrino, workers; A. Kirshebaum, barrel and corn sugar dealer; Phillip Yoritch, cooperage business; Morris Lustig and Frank Lustig, father and son, and Frank Mallinger and Saul Mallinger, father and son, bottle dealers.

TWO ACQUITTED

James P. Mortorella, beverage dealer, and Joseph Kaplan were acquitted.

The maximum penalty under the law is two years in the penitentiary and a $10,000 fine. Defense attorneys announced they would file a motion for a new trial. The case was prosecuted by Assistant United States Attorneys Raymond D. Evans and Robert McKinley.

DiPippa and 19 others pleaded guilty to the conspiracy charges. The cases of two defendants, Carmon Bosco and Sam Malatovsky, were continued because of their illness.

Kline-Succop Ruling Seen in Court Term

In the Superior Court session, opening in Philadelphia today, an opinion is expected in the cases of Mayor Charles H. Kline and his "deposed" supplies director, Bertram L. Succop.

The opinion in the Kline case will be on the state's appeal against the setting aside of the one count on which the Mayor was found guilty. The other will be the appeal of Succop for a new trial.

Regis, 5, 105 Mifflin street, Whitaker, who with his mother was struck today when a Whitaker bus skidded on a corner, struck a fence. Both were taken to Homestead Hospital. Regis with an injured head.

ROXIE'S WIFE DEFIES GANG

A dare to any who might seek revenge for Rocco DiPippa's testimony as a government witness in the prosecution of 23 persons accused of liquor conspiracy, 21 of whom were convicted in Federal Court, was uttered today by DiPippa's wife as she left the Federal Building after the verdict.

"Come on with your bullets, . . . I'm not afraid of your bullets."

It was not known whether she was replying to a threat. She left the building at once. She had been a constant spectator in court, but DiPippa, also known as Roxie Long, had been absent since he left the witness stand after testifying for more than four days concerning the alleged conspiracy.

Di Pippa's whereabouts remained a secret of government attorneys. They said they could explain his absence, but did not choose to do so.

Police Win Fight on Furloughs

PARIS BALKS AT STRAIGHT PAYMENT

By FREDERIC K. ABBOTT
International News Service.

PARIS, Dec. 12.—France will not make unconditional payment of the war debt installment due on December 15.

Before a packed Chamber of Deputies, Premier Edouard Herriot made this flat announcement tonight, while insisting in the same breath he would "honor France's signature."

Bitterly attacking the United States for "lifting up Europe's hopes" by proposing the reparations moratorium and then demanding unconditional war debt payment, Herriot charged that the American government was putting her own interests before the "world solidarity" for which she has persistently pleaded.

CRITICIZES U. S.

Herriot cried:

"When European interests are at stake, the United States has admonished us to 'get together for the good of world solidarity.' When the United States herself is concerned, she turns a deaf ear to her own plea.

"What solution exists?

"I shall not accept consignment, nor a blocked account nor payment in bonds.

"I had hoped for recourse to arbitration in accordance with a treaty of 1914 which was ratified in 1928, but I had more faith in moral argumenis than juridicial ones.

"I shall not accept unconditional payment nor will I refuse to honor France's signature.

"Unfortunately, we are obliged to deal with the President of the United States, who neither can nor wishes to take his responsibilities."

Thunderous applause greeted Herriot when he terminated his speech with this moving appeal:

"If I have not moved you, I only hope you will realize that

Actor Reaches 70, Ends Life With Gun

PORT CHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Harry O. Fisher, for many years known on the vaudeville stage as Harry Hayes, celebrated his 70th birthday yesterday and today committed suicide by shooting.

The aged vaudevillian, who retired from the stage 14 years ago after a nervous breakdown, took his life in the home of his son with whom he had been living.

Borah Asks U. S. Pay Mexico for Killings

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Payment of $30,000 to Mexico as "an act of grace" for the killing of Emilio Cortez Rubio, relative of former President Rubio, and Manuel Gomez, near Ardmore, Okla., last year, was proposed in a resolution today by Chairman Borah, of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

A New Judge on the Job

JUDGE RALPH H. SMITH MR. AND MRS. HARRY SMITH

Governor-appointed Judge Smith, the county's youngest judge, as he received his parents' congratulations today in his chambers after he had been sworn in by Judge Macfarlane. His wife, son and friends attended the ceremony. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

PHONE SAVES 3 FROM FLAMES

A telephone call today enabled a mother, her son and daughter to escape from their smoke-filled apartment while flames threatened to sweep the building.

Mrs. Katherine Desmond, 44; Catherine, 24, and Tom, 21, were asleep when fire broke out in the two-story frame building at Fifth avenue and Brady street, Soho.

A sister, Mrs. William Murray, who lives across the street, telephoned the Desmonds. The ring roused Catherine. Tom then helped his mother and sister to climb through a rear window to an adjoining roof.

Three firemen suffered minor injuries. Capt. James McGuire and August Ray were cut on the hand and Lewis Schramm stepped on a nail.

Three alarms were sent in for the blaze which firemen said appeared to have started in the basement of Klein's department store and spread to Swimmer's adjoining bakery shop, a two-story frame building. F. Grandi's store and a frame structure in the rear of Swimmer's also were damaged.

Amy Johnson Beats Schedule on Flight

MOSSAMEDES, Portuguese West Africa, Dec. 12.—(INS.)—After five hours' rest, Amy Johnson Mollison, attempting a record-breaking return flight from Cape Town to England, forged ahead today toward Duala, French Cameroon, 1,300 miles away. She was well ahead of her schedule.

The aviatrix smashed the London-to-Cape-Town record last month in four days six hours and 56 minutes. The former record was held by her husband, Capt. James A. Mollison.

OATH AS JUDGE GIVEN SMITH

Judge Ralph H. Smith, newest and youngest member of Allegheny County's Common Pleas Court, today was ready to preside at his first case, following taking the oath of office at a formal ceremony this morning in the assignment room of Common Pleas Court.

Before the entire Common Pleas, County, and Orphans Court benches, a host of personal friends, members of the Allegheny County Bar Association and his family, Smith was given the oath by President Judge James R. Macfarlane. Gov. Gifford Pinchot's commission appointing Smith to the bench was presented to the court by Chief Clerk Robert J. Moore.

Following the oath, Judge Macfarlane ordered a 15-minute recess to permit congratulations to the new jurist.

Judge Smith, 34, is one of the few men to become an Allegheny County jurist so young. The late Judge Edwin H. Stowe is remembered as one who also ascended the bench in his 30's. He served four terms of 10 years each and was defeated for a fifth term by Judge Macfarlane.

Explosion Rips Hill As Trolley Goes By

CHARLEROI, Pa., Dec. 12.—(AP.)—A few minutes after an interurban street car from Pittsburgh passed Glendenning stop in Monongahela today, a dynamite explosion ripped out the side of a hill near the Eldora road.

There was no damage. Cause of the blast has not been determined.

Convicted Banker Paroled 5 Years

Faber Beiter, 42, cashier of the defunct First National Bank of Beaverdale, Cambria County, who was convicted of misapplication of bank funds, was placed on probation for five years in Federal Court today.

The former cashier promised to make full restitution of $3,085 and pay the costs.

WOMEN DRYS CLASH WITH ESTEP

Witness Fighting Beer Return Grilled by Pittsburgher

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—A clash between women dry leaders and Congressman Harry A. Estep, of Pittsburgh, today featured the opening of the fight by prohibition advocates against the Collier light wines and beer bill before the House Ways and Means Committee.

The verbal battle ensued when Mrs. Henry W. Peabody, of New York, chairman of the Women's National Committee for Law Enforcement, objected as Estep grilled Mrs. A. Haines Lippincott, of Camden, N. J., during her testimony in behalf of the Volstead law.

Mrs. Lippincott, chairman of the Women's Organization for New Jersey, predicted dire results if the wets succeed. A comely, determined woman, she listed the gains and losses of prohibition. Among gains she cited an increase of $779,000,000 in automobile and gasoline taxes, 350,000 gasoline stations, increase of 28 per cent in milk drunk, 400,000 new homes built since 1920 and a 25 per cent increase in wages from 1918 to 1930 and decrease of 30 per cent in deaths of babies under one year.

APPLAUDED BY DRYS

The drys broke into applause as she finished her statement.

Estep asked:

"Do you attribute all the increase in savings deposits to prohibition?"

Mrs. Lippincott retorted:

"It is a very significant thing that the savings of the people have gone into banks instead of "liquor."

Estep said:

"You have said that prohibition brought prosperity but now that we are in a depression you do not admit that prosperity was due to other causes."

"Well, the savings bank officials tell me that people are still putting money in the banks."

Estep asked:

"Don't you give any credit to science for a lower death rate of children?"

"Oh, yes."

She referred to distress in foreign countries and said:

BAN ON APPLAUSE

She explained, after Estep pressed questions as to the effect of prohibition on prosperity, that the drys qualified their statements. They do not attribute all former prosperity to prohibition, she said.

Mrs. Peabody, in charge of the witnesses, sought to stop Estep's inquiry. Estep declared:

Mrs. Lippincott said:

MUSICIAN DEAD, SIFT ROMANCES

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—A half a dozen different theories arose to confound the police today as they sought to learn who took Edwin O. Schildhauer, 28-year-old Austin High School bandmaster, on a typical gangland ride—a ride that ended in his death with two bullets in his brain.

Stories of an infatuated school teacher, a petty politician and the latter's girl friend were among those that entered the scope of the investigation.

Schildhauer's widow, Frances, 24, who saw the men abduct her husband three doors from his own home Saturday night, told police a woman school teacher made unwelcome advances toward her husband four years ago.

The investigators agreed there was no reason to suspect the infatuated teacher, but reasoned there was a possibility that some other girl might have figured in the case, and planned to question school authorities about Schildhauer's relations with his pupils.

PLEA BEFORE COUNCIL HEEDED

Budget Slashers Won't Assure Against Pay Slash

City Council will not use police furloughs as a means of cutting Mayor Charles H. Kline's $25,000,000 budget, President John S. Herron today told a committee from Lodge No. 1, Fraternal Order of Police. But Herron made no mention of the possibility of salary cuts for the Police Bureau.

John B. Fogarty, president of the police lodge and spokesman for the committee, previously had asked Council not to cut salaries or personnel of the department and petitioned against furloughs.

Emphasizing the fact that the police are making no threats and that "there will be no police strike," Fogarty declared that any change in the department's personnel should be to increase its numbers, "because police duties have multiplied recently owing to conditions."

VOLUNTARY FURLOUGHS

Herron's reply to Fogarty's remarks was:

"No furlough amendment will be attached to this budget. Whatever your salary is, you'll get it."

Councilman P. J. McArdle then pointed out that more policemen were maintained on the payroll this year than Council provided for in the 1932 budget. It was brought out during the discussion resulting from this charge that Council had cut 162 jobs out of the police bureau's personnel and that the men were kept on until each of them had drawn $1,000 salary that wasn't provided for in the budget.

This $162,000 was made possible by the voluntary furloughs taken by the other policemen, it was explained. The Police Committee admitted this was a fact.

Fogarty, in his address to Council, attacked the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board and the Pittsburgh Building Owners and Managers' Association, both of which have asked for drastic cuts in the Police Department. Fogarty declared that these groups "cannot reflect the sentiment of the people."

Girl and Boy Drown In Auto at Ferry

OWENSBORO, Ky., Dec. 12.—(AP.)—A young woman and a boy were drowned and two men narrowly escaped death in the icy waters of the Ohio River here early today as their automobile plunged down the ferry runway and toppled into the water.

Louise Stephens, 19, of Owensboro, was unable to escape from the car, and the boy, Herbert Helmrich, Jr., 14, missed a rope thrown at him by a ferry hand.

Senator Coyne Ill In Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—State Senator James J. Coyne, of Pittsburgh, was reported "very much improved" at a Philadelphia hotel today, where he has been suffering from a cold. He arrived in Philadelphia a few days ago with a sore throat.

Senator Coyne was expected home today from Philadelphia, his wife said. The cold was regarded as trivial.

Sing Sing Prisoners Saw Way to Liberty

OSSINING, N. Y., Dec. 12.—(INS.)—Sawing through the bars of their cells in the new Sing Sing prison, John Egan, 33, and William Sutton, 30, both long-term prisoners, tied up a trusty and escaped over the prison wall today.

Both prisoners were committed from New York City.

Indian Aviator Faces Yacht Death Quiz

LONG BEACH, Cal., Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Edward de Larm, Yaqui Indian aviator, who two years ago became the hero of a South American republic for his daring exploits, today found himself playing a leading role in the investigation of the mysterious slaying of Capt. Walter Wanderwell, globe-trotting adventurer.

De Larm, friend of William James (Curly) Guy, who is held as a suspect in the slaying, was booked at the City Jail today as a "material witness" after hours of questioning.

Through De Larm, Guy had hoped to establish his alibi that he could not have been present in Long Beach last Monday night when Wanderwell was shot to death in the darkened cabin of his around-the-world yacht Carma as it lay alongside a dock.

Formal arrest of De Larm followed by a few hours the collapse of Mrs. Aloha Wanderwell, widow of the slain adventurer, in a corridor outside the District Attorney's office here. Her collapse came after two hours of questioning concerning Guy.

Authorities said they had questioned Mrs. Wanderwell only "about Guy's past and his connection with the Wanderwells."

Spider Battling Clock To Get 'Pardon'

AKRON, O., Dec. 12.—(INS.)—Little suspecting that it soon will be "pardoned" from its "prison," a common black spider continued its unrelenting battle against time today with renewed fervor.

The insect appeared to have absorbed new energy from some unknown source as it made its hourly attempts to entwine the hour and minute hands of a family alarm clock in its web.

For 23 days the spider has been flitting about the face of the clock under the crystal. Each hour as the hands meet, the spider spins its web around them. But the clock still continues to win the hourly escapades.

Only five more days remain before the battle will be halted by the Humane Society, which has branded the imprisonment of the spider as "cruel." G. W. Dilley, agent for the society, extended the insect's "sentence" until next Saturday when it will be liberated.

Meantime, the fight will be allowed to continue so that science might observe the unusual affair, according to Dilley's edict.

The spider, which has not had food since it slipped into the clock face, has been growing steadily by breaking down and absorbing its own tissues, according to Dr. W. C. Kraatz, Akron University biologist.

Dr. Kraatz expressed the opinion that the spider might hibernate in the clock all winter without food.

MINE LABOR ABUSE INQUIRY THREATENED BY PINCHOT

MEN CHEATED, GOVERNOR CHARGES

Many Held in Bondage By Unjust Debts, He Declares

HARRISBURG, Dec. 12—Asserting investigations made at his direction had disclosed conditions in many mines in the state bituminous coal fields "are abominable and growing worse," Gov. Gifford Pinchot said today he intends to ask the Legislature to investigate, if the abuses continue.

He said a few producers are doing their best to treat their employes fairly, but that they are in a small minority. He said he would make public the names of companies maltreating their men, in addition to asking the investigation, if conditions were not corrected.

CITES ABUSES

He said:

"Many coal companies are deliberately making matters worse. They continue to cut wages. They practice abuses which grind the miners to a level of poverty and despair never before known in the industry.

"In addition these companies are making excessive deductions for rent, light, fuel and explosives from pay envelopes already dreadfully low. They charge much higher than average prices for food and clothing in their so-called company stores. Employes living in company houses pay as much as 10 cents per kilowat hour for electricity that costs the company not more than 1 cent per kilowat hour. The miners pay several times as much for house coal as the company is able to sell it for to railroads and other big users.

PAY NOTHING

"To make my point clear, here is an actual pay envelope which is not exceptional:

First half of September, 1932 (12 days)—

1 Wagons Coal	@ .77	$5.39
6 Wagons Coal	@ .74	5.06
2 Wagons Coal	@ .47	.94
3 Wagons Coal (10 @ .21)		.63

DEDUCTIONS

Lamps	.60
Coal
House Lights	.50

"For 12 days work this man got exactly nothing to help him keep himself or his family except rent—nothing at all for food or clothing. That tells the story.

"The net result of such treatment is that the miner and his family have neither money, purchasing power, nor credit. Whether or not they like their job or the treatment they get, they have little chance for employment elsewhere.

MANY IN DEBT

"In many cases the workman is so deep in debt to the company or the store that he couldn't move his household goods from the company-owned house even if he found another job.

"In certain mines, miners who actually have a cash balance due on pay day are forced to take store scrip or due bills instead of money. Many times the 'I O U' of an already bankrupt coal company is not worth the paper it is written on.

"I am also told that at some mines the miners are being either shortweighted or 'docked' at the tipple as much as one-third the total weight of coal loaded. That is robbery of the worst type.

"At many mines working half-time or better not a few miners and their families are unable to pay their own way and are thrown on county and state relief, adding a burden, unfair and unjust, to the already overburdened taxpayer."

Retired, Steel Man, 75, Shoots Himself

ATTACKS CITY ASSESSMENT

The Royal Yorke apartments, Bigelow boulevard and Center avenue, which cost $561,000 to build on a $15,000 site, is assessed at $900,000, according to Attorney H. M. Irons, who today filed an appeal from a city assessment with Judge W. H. McNaugher in Common Pleas Court.

Irons said the original assessment was $1,300,000, but, after an appeal to the Board of City Assessors, the amount was cut to $900,000. The appeal to court today asks that the present assessment be cut in half.

Irons said the assessment was made against construction costs at the peak prices of 1928-29 and not according to present day prices. John McSorley is president of the apartment house corporation.

URGES SENATE PROBE VET ROUT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Immediate investigation by a Senate committee of eviction of the bonus marchers from Washington was proposed today by Senator McKellar (Dem.), of Tenn.

The committee would be directed to investigate acts of District of Columbia or federal officials "causing or planning or inciting or directing, the attack on the ex-service men and women and children temporarily in Washington in the summer of 1932."

McKellar also proposed to investigate the history of the march, the number particiating, their purpose and conduct in Washington.

Probe Girl's Death After Operation

An investigation was to be made by the Coroner today into the death of Mary Barto, 20, of Clymer, Indiana County, in West Penn Hospital yesterday from the effects of an illegal operation, according to a Morgue report.

She was near collapse when she went to the hospital Friday, according to the report, and before her death she is alleged to have implicated a physician. She had been working at Glenshaw.

SENATE REPEAL GROUP NAMED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Speeding action, the Senate Judiciary Committee at its first meeting of the session today referred all prohibition repeal legislation to a sub-committee headed by Senator Blaine (Rep.), of Wisconsin, a foe of national prohibition.

He announced the committee would get to work as soon as possible, and said he did not believe hearings would be necessary.

Others appointed to the subcommittee were Senators Borah (Rep.), of Idaho; Hebert (Rep.), of Rhode Island; Walsh (Dem.), of Montana, and Dill (Dem.), of Washington.

Jury Being Chosen In Double Murder

A jury is being selected today in the trial of James L. Williams, 40, Negro, 1901 Wylie avenue, charged with murder following the fatal shooting of Russell Palmer, 35, Negro, 1840 Rose street, and Robert Bryant, 23, Negro, 622 Naylor street, August 27, last.

The shooting took place in the apartment of Maud Wilson, 29, Negro, third floor, 1901 Wylie avenue, according to county detectives. During a quarrel, Williams shot Palmer, a former suitor of the woman, detectives allege. A bullet accidentally hit Bryant.

Jury to Try Suspect in Girl's Death Picked

A jury was being selected today to try Andrew Todd, 40, Ohio River houseboat occupant, accused of the murder of Virginia Kovacs, 9, of 806 Pennsylvania avenue, Coraopolis. The child died August 17 last, following an attack on the river bank by Kovacs, the state contends. The case is being tried before Visiting Judge Ray P. Sherwood, of York County.

3 Powers Study Secret Air Treaty

BERLIN, Dec. 12.—(INS.)—A secret tri-power air treaty between Germany, Italy and Russia was under negotiation today, according to reliable reports.

The chiefs of the Italian and Soviet air forces were reported conferring with Chancellor Von Schleicher after arriving virtually unnoticed. Neither would discuss the reported negotiations.

Steubenville Bank Re-Opening Sought

STEUBENVILLE, O., Dec. 12.—Application was filed to re-open the Union Savings Bank and Trust Company, with $455,000, a loan from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Mrs. Wilma Lavan is president. The plan has been approved by state and Federal Reserve banking officials.

RAILROADS ASK CUT CONTINUE

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Executives of the nation's railroads proposed to the brotherhoods of employes today that the 10 per cent reduction in pay be extended indefinitely past next January 31, when the agreement of last year is due to expire.

The suggestion came from W. F. Thiehoff, spokesman for the managements, at the start of their joint conference with heads of 21 shop crafts. It caused a recess less than one hour after the conference with labor heads had convened.

The proposal of the carriers would allow either side to terminate the agreement within 30 days by filing notice that it wished to proceed under the railway labor act with appointment of mediators.

COUNTY BUDGET TO KEEP FIVE PLANTS IDLE

$234,284 to Be Saved From Asphalt Division

Not one of the five county asphalt plants will be operated next year, according to announcements made today as county officials began scanning the 1933 budget estimates, which amount to $20,151,714.87. Although budget sessions are not scheduled to get under way until January 10, the budget estimates will be given close study during next few weeks in preparation for the drastic slashes the commissioners are expected to make.

The asphaltic concrete division this year had an appropriation of $258,306.90, and there is still a good sum remaining in this fund inasmuch as only three of the five plants were operated. The request for next year, as submitted by Director Ray Sprigle, of the Property and Supplies Department, amounts to only $24,182, a decrease of $234,284.90.

FIXED CHARGES

The requirement for 1933, Sprigle said, will be for maintenance of the five plants and for watchmen's salaries.

While recommending that the county let its asphalt work by contract, Sprigle today said he favored keeping some of the plants in readiness to insure getting a fair price from the contractors.

Of the entire budget estimates of $20,151,714.37, more than $13,000,000 will be needed for fixed charges for bond interest and redemption and for levies mandatory by statutory and court authority.

If the Commissioners hope to bring about any reduction in the tax rate of 8⅜ mills exclusive of 3-mill poor tax, it will be necessary to make drastic slashes in the expenditures under their direct control. It is also possible that consideration will be given to voluntary reduction in salaries for offices where the amount is set by legislature.

TAX CUT BARRIER

The principal barrier facing the Commissioners when they try to cut the present taxes is the reduction in the percentage of collection of taxes. The county has usually prepared the budget on the basis of 80 per cent in tax collections. Last year it was figured on 75 per cent and this year it is likely that the expected collection will be about 73 per cent.

A general invitation has been issued by the Commissioners to individuals and civic groups to attend the budget sessions. Chairman C. C. McGovern let it be known that the board would welcome any person having a sensible and constructive suggestion. However, he took to task persons who demand that a specified tax reduction be made without advancing a sensible plan. He declared many suggestions which come to the board are from individuals or groups that have their "own ax to grind."

LILLIAN ROTH . . QUITTING THE STAGE TO MARRY ONCE MORE

JUDGE TO WED LILLIAN ROTH

Lillian Roth, blues singer, who once was the wife of William C. Scott, youthful Pittsburgh aviator, because "he was too cute to let go by," today had been pledged to marry Municipal Court Judge Benjamin Shalleck, of New York, according to word received here by friends. They plan to marry in January.

Coupling the announcement with announcement of her retirement from the stage, Miss Roth said:

"We're very happy and we just can't keep our little secret a moment longer. Being Mrs. Shalleck will be job enough for me. I'm through with show business."

Miss Roth and Scott were married on April 11, 1931, after a whirlwind courtship. They were divorced early this year.

ning was to be heard late this afternoon in connection with the budget deliberations.

Meanwhile Council is awaiting the report of the citizens' special committee before settling down to the task of cutting $4,000,000 from the budget. This committee will report tomorrow, President Herron said.

Council has decided to set the tax millage by Thursday in order to get the tax bills out promptly by the first of the year.

City department heads thus far have offered total voluntary reductions of $1,259,740. Director Edward G. Lang heads the list with a reduction of $830,000 in the Department of Public Works, involving the elimination of 224 jobs.

Director James M. Clark, after cutting $140,000 out of the Mayor's budget, failed to furnish Council anything more in the way of economy but information. He promised, however, to be satisfied with what Council gives him.

LIBRARY TAKES CUT

Samuel Harden Church, president of Carnegie Institute, has now agreed to a budget reduction of $88,550, although he states this means a reduction of salaries and fewer employes.

Director W. R. Dunlap, of the Department of Supplies, has volunteered to eliminate two clerical positions for a saving of $3,726. These positions, investigation showed, correspond with those held by Matilda Ganley and Bert Doty, fired by the Director last year and later reinstated by the court because civil service requirements had not been complied with.

The Civil Service Commission itself has been under fire recently in Council, with Councilman M. J. Muldowney inquiring about salaries and whether the president of the commission, Dr. F. H. Frederick, has attended any meetings this year. The report of the Building Owners and Managers Association suggested cutting the salary roll of the commission to $1,800.

The Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, which last week asked Council for tax reduction, has now asked that the Bureau of Smoke Regulation be maintained. In a letter to Council signed by Thomas A. Dunn, it is contended the work of the bureau more than pays for its cost.

of Illinois, raised the point of order that applause is not permitted and Chairman Collier (Dem.), of Mississippi, admonished the drys to refrain from demonstrations.

Democratic members of Congress were freed from the party platform wet plank by Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt during his successful campaign for the presidency, Mrs. Leigh Colvin, president of the New York W. C. T. U., declared.

Mrs. Colvin cited a letter written by Gov. Roosevelt to Dr. C. F. Reisner, of New York, on September 12.

ROOSEVELT LETTER READ

The letter was read by the clerk at the suggestion of Representative Chindblom (Rep.), of Illinois. In it Gov. Roosevelt, after stating that his views on the prohibition plank were well known, added:

"Regarding the last question I might say that Democratic Senators and Congressmen are duty bound to vote in accordance with the views of their constituents regardless of their personal opinions."

Mrs. Colvin enlivened the hearing. Rivaling Representative Celler's "bottled highball" exhibit, she pulled out of a suitcase an exhibit of things she said wouldn't be sold so freely if prohibition is repealed. The exhibit included baby's shoes, coats, fruit, milk and other similar articles.

Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, president of the District of Columbia Federation of Women's Clubs and widow of the famous pure food crusader, answered the question is 2.75 per cent beer intoxicating by quoting her late husband.

She asserted that there is no question but that this form of liquor could produce intoxication.

Mrs. Jesse W. Nicholson, of Maryland, president of the National Woman's Democratic Enforcement League, said:

"Prohibition is being enforced as well as the narcotic, burglary, gambling and murder laws."

Prof. Milton Conover, economist of Yale University, read a telegram from Prof. Douglas Clyde MacIntosh, Canadian-born, who was denied American citizenship by the United States Supreme Court. The telegram said:

"As a Canadian-born Connecticut resident who desired citizenship in dry United States, I certainly hope this country will not commit the folly of repealing the Eighteenth Amendment. Since Canada abandoned prohibition, the consumption of alcohol increased 105 per cent, drunkenness increased 50 per cent, minor crimes to 150 per cent and major crimes 77 to 180 per cent."

On the absence of MacIntosh, Estep said:

"We know why Prof. MacIntosh can't be here. The Supreme Court denied him citizenship and there is no reason why we have to listen to a political argument."

RAPS "MOB" CONVENTIONS

The Republican and Democratic national conventions were indirectly assailed by Mrs. Peabody as "mob conventions" which had no power to give Congress a mandate to destroy prohibition.

Describing her organization as a clearing house for militant dry women, Mrs. Peabody said half of 20,000,000 Protestant women are banded together in prohibition bodies.

Mrs. Peabody sprang into the public eye a few years ago when she moved from Boston to Florida because the Bay State voted wet.

She assailed either 2.75 or 3.2 per cent beer and defended the Volstead definition of intoxicating liquor as anything containing over one-half of 1 per cent alcohol. She said:

"This content was established by the brewers themselves in 1862 in their defense against the soft drink trade. Let this decision stand. We have no financial or political interest. We are not here to lobby for any trade or party. Nor have we ever received funds from wet organizations or politicians. We have only one desire—to protect the Constitution."

Walker to Become Agent for Pilsener

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(Universal.)—Former Mayor James J. Walker plans to come home singing a stein song, as the American representative of Pilsener beer, if the Volstead law is modified, he has revealed in personal messages to several of his Broadway friends.

Shakespeare Quoted By Police Pleader

John B. Fogarty, president of the Fraternal Order of Police, not alone knows what an attack on policemen means, but has a fair idea of what Shakespeare wrote.

Fogarty took occasion to resent a newspaper attack on policemen with criminal records while appearing today before the budget session of City Council. City Hall is enjoying the climax which Fogarty gave to his presentiment, that a newspaper should build up a man's character. As he quoted Shakespeare for the Councilmen it went:

"They who steal my purse steals trash;

"They who steal my reputation steal everything."

When Iago so spoke to Othello, Shakespeare recorded the words thusly:

'Twas mine, 'tis his, and has been slave to thousands:
But he that filches from me my good name,
Robs me of that which not enriches him, And makes me poor indeed."

The policeman involved in the attack that Fogarty resented was a city detective forced to retire because he had a criminal record.

Student Who 'Rebuked' Cermak in Pulpit

John A. Griffiths, the earnest young Geneva College freshman who criticized Chicago's Mayor Cermak, today added another item to his crusade for prohibition—a slashing attack from the pulpit on beer.

John, who is 18, was wearing very short pants when the saloon was outlawed, but in the Fifty-second Street Evangelical Church yesterday he cited authorities of the day to show what "a degraded and immoral" den the saloon was. Asked John:

"Shall America go back to that?"

And the answer, a ringing negative. John quoted a physician as saying that beer encouraged dropsy and insanity. Furthermore, he argued that legalization of beer wouldn't bring work to even 1,000,000 people.

John went right into Mayor Cermak's home town for figures. In Chicago before prohibition there was an arrest every 15 minutes for drunkenness, one every 27 minutes for assault, he said.

It was John who wrote to Mayor Cermak a stern reprimand on the Mayor's beer-drinking in Europe. The Mayor told John not to worry so much about Chicago and to spend more time on his schoolbooks.

SLED AND AUTO INJURIES MOUNT ON SLUSHY STREETS

AGED MAN DIES IN FUELLESS DWELLING

Six Coasters Hurt; Skidding Cars Add To Toll

With one death reported from exposure, injuries from coasting and automobile accidents continued to mount today after a steady rainfall had converted the city's snow-covered streets into slushy pools.

John McCullough, 77, was found dead in his home, 556 Myola street, from exposure, according to a coroner's report. There was no coal in the house and little food, deputy coroners reported.

When his automobile skidded and struck a pole, John Caldone, of 6923 Greenwood street, was taken to St. Margaret's Hospital. The accident occurred at Butler and Sixty-second streets.

COASTING MISHAPS

As a result of sled-riding accidents, six persons are suffering minor injuries. They are Morton Beck, 6, of 8010 St. Lawrence avenue, Swissvale; Kenneth J. Owens, 20, of 234 Woodlawn avenue, Munhall; Robert Tischler, 8, of Reifert street; Leo Churchill, 16, of 121 Carson street; William Deegan, 8, of 312 Walnut street, West Homestead, and John Yulchowski, 10, of 612 White street.

While playing on West Field, Homestead, last night, Frank Kish, 13, of 1715 McClure avenue, Homestead, fell and fractured his left arm, police reported.

Mrs. Henrietta Nienhoff, 36, of Orangewood avenue, suffered a fractured ankle last night when she slipped and fell while alighting from a street car at Second avenue and Smithfield street.

WOMAN, BOY HURT

Mrs. Chrysanto Soles, 28, 105 Mifflin street, Whitaker, and her son, Regis, 5, are in the Homestead Hospital suffering body bruises and head injuries, resulting when struck by a Whitaker-Pittsburgh bus while walking in Cherry street road this morning.

A warning to motorists was broadcast by police last night saying that Route 22, the William Penn highway, in the mountains near Cresson, is impassable for automobiles without chains and that under all conditions driving is difficult on a stretch several miles long. Sleet and ice covers the road, the warning said, while drivers' vision is impaired by mist.

SAFE RESISTS YEGGS 3 TIMES

The safe in the Oakdale station of the Pennsylvania Railroad is still burglar proof, despite three attacks in two months. It has withstood two attacks with sledge hammers and last night resisted an effort to open it with a crowbar.

In the first two attempts to open it, robbers knocked off the handle and dial. Last night a crowbar was used and, although the thieves pried off the front panel, they failed to get into the strong box, H. E. Fleming, agent, announced.

Fleming said only a small amount of change was kept in the safe.

Suitcase Murder Of Girl Confessed

ROME, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—A three-weeks old mystery involving three suit cases containing the dismembered body of a woman was solved today with the confession, police said, of Cesare Servietti, 47, of Subiaco.

The body was said by authorities to have been identified as that of Paulina Corietti, of Assisi, his sweetheart.

Man Killed by Fall During Snowstorm

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., Dec. 12.—Dalinet Stercz, 59, coal miner, was dead today, the victim of the week-end snowstorm. He was found dead after a 20-foot fall from a Pennsylvania Railroad trestle near Salineville.

76 New Cases Put Under Quarantine

The City Department of Health today reports these new cases in quarantine over the week-end: Scarlet fever, 5; whooping cough, 5; chickenpox, 10; mumps, 3; pneumonia, 31, and influenza 22.

14 DIE ON ICY PENNA. ROADS

Associated Press.

Winter struck at the nation prematurely again today, with sub-zero temperatures, snow, rain and sleet, leaving a trail of dead.

The East had snows and rain yesterday with prospects for more of this kind of weather today, while rain and fog held sway over the South.

Residents of the Far West, Rocky Mountain states, and portions of the mid-west, shivered in temperatures well below zero during the night. In San Francisco it was the coldest in 62 years, with a temperature reading of 27 above zero.

HARRISBURG, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Danger leers from the silvery mountains today, while motor traffic pushes through the winter's first hazards of snow and ice.

At least 14 persons are dead in the wake of the icy storm; scores are injured. Automobile wrecks dot the highways from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh, and roads, buildings and trees are covered with a glassy coat, although temperatures are rising and the heavy snow is melting.

The State Highway Department said all roads are clear, but slippery and warned motorists to drive with care and to use chains.

Chevalier Returns To Hollywood Lots

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—After several months' absence, Maurice Chavalier, Paramount movie actor, returned to Hollywood last night from New York, where he has been making personal appearances. He spent the summer at his home in Southern France.

Snow Highballs Make Trouble For Colleges

BOSTON, Dec. 12.—(INS.)—Snowballs and highballs today brought two Massachusetts colleges into the spotlight of publicity.

Seven Wellesley College girls found that tossing snowballs is a healthy winter sport, but it is not so healthy when the chief of police is the target. Their names were taken by Chief William J. Fleming and Motorcycle Officer Thomas Shea, after they had hurled a barrage of snowballs at a police cruising car.

Meanwhile, at Williams College, President Harry A. Garfield, in an informal talk before members of his own fraternity, announced that drinking must stop in the fraternity houses or they will be padlocked.

SUNDAY SHOWS SPLIT OIL CITY

OIL CITY, Pa., Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Oil City citizens took sides today in a heated fight for and against the state's age-old "blue laws" following a series of arrests in connection with the first display of Sunday movies here.

Mayor J. G. Payne, who acted to suppress the performances before the shows were over, issued orders for police to arrest all employes at the Lyric and the Drake—the two playhouses which opened their doors last night.

Immediately after the performances, managers of both playhouses, Herman Stahl and Lester Bowser, appeared voluntarily before an alderman and pleaded guilty to violations. They were informed they would be fined.

Ministers, preaching from their pulpits yesterday, described the movement to open the theaters.

His Back Broken, Miner Can Walk

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Dec. 12.—(AP.)—A man whose back was broken nine months ago is reported today to be walking and "practically recovered." He is Charles Zdonwich, 39, of Lumberport.

For several weeks after he was caught beneath a slate fall at Laura Lee mine, of the Hutchinson Coal Company, Zdonwich was in critical condition.

Weather Conditions.

The low pressure over the Gulf states Saturday morning moved northward, and is now centered over Eastern Ontario. As a result of this low pressure precipitation occurred nearly everywhere over the eastern half of the country during the last 24 hours. This morning the weather is cloudy east of the Mississippi and it is raining or snowing at scattered places. The heaviest rainfall occurred over Eastern Tennessee and Northern Georgia. Another low is centered over Northern Arizona and highs are centered over Kansas and Oklahoma and over the plateau section. The plains states high is attended by considerable cloudiness and cold weather. Temperatures are below zero everywhere west of the Mississippi to near the Pacific coast and north of Oklahoma. Cold weather will prevail over this section tonight and Tuesday.

River Conditions.

The rivers are about stationary or falling slowly. Stage at Franklin is 1.5 feet; Lock No. 7 (Mon.), 12.0; Pittsburgh, 10.7; Dam No. 4, 8.0; No. 8, 7.6; No. 10, 8.4, and No. 12, 8.3. The dams are up. Three and one-half to four inches of snow fell over the district Saturday and during last night, an average .25 inch of rain. There was litle or no runoff from rain and melting snow.

Sunday Movies Bring Many Gifts to Needy

Contributions Range From Sardines To Overcoats

Hundreds of packages of clothing and groceries were in the hands of Father Cox today for distribution to the needy.

The packages, containing everything from sardines to overcoats, were carried to the Warner Theater yesterday as admittance fees to the show.

When the receipts were complete hats and shoes and cans of corn and peaches, or whatever was in the packages, overflowed the lobby. The bundles of foodstuffs and clothing made a pile 25 feet long, nine feet wide and eight feet high. It was the contribution of 12,000 people who attended six performances during the afternoon and evening.

It was an unusual sight in the downtown district as hundreds of men, women and children went to the theater bearing packages.

R. H. Rowe, manager, and his employes, including Motion Picture Machine Operators' Local No. 171 and Stage Hands' Local No. 3 received no payment for their services in handling the crowds and collecting the receipts. Everything was for charity.

Next Sunday a Protestant charity will be given the proceeds, and the following week, a Jewish charity will benefit. Money will be taboo at both of the coming shows. Only clothing or non-perishable food will be accepted.

Hotel Men Fight Blue and Dry Laws

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—A movement to bring about repeal of the Pennsylvania blue laws, the Snyder-Armstrong state prohibition enforcement act and the Eighteenth Amendment was started yesterday by the Pennsylvania Hotel Association and the National Liberal Alliance.

David B. Provan, chairman of the committee on prohibition of the hotel organization, said a postcard ballot will be distributed and citizens will be asked to mark the ballot for or against the three laws and send them to state legislators and Gov. Pinchot.

Olive Borden's 'Ex' Sought by Police

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(Universal.)—Theodore Spector, under indictment for bigamy in connection with his marriage to Olive Borden, screen star who recently won an annulment of the marriage, is the subject of a general police alarm. The alarm was marked "confidential" and no official explanation of it was made.

Unofficially it was learned that Spector is sought to answer complaints of several persons who claim to have entrusted money to him for investment in securities.

TRIAL OF DAVIS SET JAN. 9

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Retrial of United States Senator James J. Davis on federal lottery and conspiracy charges today was set for January 9.

Similar charges against the Western Union Telegraph Company and three others were set to be heard on the same day. One of the cases again will have to be postponed.

Co-defendants with Senator Davis, who is director general of the Loyal Order of Moose, are Theodore G. Miller, Bernard C. McGuire and Raymond Walsh. McGuire and Walsh also are defendants, along with M. J. Revise, in the case against the Western Union Telegraph Company which involved alleged lottery conducted for the Mystic Shrine.

McGuire was convicted and Walsh was acquitted on similar charges last week which involved the Fraternal Order of Eagles. Conrad H. Mann, president of the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce, and Frank E. Hering, editor of the Eagles' Magazine, also were convicted.

Postponement of the Moose and Mystic Shrine cases today was by agreement of counsel.

None of the defendants was in court.

Attorney General's Aide, O'Brian, Quits

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—John Lord O'Brian, of Buffalo, N. Y., resigned today as assistant to the attorney general in charge of anti-trust matters.

CHILDREN ROB BANK OF COINS

BLOOMSBURG, Pa., Dec. 12.—(AP.)—A 9-year-old boy and his 7-year-old sister yesterday broke into a Bloomsburg bank, police said, and took two sacks containing small sums of money.

The children were found later by an older sister who notified the father and then turned them over to the police.

They were released in custody of the father for appearance before a justice of the peace today.

The boy and girl entered the Bloomsburg Bank-Columbia Trust Company, in the heart of town, through a small window, about six inches wide, opening from a wash room, police said.

From there they proceeded to the banking room and picked up two sacks of money that a bank employe had obtained at a Sunday school today and placed on a desk.

CANED TEACHER GETS REVENGE

GLASGOW, Ky., Dec. 12.—(AP.)—When a teacher spanks a pupil, it isn't unusual; but when the teacher is on the receiving end of the spanking, there are liable to be repercussions.

Miss Floy Whitaker, a teacher in Highland School, near here, was spanked the other day, and as a result Mrs. H. C. Reynolds has been fined $20 by a county court jury.

Mrs. Reynolds admitted that she spanked the teacher and slapped her in the face after Miss Whitaker remonstrated because Mrs. Reynolds came to the school and whipped her son.

The jury decided the mother was guilty of disturbing a public school assemblage.

Stunt Flier Breaks Neck—By Fall Over Chair

TUCSON, Ariz., Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Robert Anderson, motion picture stunt pilot and a he-man who tows fire engines about the street at the end of a rope clamped between his teeth, fell over a chair here today.

By JOSEPH HILL
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—Walter Clyde Davis, Colorado bank embezzler, drew the final curtain across his $1,000,000 theft today by hanging himself in his cell.

Faced with the ultimate retribution for this embezzling and the accusation of 7,000 investors in the Colorado Springs City Savings Association, Davis had come to his journey's end with his arrest by a detective with a keen memory for faces.

GLAD OF ARREST

Relief rather than rage lighted his face as the detective, remembering a picture of him he had seen in a detective magazine, accosted him in exclusive Gramercy Park, where the ex-banker had gone for a stroll. He was glad, it was reported, to be finally free from the nerve-wracking strain that he had been under since he departed from Colorado Springs last June.

That day no one suspected what had happened. He told friends that he was going to Washington to seek aid of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for the bank, of which he was president. But after he had gone, a check revealed a $1,000,000 shortage and a nation-wide police hunt began.

When arrested here, he told police that he had made several trips to Europe under the name of Arnold and that he took an apartment overlooking Gramercy Park last October.

DAUGHTER GUARDED

He told them he wanted to make restitution and explained that his daughter in Colorado had power of attorney over $600,000 worth of property. A dispatch from Colorado Springs said that this same 22-year-old daughter had been under police guards because of threats to kidnap her as a means of forcing the banker's return.

After he was placed in a cell, the horror of the inevitable trial, the inevitable facing of those who had trusted him with their money only to be betrayed, seemed to grow on him, according to the police. He paced back and forth, nervously. Not only must he answer for the condition of his own bank, but he also had been blamed for the wreck of the Dollar Building and Loan Association of Colorado Springs by E. C. Sharer, the president, after his arrest in Los Angeles last June.

And so he finally solved his predicament. He hanged himself, using his own necktie. Police found him early this morning.

YOUTH RESCUED FROM VOLCANO

EL PASO, Tex., Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Berlyn Brixner, 21, fell 150 feet into the crater of an extinct volcano west of here, but is recovering.

The rope on which two companions yesterday were lowering him into the crater broke, and he fell. His companions hastened to Lanark, N. M., and brought rescuers. Highway Patrolman Bert Morris brought Brixner to the surface several hours later, by means of a steel cable and improvised saddle. The youthful explorer was unconscious and had suffered a broken ankle, scalp cuts and possible internal injuries.

Ballot Box Fraud Investigation Opens

Investigation of 12 ballot boxes was begun today in the District Attorney's office in an attempt to track down the fraud charged by both Democrats and Republicans at the last election.

Eleven of the boxes being studied by County Detective David Drexler and his aides are those on which hearings were held by Return Judges W. H. McNaugher and John P. Egan, who found evidence of fraud.

Trotzky Again Back In Turkish Exile

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Dec. 12.—(Universal.)—Leon Trotzky, exiled Soviet leader, returned here yesterday aboard the liner Adria from his trip through Europe to Copenhagen. He said he is grateful to the Turkish government for obtaining the visas that made his trip possible.

SMOKE CLOUDS ROLLING FROM THE BURNING SHOPS AT FIFTH AND BRADY, SOHO, TODAY

'Sweet Adeline' Theme Of 'Babbitt' Overture

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Babbitt has become an overture.

Douglas Moore, the young New York composer whose "Pageant of P. T. Barnum" was presented two years ago, conducted the Manhattan Symphony Orchestra last night in the world premiere of his new "Babbitt Overture," a symphonic composition suggested by Sinclair Lewis' novel.

In translating the Babbitt idea to music, Moore had an idea that Babbitt would, if articulate, burst into such a tune as "Sweet Adeline"; and it is "Sweet Adeline" which the composer uses to suggest his character. There is a suggestion of the barbershop classic at the opening, and the composition ends with four strong "Adeline" chords, in symphonic, rather than poolroom, harmony. Moore said:

"The ideas lurking in the composer's mind as he wrote were the strange combination of brassy assurance and self-distrust which Babbitt exemplifies, the striving after 'higher things,' the depths of sentimentality, and his jolly and likeable qualities."

The composition was cordially received by the audience, and the critics today were kind, but not enthusiastic. Moore has written with his tongue in his cheek and with the influence of modern rythmatic music sticking out its tongue occasionally through the musical bars.

Volstead Aide, Worried By 'Prejudice,' Ends Life

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—(INS.)—Spencer T. Ruud, real estate man and former secretary to Representative Andrew J. Volstead, suspected that many persons were prejudiced against him because of his reported role in the framing of the national prohibition enforcement act.

This was revealed today to police investigating Ruud's suicide by his physician, Dr. William K. Jacques.

As secretary to the Minnesota Congressman, Ruud was believed to have participated in drawing up the Volstead law.

The motive for his suicide, authorities believed, was illness, coupled with heavy business losses in real estate investments over the past four years. His widow, the former Vernon Thomas, is an artist and told police she had found it increasingly difficult to sell pictures for a livelihood.

Rudd shot and killed himself in Lincoln Park yesterday. His body was discovered beneath the snow. Beside his revolver was found a note, saying:

"Do not in any way hold my wife or mother-in-law for this. Sick in body and mind all over. My head buzzing all the time, so I cannot hope to be a support to my wife. I must not be a burden."

WEALTH OF OLD EGYPT HELD BY CITIES

Universal Service.

BERKELEY, Cal., Dec. 12.—The bedazzling wealth usually associated with ancient Egypt was confined to the centers of population, and did not figure in the daily lives of the inhabitants of the rural districts.

This has been revealed by Dr. George A. Reisner, world-famous Egyptologist, in a recent report to the University of California on the Phoebe Apperson Hearst Expedition, which he headed a quarter of a century ago.

The expedition was one of three financed by the late Mrs. Hearst, mother of William Randolph Hearst. Discoveries made on this trip, along with those made on expeditions covering early Greece and the Incas of Peru, are now housed in the university's museum of anthropology.

ANCIENT VILLAGE

While other archeologists went to the centers of ancient Egypt for their research, Dr. Reisner unearthed the burial ground of what 5,000 years ago was the familiar village of Naga Ed Der, on the lower Nile.

Because the Egyptian believed in taking to the grave what had been his most cherished possessions in life, Dr. Reisner was able to learn something about the average man of that period.

The stone and alabaster vases and dishes found in the farmers' graves at Naga Ed Der presented a sharp contrast to the gold and silver articles found in the tombs of the wealthy. What comparatively little gold was found at Naga Ed Der was in the form of bracelets and amulets, Dr. Reisner said.

And most of this type of jewelry—which was worn by men as well as women—was made of bone, shell or some other inexpensive substance.

COSMETICS FOUND

Among the commonest objects found in the graves were small cylindrical jars cut from stone and used for perfumes, Dr. Reisner reported. Some contained cosmetics.

Other objects discovered included a fly-swatter and a number of small, bronze hand mirrors, the latter apparently from the graves of women.

All of the objects were discovered only a short distance below the surface of the land, Dr. Reisner stated. The average excavation depth at the area was 10 feet. The Egyptologist wrote:

"While this excavation was an unimportant piece of work as far as beautiful finds are concerned, it nevertheless gives us the underside of the brilliant picture presented by the royal monuments."

HIT-RUN AUTO FELLS WOMAN

Mrs. Gertrude Kaufman, 60, of 3481 Denny street, was seriously injured early today when struck by a hit-run automobile.

En route to Wilkinsburg, Mrs. Kaufman was waiting for a street car at Pearl street and Liberty avenue. As the car approached she stepped from the curb into the path of the automobile.

At West Penn Hospital, where she was taken, it was said her condition was undetermined.

Bank Holdup Suspect Dies of Auto Injuries

KANSAS CITY, Kan., Dec. 12.—(AP.)—William Jack Tibbs, 40, of Philadelphia, charged with participating in the robbery Wednesday of the Shawnee State Savings Bank, died yesterday of injuries suffered in the overturning of a motor car.

Police said the car overturned as the three robbers were fleeing from the scene of the holdup, in which $500 was obtained. The gang was captured and the loot recovered.

ANIMALS

WALTER BIGGAR
He gave a Texan cause to whoop

Stock Show

Walter Biggar is a thin-faced Scot. He owns a large farm near Dalbeattie, Scotland. He usually dresses in brown. He always carries a cane. He is reputed to be one of the world's best judges of fine cattle. Every year for the past eight he has taken a trip to the U. S. to decide which steer should be named Grand Champion at the International Live Stock Exposition in Chicago.

Last week, at the 33rd annual Exposition, Judge Biggar was in his customary place at the centre of the arena at the Union Stock Yards . . .

Before the week was out Judge Biggar, who speaks with only a slight burr, had something new to talk about . . .

The arena was crowed as Judge Biggar . . . . . .

Have You Seen "TEXAS SPECIAL?"

You have never seen such a beautiful animal and you may never see another.

Over 25,000 people have seen "Texas Special" Thursday, Friday and Saturday

REAL Champions Come High!

At this Thirty-third International Live-Stock Exposition Auction, "Texas Special," the Grand Champion, sold for $1.25 a pound on the hoof; the cattle which, as a group, won the grand champion carlot title, sold for 15½ cents a pound on the hoof; prime steers of choice quality were selling at 8 cents a pound.

COX THANKFUL FOR 'TICKETS'

Help for the needy was never more welcome than today, following the wake of the storm, when Father Cox sent his truck for the food and clothing donations brought by hundreds of Pittsburghers to the Warner Theater benefit yesterday. He also obtained a fair-sized truck load from the Sheridan Square Theater as a result of the Saturday morning benefit.

He said last night:

"All of these food and clothing donations come just in the nick of time. The storm had doubled the demand on our resources and I really don't know what I would have done today in the way of taking care of the destitute if it had not been for these generous donations. I am deeply grateful to the Warner Theater management and sincerely hope that other charities will fare as well in the Sunday benefit performances to follow. The donations I have received from these benefits will bring happiness and comfort to many families for a few days at least."

The subscription campaign the Sun-Telegraph has inaugurated for the Father Cox unemployment relief fund is meeting with gratifying success. Every subscription that comes in on the blank on this page brings to Father Cox a liberal cash commission.

ASK YULE AID FOR VETS

Christmas boxes will be packed by the Veterans' Hospital Committee of Allegheny County in the Red Cross hut of the Marine Hospital, Wednesday. More than 700 disabled veterans in Veterans' Hospitals throughout Allegheny County, will receive these boxes containing various useful articles.

Thomas A. Joyce, chairman, asked the help of all post war organizations and others, saying:

"We hesitate to appeal again this year, due to the great distress which has been brought about by the conditions through which we are passing. But, when we consider that there are in these local hospitals more than 700 war veterans, we take courage and believe that our appeal shall not be in vain."

Confederate Vet Dies in Kentucky

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Capt. Schuyler A. Donnella, 85, a veteran of the United States secret service and of the Confederate Army, died at his home near Jeffersonville, Ind. He retired from government service in August, 1920.

PUT SEAL HOPE IN BOOTH SALES

With the Christmas seal fund today still $84,000 short of its goal of $100,000, the sum necessary to the Tuberculosis League of Pittsburgh to carry on the work of tuberculosis prevention, hospitalization and health education in Allegheny County through 1933, league officials were basing their hope of reaching the quota on the booth sale of the seals which starts downtown on Wednesday.

Mrs. J. Paul Warner will be in charge of the booths in office buildings, department stores and hotels. The booth sale will run concurrently with the general seal sale which started on November 25, and will close December 24.

Although 25,000,000 seals were mailed out to prospective purchases in Pittsburgh and Allegheny County, November 25, only $16,000 in returns had been received today at the league's headquarters.

DO HEADACHES DRIVE YOU CRAZY?

It's the worst kind of folly to dope and drug yourself every time you have one of those blinding, throbbing headaches. For drugs only relieve the pain for the moment, and in a little while the headache returns worse than ever and you have to drug yourself all over again. You've got to get at the cause.

Poisons created in your own body cause these severe headaches, and you must remove the poisons to get relief of a lasting nature.

By starting the new harmless Cream of Nujol treatment, today, you may free yourself from this constant torment.

This new form of Nujol is specially designed to rid you of poisons which very often cause this condition.

Cream of Nujol contains no drugs, and does not in any way interfere with work or play. It is delicious to take. Moreover, you can use this modern treatment at a cost of but a few cents a day.

Take Cream of Nujol night and morning. Begin this very night and give it a real trial. Buy it at any drug counter.

"MOIST THROAT" AIDS COUGH RELIEF

Your throat and bronchial tubes are lined with millions of pores like tiny bottles continually supplying moisture to the delicate tissues . . . until you "catch cold."

Then these "bottles" get plugged up, phlegm accumulates, affording dangerous germs a breeding place. Your throat feels hot and dry. Tickling, irritation and coughing set in.

Your cough will be cured only when the flow of the natural fluid is increased, loosening the phlegm so that it can be expelled. Many cough "remedies" contain numbing drugs which merely deaden the nerves . . but don't get at the root of the trouble.

PERTUSSIN, a scientific remedy, which doctors have prescribed for many years, is the extract of a famous herb which opens the tiny glands, stimulates the flow of the throat's natural moisture and brings quick relief. It helps nature heal that awful cough from the inside out.

PARIS REFUSES UNCONDITIONAL PAYMENT

my one motive throughout has been to honor France's signature."

BLAMES AMERICA

Throughout his speech, Herriot laid Europe's present debt troubles at the door of the United States, charging that responsibility rested in Washington from the time of America's failure to ratify the Versailles treaty and enter the League of Nations up to the time of the Hoover moratorium in 1931.

A surprise was sprung on adjournment when Louis Malvy rose and announced that the various Chamber committees needed 24 hours to deliberate the problem.

It was understood Herriot requested Malvy to make this motion and postpone a decisive vote for a day in order to await the British government's decision.

In closing, Herriot said:

"I shall request a vote of confidence. If I am voted down, it will at least leave a clear situation for my successor."

Britain to Pay But Ask For 'Reservations'

LONDON, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Despite the American government's warning against such a procedure, it was predicted in well-informed quarters today that Britain will pay its war debt installment to the United States Thursday with a reservation that it be credited on the capital account.

Under the present debt settlement, the $95,550,000 includes both capital and interest. These quarters expected the United States would accept the payment with the declaration the government has no power to accept the British reservation.

Thus the question would be carried over into a general review of the debts question to which the British and American government leaders have agreed.

The effect of this listing of the payment on the capital account was expected to call for a new settlement.

A special cabinet meeting for tomorrow to consider the American note was decided upon after a conference between Premier MacDonald and several of his ministers in the House of Commons.

The government today granted the House of Commons permission to debate the debt issue Wednesday.

U. S. Balks at 'Stampede' Into Debt Revision

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—(INS.)—Notice that the United States will not be stampeded into any one-sided agreement for revision of the European debt settlements was served upon Great Britain and other European debtors today.

On the eve of the special message which President Hoover is expected to send to Congress urging some form of reconsideration of the debt-funding agreements of 10 years ago, Secretary of State Stimson declared, in effect, that the "new deal" which the European debtor nations are seeking can be brought about only by negotiation and with the full consent of the creditor nation.

The debtor nations may not attach strings or conditions to the payments which they are obligated to make on December 15, with the only alternative of default.

The United States Treasury, Stimson said, will accept the payments when proffered, but acceptance of the money will not constitute acceptance of or agreement to any new conditions put forward by the debtors.

This information was conveyed in a formal note handed by Stimson to the British ambassador here only a few hours after the British government had formally notified this government that Britain will pay its debt installment due on December 15.

Accompanying this notification was a strong implication that this would be the last payment the United States could expect under the old debt-funding agreement. The debt payments which were suspended in 1931 by the Hoover moratorium cannot be resumed on the old terms, the British note stated.

Vatican Paper Urges Revision of Debts

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—The sacrifice which Europe is asking of America in connection with revision of the debts, said the newspaper Osservatore Romano today, must be connected with the cause of peace, disarmament and peaceful reconstruction of economic life.

Since the editions of this newspaper are approved by the Pope before publication, these are considered to be the Pontiff's views.

Printers Vote 3-1 For Five-Day Week

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—With votes tabulated representing one-third of the membership of the five-day week proposal, International Typographical Union officials today announced the plan was favored by 14,057 and opposed by 5,490.

Charles P. Howard, president, said 19,754 ballots from 32 large local unions have been counted. Altogether there are some 700 locals.

Decision Held Up On Coal Imports

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—The Customs Bureau today ordered collectors of customs to suspend decision on coal imports from Germany and Great Britain pending a decision by the Attorney General as to whether the products was taxable under the 1932 revenue act.

ANGLO-PERSIAN WAR FEARED

LONDON, Dec. 12.—(INS.)—With the cry of "war" already raised here, serious trouble occurred at the Anglo-Persian Oil Company's properties in Persia, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch today.

The message said a mob had threatened the company's offices at Abadam and that troops were called out to protect the property.

The disorders are the result of cancellation by the Persian government of the country's concession, which led to an acrimonious exchange of notes between the Persian and British governments.

Reynold's Illustrated News, a trade union newspaper, said the dispute might lead to war because the Persian government is imperiling the fuel supply of the British Navy.

GERMANY AGAIN AT ARMS MEET

GENEVA, Dec. 12.—(INS.)—After months of bickering and ill-will, Germany was back in the disarmament conference today.

German participation in the conference seemingly ended the disarmament crisis that gripped Europe following the deadlock between the German demands for equality and French insittence on security.

A resolution "to effect a substantial reduction of armaments" and recognizing Germany's claim to equality "in principle," had the signatures of representatives of France, Britain and Italy. A rider promising material results from forthcoming disarmament discussions bore the signature of Norman H. Davis, United States arms expert.

Many Contestants For Bench Vacancy

Seeking appointment to the County Court bench as successor to the late Judge Thomas C. Jones, of McKeesport, a number of attorneys, principally of the younger element, are waging energetic campaigns to be named to the vacancy.

The list includes Assistant County Solicitor Ralph H. Frank, Attorney Benjamin Lencher, Harry M. Jones, son of the late judge; Clarence B. Nixon, John M. Haverty, Jr., Edward J. McKenna and Joseph N. Huston.

Elizabeth Resident Dies on Motor Ride

Robert E. Smalley, 71, of Fifth street, Elizabeth, died yesterday following a heart attack suffered while riding in his brother-in-law's automobile, according to a coroner's report.

He was stricken as the car passed through Dormont. He was a member of the Elizabeth School Board and a postmaster of the Masonic lodge.

Broadway Playboy Swells Prison Fund

OSSINING, N. Y., Dec. 12.—Harold Russell Ryder, former Broadway spendthrift, now serving a prison term, rolled up a profit of $8,000 for Sing Sing Prison, proceeds from the Sing Sing revue which he directed last week, it was revealed today.

HERE'S CIPHER FOR YOUNG

Cipher No. 23

23 26 13 23 22 26 09 15 02

Here's one for the youngsters. "Bogie," if you're under 18, is 45 minutes. If you're older, 15 minutes should do. Solved tomorrow.

By KENNETH A. NAGEL
Cipher Editor

Hello, cipher fans, here we are again with another original cipher. Cipher No. 23 is especially for young cipher fans and was submitted by Joe Aaron, of 320 Gross street. Joe is only 11 years old.

Let's have some of the older fans see how quickly they can do it.

Write the Cipher Editor and let him know how you are getting along. "Bogie" says record time is 10 minutes. Answer and a new original cipher tomorrow.

Now, as for Saturday's cipher, you found the answer (maybe) by placing the cipher words under each other.

Then you tore your hair and bit your nails and noticed that reading diagonally from the first "I" to the last "O" gave you "If you do." Then, reading diagonally from "W" on the first line to the first "O" in the last line gave you "What yo—" if you skipped the "O" used in the first diagonal. You read the rest horizontally, skipping letters used in both diagonals.

Like this:

IUSHOUW
LFDNOHT
YOYUAMU
STHOEAR
OYUWODU
OLDNOTO

Which gave the answer:

IF YOU DO WHAT YOU SHOULD NOT, YOU MUST HEAR WHAT YOU WOULD NOT.

And here's the fair sex with news of how easily it solved cipher No. 20. Miss Maud Farthing Boyd, of 1303 Bingham street, and Miss Rose Held, of 2410 Eccles street, both had the answer in less than 15 minutes.

Again we hear from W. J. Hastings, of Coraopolis. He has solved the last two ciphers in a short period. With his letters comes one from George R. Lang, of 6015 Walnut street, another ardent fan, who praises cipher No. 19 while sending in its solution.

ROOSEVELT SET FOR ASSEMBLY

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Franklin D. Roosevelt's attention today was upon New York state's Republican Legislature, which was to consider his proposals in behalf of "drastic" reorganization in the New York city government.

Mr. Roosevelt braved a snowstorm and treacherous roads last night to drive back to Albany from Hyde Park for a conference with Lieutenant Governor Lehman on the legisrative situation prior to convening of the special session, scheduled for 8:30 tonight.

During the week-end at Hyde Park Mr. Roosevelt heard an exposition of the railroad situation by three rail executives. He also devoted part of yesterday to studying his plans for simplification of the federal government after he takes office, March 4.

Three Hurt as Auto Hits Bus, Fireplug

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Dec. 12.—Dorothy Kennedy, 18, and Erdie Cranial, 20, of New Castle, and Milton English, 21, of Beaver Falls, were injured when their automobile crashed into a bus and then careened into a fireplug here today.

Send a Protest Today to These Congressmen

Five Congressmen of Western Pennsylvania—one a "lame duck"—four from Eastern Ohio and two from West Virginia voted against the Garner bill, which provided that repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment be submitted to the states for their vote.

The people of the Tri-State area, with the rest of the nation, expressed in no uncertain terms their disapproval of prohibition and demanded its repeal. The following Congressmen voted against the will of the people. The public should register to them its disapproval by writing to them. They are:

CLYDE KELLY, Thirty-first District, Allegheny County, who ran on both Democrat and Republican, as well as several other parties.
HENRY W. TEMPLE, lame duck, of Washington and Greene counties.
J. BANKS KURTZ, of Bedford and Blair counties.
NATHAN L. STRONG, of Clarion and adjoining counties.
J. HOWARD SWICK, of Beaver and Lawrence counties.
THOMAS A. JENKINS, Tenth District, Ohio.
C. ELLIS MOORE, lame duck, of Fifteenth District, Ohio.
JOHN G. COOPER, Nineteenth District, Ohio.
FRANK L. BOWMAN, Second District, West Virginia.

FASCIST CHIEF OUSTED BY DUCE

ROME, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Augusto Turati, who for five years as secretary of the Fascist Party, was spokesman and the strong right-arm of Premier Mussolini has been formally and publicly stricken from the membership of the grand council by a decree of Il Duce.

The Premier's order, dated December 4, says Turati "has ceased" to be a member, but the date for the action was not specified.

Turati's name has not been mentioned in the membership rolls of the grand council in recent months, but he remains a deputy of the party and also a lieutenant general in the militia.

It appeared likely today that he may also be asked or be compelled to resign these honors, which action would complete his official oblivion.

He was recently suspended from the Fascist Party, and his removal was publicly attributed to the writing of letters which officials said were of a scandalous nature.

Welfare Aide Urges Keeping Family Unit

Welfare efforts in the state should be directed toward the preservation of the family, Mrs. Helen Glenn Tyson, first assistant deputy secretary of the Pennsylvania Welfare Department, said last night in an address at the North Boroughs community service in the Bellevue Methodist Episcopal Church.

Widowed mothers are pensioned and provision has been made for children, she said, but little has been done for the family of an incapacitated father.

FIGHT TO SPARE DOOMED WOMAN

CHARLESTON, S. C., Dec. 12.—(Universal.)—Theodore D. Jervey, one of South Carolina's best-known attorneys, today had enlisted in the fight to save Mrs. Beatrice Ferguson Snipes from going to the electric chair after the child she expects within three weeks is born.

Jervey declared that expectant motherhood places a woman beyond the verdict of a jury of men, since they cannot under these conditions be called her peers.

Mrs. Snipes was sentenced to die after a jury convicted her of first degree murder in the slaying of a policeman. The 29-year-old defendant pleaded self-defense. Jervey, who last year resigned his post as police court judge, an office he had held for 25 years, said:

"I do not think any 12 mere men can decide how a woman's mind works when she is an expectant mother, and I think it is wrong either to try or to sentence a woman when she is expecting to bear a child."

Stolen Auto Used By Bank Bandits Recovered

CHARLEROI, Pa., Dec. 12.—M. J. Reuben has his little maroon coupe again today. State police found it near Jeannette, where, it is believed, the bandits who robbed the Pleasant Unity National Bank of $4,000 on Saturday abandoned it. The car was stolen Friday night in Monongahela, Reuben told police.

Less than a month ago Reuben's car was commandeered by Patrolman R. L. Elwood in an exciting chase after an alleged Negro thief in Monongahela.

Kaufmann Honored For Work on Fund

Edgar J. Kaufmann, general chairman of the recent maintenance fund appeal of the Y. M. and W. H. A., was honored last night at an entertainment in appreciation of his work by the Congress of Clubs of Young People, affiliated with the organization. At the conclusion, Mr. Kaufmann was presented with a gift, the presentation address being made by Samuel Kaufman, master of ceremonies.

JAMES SPEAKS AT TRINITY

H. D. James, consulting engineer of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, addressed the Episcopal Clericous group at noon today in Trinity parish house.

Mr. James

In his remarks he urged the broadening of present educational systems to include a better knowledge of human values rather than study confined too closely to exact sciences or the arts.

This Is the Week to Buy Christmas Nuts

★

McCanns Fresh EGGS are lower priced

2 doz. 89c

If you can enjoy nothing less than a hundred per cent egg for breakfast, these are for you. They're deliciously fresh and mild-flavored. Just a week or two ago the price was 50 cents a dozen.

★

McCanns Favorite COFFEE is freshly roasted

3 lbs. 59c

Just a few hours from the roaster . . . that's one reason why Favorite is enjoyed on so many of Pittsburger's breakfast tables. Always fresh!

★

Irish Sliced BACON has real flavor

lb. 19c

Sale of WALNUTS

Large budded walnuts from the 1932 crop

3 lbs. 79c

Buy now for Christmas!

An important point to remember when buying walnuts is the fact that they are graded according to size. This Christmas sale features the California Walnut Growers' finest . . . large, budded walnuts . . . clean and fresh . . . the kind you want for the nut bowl and to tuck into Christmas stockings. Buy your Christmas walnuts this week from McCanns mammoth stock (we have three tons on display). It will be one thing less to think of during the last minute rush and besides, you'll be sure of having the best walnuts money can buy.

A New Way to Enjoy Walnuts . . . place them in the shell in a shallow pan and bake for 12 to 15 minutes in a hot oven. Cool and serve. Delicious!

McCanns Mixed Nuts . . . . . 3 lbs. 73c
A fine assortment, a good proportion of which are the higher priced nuts.

Paper Shell Almonds . . . . . 3 lbs. 68c

Oversize Paper Shell Pecans . . 3 lbs. 85c

Extra Large Filberts . . . . . 3 lbs. 65c
Those acorn-like nuts that you like to shell and wrap up in cream fondant.

Jumbo Brazil Nuts . . . . . 3 lbs. 59c
Perhaps you call them butter nuts. These have been washed . . . they're nice and clean.

The Jumper's the Thing
Pattern 2387
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

by Anne Adams

As sweet and adorable as the girl who'll wear it . . . the darlingest jumper frock we've seen in ages. The jumper favors simple seaming, while the blouse has the most lovable details . . . a demure close-to-the-neck collar and full graceful puffed sleeves. With sheer wool for the jumper we suggest a cotton or silk guimpe. Of course, other blouses or sweaters make refreshing changes.

Pattern 2387 may be ordered only in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 16 requires 2 yards 54-inch fabric and 1½ yards 36-inch contrasting. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included with this pattern.

Send 15 CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly your name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE WANTED.

The choice of a smart, sensible and economical wardrobe becomes very simple with the aid of THE ANNE ADAMS PATTERN CATALOG. This beautiful book contains 32 pages of select Anne Adams models and many delightful embroidery and accessory suggestions. SEND FOR YOUR COPY. PRICE OF CATALOG, 15 CENTS. CATALOG AND PATTERN TOGETHER, 25 CENTS. Address all mail orders to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth street, New York City.

1.—Enclose 15 cents in coins.
2.—Write clearly NUMBERS of patterns and SIZE wanted.
3.—Write or print your NAME and ADDRESS plainly.
4.—If you want SUN-TELEGRAPH Style Book send 10c extra.
5.—Address your request to the

To be rid of a Cold

ABORT

(with lemon juice)

Often a cold that you thought all gone—comes back! That's because the remedy used does not drive the cold symptoms from the system. Try cold abortion and you'll find those stubborn colds broken-up and gone within a few hours. To abort a cold, squeeze two full-sized lemons in a glass of very hot water, to be taken preferably at bedtime. Two hours before, start taking a tablet of Pape's cold compound each hour. After the third tablet take the lemon juice and hot water without sugar, and go to bed, well-covered. Sound sleep will follow, and the cold will be aborted by morning. The lemon juice treatment never fails, but you must have the cold compound to clear the head, dry the nasal passages, and allay any fever. Any druggist has Pape's cold compound; it is perfectly safe, and a tablet will check a cold at any time.

Be Careful to Avoid Trichinosis

"Trichinosis" is a big word applied to a disease which fortunately for us is rare in this country. Yet it is more prevalent than is commonly believed. Because the treatment of this disease is unsatisfactory every precaution should be taken to prevent its occurrence.

It enters the body when contaminated meat is consumed. A parasite, given the name "trichinella spiralis", is found in certain animals, notably the pig. It is transmitted to man, chiefly through the eating of contaminated pork.

The effects of the poisoning speedily occur. Within from three days to three weeks after eating the infected meat, the afflicted person has nausea, vomiting, intestinal cramps, and diarrhea or constipation.

Sometimes the condition is mistaken for typhoid fever. In a severe case bronchial and lung complication may take place.

Recovery occurs within 10 days or may be postponed for 10 weeks or more. In some cases a severe form of arthritis or rheumatism may follow the attack and persist for many years.

Federal laws require rigid inspection of all meats. But as yet, no dependable method of inspection has been devised which makes certain the detection of the parasite in pork. For this reason all persons should be warned to be careful of pork or dishes containing pork unless properly cooked.

When pork is thoroughly cooked it may be eaten without danger. The cooking of fresh pork should continue until the meat becomes white. Do not eat it if it is still red in color. The center, as well as the edges of the pork, should lose its reddish color before it is ready for eating.

Curing is another method of making pork safe for consumption. Dry salt-pork, pickled pork and smoked pork, previously salted or pickled, do not contain the parasite. The curing must be very thorough.

Trichinosis is apt to be found in a family or number of families, the members of which have attended some festivity where infected pork has been served. Though all may have partaken of the diseased meat, many escape infection. Not all persons who eat contaminated meat will contract the disease.

When a limited number of the parasites are swallowed no noticeable complaint results. In severe infections it has been estimated that an overwhelming number has been swallowed. The more infected meat eaten will of course carry more of the parasites.

Trichinosis is prevalent only where there has been negligence in the cooking or curing of raw meat. Local outbreaks of this disease occur frequently where the practice of eating raw or uncooked pork is indulged.

Many are under the impression that if pork is properly preserved on ice it is a safe food. This is not true. The parasites are quickly destroyed by heat, but not by the cold of refrigeration. The only safe rule to follow is to cook pork well before eating it.

Answers to Health Queries

"I Thank You." Q.—Will smoking three cigarets a day cause pimples to break out on the face? 2—What should a girl of 17, 5 feet 5 inches tall weigh?

A.—No. 2—She should weigh about 125 pounds. This is about the average weight for one of this age and height as determined by examinations of a large number of persons. A few pounds above or below the average is a matter of little or no significance.

TRUNK SLAYER TO LEARN FATE

PHOENIX, Ariz., Dec. 12.—(INS.)—Reports were current today that a decision of the Arizona Supreme Court would be rendered within a few days in the fight of Winnie Ruth Judd, convicted trunk slayer, for a new trial.

She was convicted of the murder of one of two friends whose bodies were found in a trunk she had allegedly transported from Phoenix to Los Angeles and the Supreme Court was asked to grant her a new trial.

Patricia Pitt

A debut is always a grand excuse for a house party, for there are always old school friends, many from out of town, with whom a young girl wishes to share the excitement of the day.

Esther Sawhill McDowell, the David Franklin Hills McDowell's daughter, will have a group of classmates as house guests and for her debut at a tea her mother will give in the family home, Fifth avenue, December 21.

The house party will include Gerladine Rickets, of New York; Catherine Little, of Youngstown, O.; Eleanor Ramage, of Fairmont, W. Va.; Jane Fitzhugh, of Washington, and her sister, Mrs. Walter Morgan, Jr., of Roanoke, Va.

* * *

One of our little sub-debs, Constance Drake, the J. Frank Drakes' youngest daughter, will have a European Christmas. She's with a traveling school in Europe this winter, and will not return probably until May.

* * *

Betrothal news is included in today's budget. The James G. Binnses, of Uniontown, are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Elma, to Henry Vinton Overholt, of Scottdale. No wedding date's been set yet.

* * *

I want to mention some more folks who are giving their support to that interesting benefit concert the Women's Missionary Society of the East Liberty Presbyterian Church is sponsoring on Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Mrs. Clemson

The affair is to be in the College Club at 3 o'clock with Christine Miller Clemson, Pittsburgh's own contralto, singing, Mary Jones Sherrill giving readings and Earle Mitchell playing accompaniments.

Mrs. Richard Beatty Mellon is a patroness and so are Mrs. William H. Normecutt, Miss Hattie Wainwright, Mrs. Robert H. Youngman, Mrs. William M. Robinson, Mrs. Robert J. McDowell, Mrs. Frank W. Reber, Mrs. J. Elwood Wherry and Mrs. Charles R. Miller, Jr.

Others are Mrs. William E. Allen, Mrs. Sewart Hays Augustine, Miss Ida Allerton, Mrs. John G. Buchanan, Mrs. George Thane Bartley, Mrs. Charles A. Carpenter, Miss Alice M. Carpenter, Mrs. Glendon Curry, Miss Olive Chess and Mrs. Albert E. Duckham.

Still others are Mrs. Raymond Evans, Mrs. Charles A. Fisher, Mrs. W. N. Frew, Miss Mary Gardiner, Mrs. William Gates, Mrs. Lewis Hicks, Mrs. Alexander Hunter, Mrs. Alfred B. Hine and Mrs. Stewart Nye Hutchison.

Rodef Shalom Group to Mark Anniversary

The Alumni Association of the Rodef Shalom Congregation will celebrate its sixth anniversary with an informal dance in the Schenley Hotel, Wednesday evening, December 21.

The committee in charge of the affair includes Allen Wilkoff, chairman; Miss Audrey Baudell, Miss Cecile Browdy, Foster Goldman, Miss Susan Goodman, Miss Martha Green, Stanley Nordheimer, Miss Lois Palley, Julian Rieslander and Miss Ruth Williams.

Chaperones will be Dr. and Mrs. Samuel H. Goldenson, Mr. and Mrs. Chester G. Bandman, Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Aaron, Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Rauh, Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Lambie, Mr. and Mrs. I. W. Jacobs, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice W. Spear, Mr. and Mrs. A. Leo Weil, Mr. and Mrs. S. Leo Ruslander, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Rosenbaum and Rabbi B. Benedict Glazer.

Gossipy Chat With Nancy Jane

The David Franklin Hill McDowell family is related to McDowell, the American composer, and what's more, is musical too.

Esther, their debbing daughter, is a pianist, and her sister Sarah, a violinist.

Mrs. McDowell had considered a musicale-tea, with the girls to give the program, as a variation of the usual coming out tea.

But since Esther will not be home from school, Chevy Chase, until the seventeenth, there won't be time for her to prepare for the concert and attend the Christmas fortnight debutante affairs.

* * *

Have you often wondered what the N. stood for in N. Bowman Wise's name?

PARIS HAT FASHIONS FAVOR MANY SMART AND VARIED TYPES

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Dec. 12.—There are dozens of angles to the Paris hat situation. New hat fashions are in the making. The more important designers are busy, right now, trying out new types of headger—little lopsided versions of the beret; brimmed hats in the tailored manner, with pert feathers sticking upwards and outwards at all angles; little tight-fitting hats that copy the lines of Breton peasant caps with bows of velvet perched at the crown of the head, like the topknot of an old-fashioned coiffure.

* * *

EVERY MILLINER in Paris is literally running over with new ideas, and every one is launching a new style almost daily. Which one of these new ideas is accepted by the mass of people still remains a question, but for the moment there is no one type of hat, no one hat material, no one hat color that is a thorough success.

* * *

THE WHOLE situation of millinery fashions is so complicated that each designer is obliged to include dozens of different types of hats in each collection—a feature which works well to the advantage of the women who eventually wear the hats. Instead of being forced to wear "the" hat which is the current style, a woman can now, for a few weeks at least, choose a type of hat which is most becoming to her.

* * *

A SINGLE designer will show such varied hats as are in today's sketches—all models from Marcelle. The black felt hat at the top, with its fan-like ornament of blue, red and beige ribbon, is worn well over the forehed and posed high off the neck at the back; the middle hat, also of felt, has its ribbon fan tucked under the brim at the left side; the corded woolen beret, of navy blue, at the bottom, is banded with heavy white ribbon, and is pulled well forward so as to give a peak-like effect at the front.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

A Columnist's Sec'y Jots Down a Few Notes

Dear W. W.: Did you see anything in the papers about Bernard Baruch, Jr., returning from Yurrop the other day with a new bride? . . . I didn't, but I hear he did! . . . Sinclair Lewis was ill with flu a month ago, but isn't now. The cable and radio corporations, however, were made richer by his worried friends. . . . Please don't run any more letter-enticers, Miss Bigman and myself can't keep up with the mail. Sent out 131 letters today, and it left us pretty weary.

Pola Negri called. About your piece in "Portrait." She said Valentino's body would soon rest in a permanent and not borrowed crypt, as she will personally see to that. . . . Jules Levine called. Said Congress didn't choose to rum. . . . Jules Williams (Hannah's sister) is nearer to her divorce from Jimmy McPartland than ever. I know you ran it months ago, but get it in, again, before it is considered a "beat" elsewhere. . . . Here's one. All the speaks have been tipped for a pinch. . . . Because federal enforcement will soon be crushed, and certain chaps have to live, you know.

Laura Benham, a press agent, wants to find the Duncan Sisters. Knows an agent who has a job for them. Those dirty Xmas cards, the rage last year, are a flop this season, so far . . Don't you think Chas. Laughton is a dead ringer for Mrs. Patrick Campbell? . . . Betty Murray, Buster's wife, who was also "shanghaied" with Marilyn Miller, became a mother only recently, and must be plenty upset over being parted from her baby, not to mention Buster . . . Have you noticed the subtle manner in which the RKO publicity men refer to the present Roxy as the former Roxy? Foxy, what? . . . Bugs Baer's name is better. He calls it the Roxyfeller . . . That radio report, which is taken seriously by advertising agencies and radio execs (but which the public never sees) goes this way for current favorite radio entertainers—Cantor leads by 25 points over his nearest rival, Wynn . . . Jack Pearl is third with half as many votes as Wynn . . . Incidentally, when you closed your first broadcast with: "Your N. Y. correspondent, who will get a medal tomorrow from the Loyal Order of Chiropractors for giving so many of you a pain in the neck!" I was almost tempted to yell into my receiving set: "Walter, I always did say you were a perfect critic!" Aw, can't you take a joke?

Here's an interesting item . . . Dr. Wheeler, who operated successfully on the eye of the King of Siam that time, removing a cataract, never sent the King a bill, for fear of offending royalty . . . After all these months, however, he just got a check for $20,000, and he is wretched about it, for he usually charges considerably more! . . . The "Vanities" cast were paid—Berle being the only one to refuse his check because of a heavy wage slice . . . The cast has taken another cut, some chorines rating as much as store cash girls, you might say . . . Did you hear about the Hollywood extra girl who was going ritzy and gummed up the works at a party with: "I'm veddy soddy, but I simply cawn't eat orsters!" . . . Recent publicity said that Tullio Carminati had only appeared in successes in America, such as "Strictly Dishonorable" and "Music in the Air" . . . How quickly one forgets flops, such as "Christopher Comes Across," which lasted almost a week.

A group of local literati are forming The Film Society, which will sponsor private showings of movies barred by censors. Among the leaders will be Gershwin, Sherwood Anderson, A. A. Knopf, Nelson Rockefeller, Leopold Stokowski and Frank Crowninshield . . . Thanks for getting so excited about Bea Lillie in "Walk a Little Faster." . . . Say, please hurl a wreath of orchids at Mulrooney's men for breaking up that mob of professional beggars who ran a regular racket along Park Ave. . . . It was organized by a gang of moochers assigned to each corner . . . If any outside bum happened along for alms he got a beating and was run outta town!

Here's an Horatio Alger yarn. About a little girl who made good. Babe Miller, of New Haven. Until six months ago she was unheard-of outside of her home town. She won a radio personality contest there and is now booked into Radio City at the Roxy. Also she will make a series of shorts! . . . Okay! New Haven! . . . Dutton will publish Lady Mary Elizabeth Young's book "Ex-Ziegfeld Girl," under her stage name, Bettie MacDonald. Bettie is also doing a play! . . . Valerie Huff, a Rasch gal, is the wife of Redford Booth, millionaire. Theirs is a recent merger. . . . A linen shop on Vth Ave. features jet black towels! . . . Russell Wright, the artist, who works in aluminum and wood, has just completed a "lighter than foam" beer stein. . . . I hear a famous mag will fold next month. . . . And that this has been the worst of all book years. . . . Even the best writers haven't made any real coin. . . . You can imagine what happened to lesser knowns.

You were asking about Charley Lynch, the only judge at the Schmeling-Sharkey fight that thought the German won . . . Well, Charley is doing extra work for City News and glad to get it. A good man, too . . . Do you want Speak-o-Phone to make a recording of all your comments? Think it best, in case some mugg hears too fast—and you can always have it right there better than black and white. Your own voice! . . . Toss an orchid, by all means, at "I Fly for News," by Larry Rue, one of the better news collectors. A swell book and considered by movie firms . . . Lionel Barrymore must be good at etching. One of his works was accepted by the American Society of Etchers and is now at the Nat'l Arts Club . . . It is one of the toughest societies for any artist to crash . . . Oh, yes, now Marilyn Miller and Don Alvarado can marry each other, if they like . . . The Alvarados have been divorced . . . Did you ever hear that his real name is Joe Paige? . . . Goombye, please.

Society Deb Gets Role In 'Headliner'

That ultra-social rearing and the luxurious influence of high society's wintering resorts is no bar to success in the talkies was indicated when Helen Collins, Washington, D. C., debutante and graduate of Chevy Chase, was assigned an important role in RKO Radio Pictures' forthcoming "Skeets" Gallagher "Headliner" comedy.

Stars' Wives Return to Acting

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1932, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 12.—Hollywood wives, bored with the social rounds, are finding a new escape in resuming their careers.

Ruby Keeler Jolson began the fashion when she signed with Warners to do "Forty-Second Street" and now Mrs. Chester Morris is following her lead by agreeing to make her screen debut for the same company. She will have an important part with Loretta Young, Lyle Talbot and Regis Toomey in "She Had to Say Yes."

Back on Broadway, Mrs. Morris, then Susanne Kilbourne, was a well known leading Woman. When she married Chester and he came out to Hollywood, the two of them agreed, however, that one player in the family was enough.

Ruby Keeler

It was during a visit to the studio to have lunch with Chester that Warner officials saw Mrs. Morris and suggested that they had just the part for her if she would consider it.

Talking it over with Chester, she found him willing, so now the deal's all set.

JUST FRIENDLY BOYS

The seasonal benefits are on and Lou Anger reports the following clash that took place backstage the other night.

A certain ex-vaudeville actor went on and got a big hand from the audience.

Two numbers later, a well known film star received only a smattering of applause. As he came off shaking his head, the vaudevillian flipped:

"Well, what did you expect to get, following me like that?"

"Dumb, I'll admit," came back the film star, "but how was I to know they'd stay sore that long?"

SHE LIKES MOVIELAND

Billie Burke is crazy about California and doesn't care who knows it. She made a big hit both here and in San Francisco in "The Marquise," and will reopen the play in Hollywood over the holidays.

The star makes no secret either of her desire for a film career. She has a warm admirer in David Selznick, of RKO, and it wouldn't surprise me to see her sign there for one of the important roles in "The Great Desire." The part is hers if she wants it. It's only a question of working out an arrangement by which the picture wouldn't conflict with her stage engagement.

FIFI PLAYS POLO

Latest exploit of Fifi Dorsay is to take up the game of polo. She got her first lesson under the guidance of her four horsemen from Argentina . . . You can see Katharine Hepburn and Don Terry lunching together most every noon now. He's a former Harvard football player . . . Here's one that the palm springs crowd forgot to put in the book. Richard Dix takes ordinary water glasses, leaves them out in the desert sun for two or three days and they turn that fashionable shade of blue . . . One of my San Francisco scouts reports that Conrad Nagel and his wife were dancing the other evening to Ted Fiorito's music at the St. Francis.

Richard Dix

Those two confirmed stay-at-homes, Jobyna Ralston and Richard Arlen, were out to the Club La Boheme here the other night. Dick, by the way, is sick with flu and will not be able to participate in the attempt to break the outboard motorboat record on the Salton Sea. Gary Cooper may replace him. You should see Gary in a beret . . . And, to show how the fad is getting out of control, Clark Gable made an appearance in one at M-G-M . . . Bob Armstrong got one of life's biggest thrills when he was touring San Quentin Prison and they shut him up in the death house.

Romance

Double Bill In Davis

By E. W. PRENDERGAST

Probably the most consummate wise-cracker and purveyor of neat lines in America is Miss Aline MacMahon. She has won her way through any number of pictures and now, in "Once in a Lifetime," she is properly featured. The picture, with another, "Scarlet Dawn," may be seen in the Davis in a program that runs more than three hours.

The pen of wise-cracking George S. Kaufman has furnished Miss MacMahon her first big featured role. She is no mumbler or mouther. And when it is understood that the picture is based on a series of incidents in the lives of Hollywood motion picture executives, there is no escaping her, and her barbs.

Jack Oakie, Zasu Pitts, Louise Fazenda and Sidney Fox, at work in one community are enough to create any number of scenes. The picture's chief drawback at moments, is Hollywood stuff, the butt of many jokes. But it's fair entertainment, with Miss MacMahon giving a keen performance and making cracks that are just as sharp.

Young Doug Fairbanks and Nancy Carroll are featured in "Scarlet Dawn," an average picture of the egress from Russia after the Red revolt. It occurs that the theme, a bite out of life rather than a sufficiently complete portion; might have been given a "doctor's" care and jerked up to the dramatic pitch required of a moving story. A newsreel and the pictures give everyone his money's worth.

'Curse of Sunken Gold' To Be Filmed

"Curse of Sunken Gold," adventure story of deep sea divers seeking fabulous wealth in wrecked treasure ships, has been purchased by Paramount from Charles Furthman, experienced film writer, who wrote the story directly for the screen. No cast nor director has been assigned.

'Luxury Liner' to Have Large Cast

Frank Morgan, Leni Stengel and Verree Teasdale are the latest additions to the cast of "Luxury Liner" which B. P. Schulberg is producing for Paramount. Others having important roles are George Brent, Zita Johann, Vivienne Osborne and Alice White. Lothar Mendes will direct.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Opening tonight in the Nixon, the Irish Players, from the Abbey Theater, Dublin, the national theater of the Irish Free State, will be seen in a repertoire, of which tonight's production will be "The New Gossoon," comedy by George Shiels. It is a story of youth and its innovations versus age and its fixations. The same comedy will be repeated at the Saturday matinee and other attractions of the week will be as follows: Tuesday, "The Far-Off Hills," by Lennox Robinson; Wednesday matinee, "The White-headed Boy," by Lennox Robinson; night, "Juno and the Paycock," by Sean O'Casey; Thursday, "Spreading the News," by Lady Gregory, and "The Playboy of the Western World," by J. M. Synge; Friday, "The Far-Off Hills;" Saturday night, "Kathleen Ni Houlihan," by W. B. Yeats, and "The Playboy."

The next attraction in the Nixon will be a musical comedy revue, "Face the Music," with a cast headed by Mary Boland. But it won't be here until December 26, Christmas week.

* * *

In the Pitt tonight the George Sharp Players will begin a week of sophisticated comedy, "Naughty Cinderella" being the offering. Jean May, formerly leading woman in the Pitt, when the George Sharp company was located there previously, will make her bow again as a regular member of the company. Miss May was well liked by patrons of the house while she was playing there, and no doubt she will find many old friends on hand to greet her. The production that marks her return is a translation from the French in which Irene Bordoni was starred originally.

For next week, Mr. Sharp has arranged to present, the old tearjerker, "East Lynne," which has not been presented on any stage here in y'ars 'n' y'ars.

* * *

Tonight, in her Repertoire Theater in New York, Eva Le Gallienne will be seen for the first time in her new production, "Alice In Wonderland." The play is reported as being taken directly from the book, with only the dialogue of Lewis Carroll being used. Miss Le Gallienne will play the White Chess Queen; Joseph Schildkraut, the Queen of Hearts, and Josephine Hutchinson, the role of Alice.

Ha! Rome Was Built In 23 Hours

Rome wasn't built in a day, the saying goes, but Hollywood refutes it. Rome was built and destroyed by fire the same day for spectacular scenes in Paramount's "The Sign of the Cross." To present realistically the historical burning of the Eternal City by Nero, an exact replica of the heart of the ancient capital was constructed at the Paramount ranch. Scores of carpenters, laborers and technicians, working in shifts, completed the task in exactly 23 hours. While Charles Laughton, as Nero, strummed his lyre, dozens of cameras recorded the conflagration, the mammoth set being reduced to ashes in another hour.

Broadways of the World
All In A Day
By Mark Hellinger

GRAND HOTEL, NAPLES, ITALY.—Last night I stood in the lobby of the Excelsior Hotel in Rome, and chatted idly with the head porter. We talked of conditions in America, the price of cheese in Italy, the power of Mussolini, the foolish hats that women were wearing and the best way to cure dogs of rickets. It was a purely international conversation.

"You have been here for some time, Mr. Hellinger," he said suddenly. "When do you intend to leave us?"

I looked at him closely until I remembered that I had paid my bill. Then I smiled.

"Oh, I don't know," I returned. "Pretty soon now, I guess. I'm making Tunis, over in North Africa, my next stop. Maybe I'll hop down to Naples the day after tomorrow, and then catch a boat to Tunis the next morning."

"I am afraid, Mr. Hellinger," he asserted, "that you should have inquired about such a course before this. There is but one boat a week from Italy to Tunis—and that leaves Naples tomorrow night at 10 o'clock."

On rare occasions, Hellinger is a man of action. This was one of the occasions. I phoned Mr. Cozine, my picture director, and Signor Romagnoli, my cameraman, and urged them to take the midnight train for Naples. It was necessary for me to be at the bank in the morning. So I told them I would meet them in Naples in the early afternoon, we would shoot some scenes there—and then catch the boat for Africa at night.

"Make reservations for me," I said rapidly, "on a train that leaves for Naples around 11 o'clock tomorrow morning. I've got to get there while the sun is still out. So I—"

He shook his head.

"There is no such train, sir. But if I might venture a suggestion, there is a fast plane that leaves here exactly at noon."

I gulped. In all my life, I had never been in an airplane.

But this was something else again. Either I had to fly—or I would have to wait another seven days before leaving for Africa. I decided to fly.

"Of course," I returned. "Reserve the place for me as early as possible."

I tossed him a nervous glance, picked up my copy of the Paris edition of the New York Herald and took the elevator to my room. On the way up, I glanced at the headline.

"Five Killed," it read, "in Plane Crash" . . .

Inasmuch as I am now writing this column in my hotel room in Naples, I don't suppose I have to tell you that I reached my destination in complete safety. I want to add that I now think flying is positively swell, grand, beautiful and thrilling—for those who like it. I don't like it.

Maybe it's because I had my first plane ride under conditions that were a trifle trying. None of my fellow-passengers spoke any English at all and I was unable to complain to anyone about anything. If only Mr. Winchell could have been sitting beside me and I could have watched his complexion turn slowly from white to green, I imagine I would have enjoyed the trip immensely. But I'm getting ahead of my story.

The bus trip to the airport was uneventful. The ride from Rome to the waterfront — I didn't tell you that I was going to fly in a seaplane because I didn't know it myself—is scheduled to take 40 minutes. The bus driver hit 50 miles an hour for the first five minutes—and then slowed down to 12 miles an hour so that he wouldn't get there too early. I guess that's what they call system.

The first thing I did when the bus finally pulled in was to buy a small bottle of cognac. I didn't know how I was going to react to the trip, and I felt that a swallow of cognac every now and then wouldn't do any harm in any event. I placed the cognac in my coat pocket, went through the customs and marched to our seaplane with a firm tread, I think.

As I bent over to get into the place, the cognac fell into the sea. That made me so nervous that I wanted to go back for a case—but they wouldn't let me.

An elderly lady with a small hat and a long nose sat herself next to me. It was a 10-passenger plane, but they put 11 people in the cabin—one man being compelled to sit upon the steps. The pilot and the mechanic were two more, making 13 in all. And 13 is a number I never liked.

Before I quite realized it, we were flying.

We had been flying an hour or so when the woman in the next seat suddenly nudged me. Her complexion was strangely white, and she kept pointing to my left. She was shouting something in Italian, and I figured that she wanted me to open the porthole.

I did so — and the damned thing flew back and hit me right on top of my head. But I smiled just the same. Anything for a lady.

"There you are, lady," I said.

But she wasn't satisfied. I had evidently done the wrong thing. She kept screaming in Italian and pointing to my left. I handed her a newspaper and, thinking she might want to know the time, I showed her my wrist watch. No use. I was still wrong.

She finally shot me a hateful glance, stood up in the swaying plane, reached across me and grabbed a paper bag that was hanging beside me. I then learned that people use those bags when they are not feeling quite well.

But how was I supposed to know that? I thought it was a sort of ash tray. I guess I'll always be nothing but a Broadway columnist . . .

AWAIT REPLIES TO POOR BOARD ON RELIEF

Denial of Borrowing Necessity Likely to Stir Leaders

Leaders of Pittsburgh's relief organizations were expected to reply today to a statement of Harry W. McIntosh, solicitor to the Allegheny County Poor Directors, that the Poor Board need not borrow to aid efforts to prevent starvation among unemployed of Allegheny County.

McIntosh said Saturday:

"We don't intend to take on ourselves the distribution or care of food relief. That's the business of the State Emergency Relief Board. We already have enough money for our needs."

As for the Allegheny County Emergency Association, distributors of state and federal aid in the county, McIntosh remarked:

"I don't know anything about the Emergency Association. Nobody seems to but themselves."

Replies from relief leaders who have thus far kept to themselves their opinions of the Poor Directors' inactivity were expected today. The board's power to borrow expires December 31.

SAVED BY COAT IN SPAN LEAP

Charles Cathemour, furloughed employe of the County Hospital at Woodville, rescued by rivermen from the Ohio River after he had leaped 70 feet from the new North Side-West End Bridge yesterday, was reported recovering today in the South Side Hospital.

Jerry Walsh and Samuel Swearingen, rivermen, who saw Cathemour floating in midstream, brought him ashore in a skiff, according to a police report.

Patrolmen Thomas Beggs and LeRoy Gibson, summoned by a girl who saw Cathemour make the leap, took him to the South Side Hospital after his rescue. He was said to be suffering from shock. He had been in the water about 10 minutes when the rivermen got him, being kept afloat by his heavy overcoat.

Police had been searching for Cathemour since his father had reported him missing yesterday morning.

Versailles Man Dies of Mine Injury

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Dec. 12.
To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Big football game. One hundred thousand of us sit there in the cold and picked up what little pneumonia there was left. Give a Californian a football or an orange and he knows more things to do with it than a Harvard guy does a dictionary. Notre Dame had a fine team, but one look at that California line should have started 'em throwing forward passes before they got off the train. I would have sent players up in the stands to grab off passes. Pittsburgh is coming out to play this team New Years in what we humorously call our "Rose Bowl." Well, it's a nice trip out here and California will play their Chamber of Commerce against 'em the first half. Would have brought Colgate, but everybody out here thought they was a toothpaste team off the radio.

Yours, WILL.

MISS HELEN HALF . . . SHE'S TAKING COLLEGE "BIDS" NOW

Pitt Girl Seems to Win Coast Bids For Schools

The three colleges she has attended in the last four years have sent teams to the Rose Bowl game the year she attended them.

This record belongs to Helen Half, Pitt co-ed, 1421 Denniston avenue. In 1929 she attended the University of Pittsburgh; the following New Years day, Pitt played Southern California in Pasadena.

In 1931, she attended the University of Alabama. The following January, that school's eleven met Washington State. This year Miss Half again is attending Pitt, and the Panthers will go to the Coast.

In 1930, Miss Half did not attend college.

She hasn't decided yet what school she will attend next year, but thinks she should ask bids. After all, she says, the possibility of participating in the Rose Bowl game should be sufficient reason for a college to want her as a student.

COLLISION KILLS PITTSBURGHER

BLAIRSVILLE, Pa., Dec. 11.—(AP.)—A bus, skidding on the slippery highway, crashed into a truck, killing E. Lio Parpovich, of Pittsburgh, and injuring six persons—one seriously—near Blairsville late last night. Police exonerated the bus driver.

The truck on which Parpovich was riding, accompanied by Nikolas Mudrich, also of Pittsburgh, was en route to New York with a load of freight. Unable to climb an icy grade, the vehicle turned across the highway.

The bus, with 11 passengers, en route from Newark to Pittsburgh, slid down the hill and crashed into the truck.

Mrs. Gertrude Silvany, of Boston, a bus passenger, was taken to an Indiana (Pa.) hospital. Another of the injured was G. C. Quelch, 710 Thirteenth street, Oakmont, who, with four others, received treatment and continued on to Pittsburgh with the bus.

POLICE RESCUE 5 OVERCOME BY GAS

Call For Help Finds Officers at Practice With Inhalators

Two women and three children were reported as having recovered today from the effects of gas fumes which left them unconscious in their home, 824 Parkwood road, South Side, yesterday.

The officers responded to the call and inhalators were applied to Mrs. Burr, Mrs. Nathan Cooper, and the latter's children, June Marie, 5; Margaret, 6, and Nathan Jr., 3. Cooper also was slightly affected by the fumes.

Police reported the gas had escaped from a heater in the basement, seeping through the walls and becoming heaviest in the bathroom where the children were being bathed by Mrs. Cooper.

After reviving the victims, police took them to South Side Hospital for observation. They returned home later.

CRIME, THRILLS LINKED BY PARK

District Attorney Andrew T. Park, speaking at "Carnegie Tech night" at the Sixth United Presbyterian Church, last night, offered a solution for crime. He said:

"Until the time comes when young people of a community realize they have important responsibilities to bear and are willing to assume those responsibilities, and until the older people, be they parents or neighbors, realize 'they are their brothers' keeper,' not only Allegheny County but the country will have crime and criminals to combat."

"We've got to get back to the old-fashioned forms of entertainment, that are devoid of 'spontaneous thrills' if we expect to cure this crime problem."

Describing Paul Jaworski as "Allegheny County's most desperate and smartest criminal," District Attorney Park said:

"On the eve of his execution I asked Jaworski why he chose a career of crime. He replied: 'I am where I am today because when I was younger I was too lazy to work and no one would compel me to work.'"

Men and women students of Carnegie Institute of Technology attended the service in a body, while the kiltie band furnished music during the service and an informal reception afterward. The Rev. Dr. H. H. Forsyth, pastor, presided.

Saved From Gas by Police Rescuers

JAIL WOMEN AS PICKPOCKETS

Two alleged women pickpockets, accused of mingling with holiday shoppers in downtown stores were committed to jail for five days by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central Police Court today. Mrs. Anna Corrigan, 42, and Mrs. Stella Lawson, 38, of Cleveland, were arrested Saturday as police received a dozen reports of pocket-picking, in which about $600 was stolen.

Elizabeth Taubry, 32, and her stepfather, Emil Lang, 50, of 1309 Tell street, were sentenced to 30 days in jail, accused of shoplifting.

Fight Victim Dies, Police Hold Suspect

Henry Green, Negro, was held today in connection with the death of Robert Thornton, 34, of Carrie street, a World War veteran. Thornton died in Marine Hospital yesterday of blood poisoning resulting from injuries suffered in a fight with Green, detectives said. The fight began over a political argument.

Thornton was reported dead Saturday, but when the morgue ambulance arrived it was learned he had rallied.

Darrow and Musmanno Debate Here Tonight

'Immortality' Topic For Verbal Battle Of Barristers

Clarence Darrow, noted criminal lawyer, agnostic and humanitarian, will present his arguments that man is not immortal in Carnegie Music Hall tonight with Judge M. A. Musmanno, Allegheny County jurist, matching words and wits with him.

The barristers will engage in a 100-minute debate on the question: "Does Man Live Again?"

Darrow was expected to arrive from Cleveland at 4:40 p. m. Judge Musmanno had breakfast with Judge Elder Marshall, who will preside, and gave Judge Marshall a new stop watch to time the debate.

Judge Musmanno will open up with a 25-minute barrage as his main argument. Darrow will counter with 30 minutes allotted for his main argument. Musmanno will follow in 10 minutes of rebuttal. Darrow will come back with 20 minutes and the judge will finish in 15 minutes.

Judge Musmanno is expected to argue from the viewpoint of science and philosophy, rather than as a religionist. Commenting on the debate, he said:

"It will be my first meeting with Mr. Darrow. Naturally, I am looking forward to matching arguments on immortality with America's great criminal lawyer. In many points we agree thoroughly, but on religious matters—well, that is something different."

The debate is scheduled to start at 8:15 o'clock. Proceeds of the ticket sale will be distributed as Christmas charity by the city's two afternoon newspapers.

Collision Victim Dies in Hospital

Joseph McEvilla, 52, of 452 South Braddock avenue, died in the Pittsburgh Hospital yesterday from a skull fracture suffered Saturday when an automobile in which he was riding blew a tire and struck a parked car in Hamilton avenue, according to a Coroner's report.

CABBY SNARES TRIO IN THEFT

Three Homestead Mexicans who, police say, admit robbing the Palace Credit Company store, were in jail today, thanks to Paul McCleary, taxi driver.

After tossing a brick through a store window and making off with several coats, the three hailed McCleary's cab, tossed in their loot and ordered him to drive them to Homestead.

They paid him off, he said, with a coat valued at $245 and tried to hire him for future jobs.

Today they were held for investigation in Oakland Police Court. They are listed as Frank Smith, 28, and Benjamin Muniz, Fifth avenue, Homestead, and Henry Estrada, 25.

HILL ROBBERY CHARGED TO BROTHERS

Auto Chase Through Red Lights Brings Third Arrest

Two Negroes, suspects in a score of Hill holdups, were to be arraigned again today in Center Avenue Police Court, following their identification by two holdup victims yesterday.

The suspects, Frank King, 17, and his brother, Harold, of Carilla street, were arrested after Hymie Stein and his brother, David, of 3120 Avalon street, reported they had been held up near their home.

Harry Stoker, 24, of Youngstown, O., an alleged member of the Steggert robber gang, was returned to Pittsburgh yesterday and held in South Side police station. Steggert is serving a 20 to 40-year term for holdups and robberies.

Trize Dadsovich, 26, of 402 Chestnut street, arrested last night by detectives after a chase from Woods Run to Sixth and Wylie, was to be arraigned in Central Police Court today.

According to the arresting detectives, Clarence Raeder and Edward McEntee, Dadsovich stole $90 from a Woods Run cobbler, Joe Kurywchak. The robbery occurred, the detectives said, when Dadsovich, after selling the repairman a pig, returned Saturday to get a dog which Kurywchak had promised him.

The sleuths were waiting when Dadsovich left his home last night in an automobile. The speeding machine passed through 10 red lights before the detectives captured it, they reported.

OFFICER HELD IN SHOOTING

Constable Dudley Quinn, 34, of Imperial, was arrested by county detectives today in connection with the shooting of Foldy Puskar, a North Fayette Township constable, in a roadhouse Saturday night. Puskar is in Mercy Hospital.

Detectives also arrested Ralph Alloway, 32, of Imperial, on a charge of aggravated assault and battery. Alloway is alleged to have been arguing with Puskar when Quinn is reported to have interfered. In the scuffle Quinn's revolver fell to the floor and discharged a bullet into both of Puskar's legs.

Decimal Point Should Be in the Froth If At All

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

So much argufying about beer in Congress that the wets are now sorry they mentioned the subject.

If you have to have a decimal point in your beer put it in the foam where you can blow it off.

Following the Marquis of Queensbury rules. Three per cent beer. And one per cent rest between rounds.

The laundries are complaining that two per cent beer won't make a lather.

N.S. Policeman and Wife Die Within Week

Surviving her husband by only six days, Mrs. Ethyl K. Timmons, 51, died last night in St. Francis Hospital.

Monday a week ago, Mrs. Timmons brought her husband, William, a policeman, from their home, 1418 Federal street, to the hospital. She had been nursing him for a week as he lay ill of pneumonia. That afternoon she collapsed, ill of the same disease.

William Timmons died later that day. Mrs. Timmons' death is attributed to pneumonia and shock of her husband's death.

Mrs. Timmons will be buried beside her husband in Uniondale Cemetery tomorrow after funeral services at her home.

The couple is survived by three children, Robert, a Pitt student and member of the football team; Betty, a scholarship student at Pitt, and Mrs. Cathleen McCracken, of Pittsburgh.

William Timmons was a well-known member of the Pittsburgh police force, on which he had served 23 years. At his death he was sergeant at No. 5 Police Station. Before coming here, he had served in the United States Artillery at Fort Scriven, Ga. It was there he met his wife, a native of Garnett, Ga.

Charge Vice Depresses Hill Realty Values

Charges that vice conditions have resulted in depreciation of real estate values in the Hill district, and a resolution demanding a 25 per cent reduction in school taxes marked an organization meeting of the Hill District Taxpayers' Association in the Irene Kaufmann Settlement yesterday. The principal speaker was Sidney Teller, director of the Settlement. He denounced lack of police vigilence in his district, saying:

"Because vice and crime have been allowed to flourish in the Hill district, property values have depreciated greatly. Police repeatedly have refused to 'clean it out.' For almost half a century the Hill district has been neglected.

"Residents here are entitled to the same treatment as other sections of the city. I can name no reason why the district should not receive the same treatment as others from City Council."

I. Leonard Aronson presided at the meeting, which was attended by about 500 persons. He will serve with J. H. Aronson, Frank S. Delp, Morris M. Berger and Jacob Friedman as a board of directors. Other charter members are Morris Glinn, Jacob Schecter, Jacob Weinstein, Louis M. Sachs, Harry Weisman, Jacob Fineberg, Hill Davidson, I. Zalmonovitz, Harry Labovitz, P. A. Katz and Morris Marcus.

CAPPED-AND-GOWNED PROCESSION ACROSS THIEL'S SNOWY CAMPUS AT CONVOCATION

BLAMES GHOST FROM PAST OF WANDERWELL

(Aloha Wanderwell, who, filled with the spirit of adventure and a desire for the far places, has led a life as colorful and filled with strange experiences as that of her murdered husband, has written her life story for Universal Service, the second installment of which is presented herewith.)

By ALOHA WANDERWELL

(Copyright, 1932, by Universal Service and Los Angeles Examiner.)

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 12.—My husband was slain for revenge.

The figure which appeared so suddenly on the deck of the Carma on that foggy night at Long Beach and disappeared so mysteriously was an apparition out of Capt. Wanderwell's past.

Robbery was not the motive for the crime. Anyone who knew Cap at all was aware that he never carried large sums of money.

Anyone at all familiar with our project knew there never was any considerable sum kept on the ship.

Repeatedly I have found myself looking back over our experiences together, hoping to discover somewhere just one little clue that may lead to the apprehension of the murderer.

HOW SHE MET HIM

And invariably I begin by picturing in my mind a 16-year-old girl, strolling down a village street in the South of France, en route home, she believes, but actually starting on a gloriously romantic journey to the four corners of the earth, with the gayest, most gallant adventurer in all the world.

As I walked along that afternoon, I thought I might see something interesting if I passed through the busier part of the town.

Presently, I came to a little theater where I learned from banners and posters that Capt. Walter Wanderwell was lecturing and showing films of his travels in various countries.

At that time Cap was just beginning his automobile tour of the world, which in those days was quite a novelty.

When the show was over, a long line of people waited at the stage door to greet the intrepid captain and I joined them.

Everyone spoke to him in French, so that when it came my turn to shake hands with him I spoke to him in English.

BECAME HIS "SISTER"

He told me he needed a secretary and an interpreter to accompany him on the expedition, and preferred one who would be able to sing a couple of songs at his combined lecture and motion picture show.

I got the job.

Mother had arranged through the English consul that I should become a ward of Capt. Wanderwell and, in turn, she adopted him so that, technically, he became my brother.

That relationship continued for the next three years, three years brimful of joy and romance and adventure, climaxed by our marriage here in California, in Riverside, in 1925.

After a short trip into Italy, we turned north into Switzerland, from there across France to Spain, thence to Belgium, Holland, Germany, Poland and so on into Asia and Asia Minor.

Cap and I have headed many expeditions between that first one on which we were so happy and the last one, which ended so tragically.

But, fundamentally, our rules and methods always were the same.

CAREFUL OF MORALS

For instance, there were 17 of us coming up through South America when we took on Guy and his pretty little wife. But there was never any immorality in our party. Cap always was quite strict about contacts and relationships between the men and women of our expeditions.

The Guys didn't have much money, but I liked her so much I gave her many of my things. It was arranged that she should accompany us to the United States and that Guy should follow when he could.

I have wondered whether or not he conceived the idea we were luring his bride of three months away from him. If so, it was a sad mistake.

Cap was always so strict and careful about matters of that sort that he would never have done such a thing.

He might contrive little schemes to gain some particular end when no one would be injured, but fundamentally, he was the soul of honor.

Tomorrow I shall tell you of a little plot Cap conceived to trap the former Crown Prince of Germany.

AMELIA GIVEN THIEL DEGREE

By AL GOUGH

GREENVILLE, Pa., Dec. 12.—Marriage and aviation share 50-50 in the life of Amelia Earhart Putnam, world-famous aviatrix, to whom a college cap and gown are just as becoming as helmet and goggles.

Honored yesterday by Thiel College, her father's alma mater, the woman who flew the Atlantic alone was the recipient of the honorary degree of doctor of science. The degree was presented by Dr. H. W. Elson, former president of Thiel and classmate of the flier's father.

Of her career, Mrs. Putnam declared:

"Aviation is just as much a woman's job as it is a man's, and I'll admit it is a pretty big one for me, but I still find time to devote to married life. It's about 50-50 — marriage and aviation—and I guess one job is about as big as the other."

In her acceptance of the honors conferred by Thiel Mrs. Putnam spoke of the help a college education gave to conquering seemingly impossible problems in after life and used as an example an experience of her recent trans-Atlantic flight.

Dr. E. Clyde Xander, president of Thiel, introduced Mrs. Putnam and Dr. Elson.

BANK REFORM LAW URGED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Stressing the need for stronger organization and more competent management, F. G. Awalt, acting comptroller of the currency, today renewed recommendations for new banking laws to reduce bank failures.

In his annual report, Awalt said that while in the last eight months there had been an abatement of bank closings, "we cannot escape the fact that the year 1932 has been characterized by a continuation of an alarming number of bank failures and we know that a continued improvement in business and support of credit agencies of the government will not of themselves correct the defects existing in our banking structure or reach the root of so many bank failures."

He asserted that since 1920 65.7 per cent of all suspended banks had capital of less than $50,000 and that failures among them have been at a rate almost as great as that at which they were organized.

He placed the total failures for the first 10 months of this year at 1,199.

World's Champion Weight-Lifter Dies

CINCINNATI, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Henry A. Leussing, 75, who claimed a world weight-lifting record in 1880 when he hoisted 1,384½ pounds, died yesterday of a heart attack in St. Francis de Sales Church, where he was an usher.

His friends say they believe Leussing's record, which drew honors and awards from many parts of the world, still stands. He had been a merchant policeman here for 48 years.

Rubinoff May Try Out Violin of Green Wood

Dave Rubinoff, nationally famed orchestra leader, will be invited to try a hand-made violin constructed of green wood in spite of expert opinions that aged wood produces the sweetest music. The violin will be shown him when he next visits his home here.

Holsing, hard of hearing and a cripple, having lost his left leg in a street car accident in 1912, said he was not a violinist, although he can play "Turkey in the Straw."

A broken violin, said to be 157 years old, was given him by a relative. He had been whittling miniature furniture and thought he would try a violin.

Obtaining some aged spruce, oak, and maple, an old piece of bone, and with penknife, a piece of glass, sandpaper and a small gouge, he started to shape his first violin. It was a success, his cronies said.

Aged wood was too expensive, so green was substituted. The second attempt took two months. He said:

"I will not take $100 for it."

He has started on his third violin.

The first violin will be disposed of, he said, the proceeds to go towards building a home for an aged woman and her daughter, who lost theirs by fire Armistice Day. Eight unemployed men of the community, donating their services, are erecting a three-room frame dwelling.

Mrs. Millie Miseold, 70, and her daughter, Mrs. Erma Cuppar, 32, who were made homeless by the fire, are being cared for by neighbors.

DETROIT MAYOR SEES UPTURN

DETROIT, Dec. 12.—(INS.)—Deploring the sad condition of the unemployed in big American industrial cities, such as Detroit, Mayor Frank Murphy declared in an interview today that unless the situation is rectified "the murmur we now hear may some day grow into a roar."

But he doesn't expect the plight of the unemployed to get that far out of hand. He expressed his confidence that "the creative genius of the American people" will gradually work out the problem—"and before long."

Feelingly, the reddish-haired, keen-eyed Mayor, who for the past two winters battled valiantly for the jobless called attention to the "roving masses" and declared:

"The best relief is permanent relief—getting men back to jobs. The way to win out in this big problem is to stabilize your government, keep it on a sound basis and do the same for private units of business."

POKER PLAYER HELD IN THEFT

Trive Dadasvich, 32, of 3435 Mulberry way, was held for further investigation by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central Police Court today, following charges that he administered a sleeping potion to Joseph Kurifchak, of 1222 Woods Run avenue, during a poker game yesterday morning and robbed him of $90.

Fourteen-year-old Mike Kurifchak, Joseph's son, testified against Dadasvich. Mike, a student at Oliver High School, said he saw Dadasvich and another man searching the elder Kurifchak following an all-night session at cards, that the pair ran from the home when Mike gave the alarm.

Dadasvich was arrested by detectives last night after an automobile chase through the North Side, downtown, Hill District and South Side, during which a companion of Dadasvich's escaped.

Contralto, Basso Win $5,000 Radio Awards

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—The winners of the $5,000 awards in the sixth annual Atwater Kent radio audition were announced today as Miss Lydia Summers, 25, contralto, of New York City, and Wilson Angel, 19, basso, of Winston-Salem, N. C.

Announcement of the awards was made by a board of judges following the appearance of the contestants over a coast-to-coast network last night. The second awards, carrying prizes of $1,000 each, went to Miss Frances De Voice, 23, contralto, of Minneapolis, Minn., and Thomas L. Thomas, 21, baritone, of Scranton, Pa.

FAVOR COUNTY WATER 'GIFT'

A request of the County Commissioners that the city supply free water for North Park was received favorably by all but three members of City Council today after Commissioner William D. Mansfield informed the body the water now available is unfit for use.

Councilmen Robert Garland, P. J. McArdle and Charles Anderson protested. Garland estimated the cost to the city at about $2,100 a year. He said:

"You would be giving away a city commodity. It would be the same as giving the county free coal."

Anderson said the city was "broke," and the county was in a stronger financial position.

Commissioner Mansfield said the water in the park is salty and kills grass. He added the city water would be needed for the proposed new swimming pool, and estimated the amount necessary at 30,000,000 gallons a year.

Mansfield was informed Council favors the proposal and would have an ordinance prepared.

Edison Medal Won By 'Phone, Engineer

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—The Edison medal for 1932 has been awarded to Bancroft Gherardi, of New York and Short Hills, N. J., for telephone engineering, the American Institute of Electrical Engineers announced.

The award was founded by associates and friends of Thomas A. Edison. Gherardi is vice president and chief engineer of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

Church Bandits Take $300 Charity Funds

DETROIT, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Two robbers who mingled with the congregation of the Hungarian Reformed Church yesterday produced pistols when the meeting ended and escaped with the $300 proceeds of a charitable campaign.

Only four officers of the Hungarian Aid Association of America remained in the church when the robbery took place. They had stayed behind to count the money.

Pittsburgh Youth Wins Debate Medal

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Joseph V. Smith, of Pittsburgh, won the Merrick gold medal for debate last night at Georgetown University. Smith debated the negative side of the question of whether the Philippines should be given independence.

BANKER'S WIFE SALVAGES DOLLS

Three hundred and sixty-five dolls—one for every day in the year—are being bundled up to leave the house that has been home to them for 12 months. And if these dolls could talk they would tell some pretty strange tales, stories of having new legs for old strung on their bodies, brunette dolls changed to blondes, new eyes and heads exchanged for old battered and broken ones.

To a doll they would point their doll fingers to Mrs. John E. Potter, wife of the president of the Potter Title and Trust Company, and say:

"She did it."

MOVED BY VISIT

For 20 years Mrs. Potter has been salvaging an arm here and a usable head there and turning out a brand new doll every day in her workroom that has been converted from her son William's former playroom.

It all developed when Mrs. Potter took some toys and books to the Pittsburgh Toy Mission and was moved by the scores of broken dolls that might make some child happy but for the loss of a leg or a head. She set to work, and she's been working ever since.

ONE EACH DAY

As fast as she turns out a revamped doll for her friends to dress in bright new clothes, she receives four or five "veterans" that have lost limbs and eyes in the "battle of play."

But each year as Christmas nears, 365 spic and span dolls are rushed to the Pittsburgh Toy Mission and find new parents among the poor children of Pittsburgh.

Scholarship Winner Gets New Chance

IVAN GETTING

Ivan A. Getting, 20, of 149 North Craig street, has clicked again.

If that means nothing to you, try to remember as far back as June, 1929, when a happy lad of 17 left Schenley High School to take tests for an Edison scholarship to college in competition with 47 other boys.

That was Ivan Getting, graduate of Schenley High, where he had been president of his senior class and winner of the state contest to pick Pennsylvania's representative.

Later, you may recall, Ivan was one of five boys to secure grants of the Edison scholarships. Tests were to find scientific and all-round ability. Purpose was Thomas A. Edison's desire to discover a boy prodigy to carry on where he left off.

Today Getting awaits the outcome of his application for a Rhodes scholarship. He won the right to apply from Massachusetts Institute of Technology in competition with 11 other boys.

McKeesport Man Killed by Truck

George W. Figley, 45, of McKeesport, was dead today at West Jefferson, near Columbus, O., of injuries suffered when he was struck by an automobile truck. Figley fell into the path of the truck when he left his machine to inspect the motor which had developed trouble.

Detroit Man Held In Theft of Shoes

At 4 a. m. today John Naser, 20, arrived from Detroit and an hour later he was a guest of the city. In Morals Court he admitted tossing a brick through a window of Benjamin Barnett's store at 4807 Second avenue and stealing a pair of shoes. He was caught by Patrolman John Killeen. He was held for court.

Pneumonia Fatal To Jail Prisoner

Awaiting grand jury action, Marian White, 32, a Negro, of 416 Jefferson street, North Side, died in the Allegheny County Jail early today of pneumonia. He was held on a felonious assault charge November 18 by Magistrate Thomas D. Jones in Morals Court.

Snake Fare Fatal To China Diplomat

CANTON, China, Dec. 12.—(INS.)—Chu Chao-Hsin, inspector general of foreign affairs in the Canton government, was dead today after eating a dinner the menu for which included snake at naval headquarters.

Officials expressed belief the diplomat died after eating a poisonous bone which had escaped the cook.

Gas Stand Looted, Cafe Worker Robbed

Two bandits who held up Albert Ley, attendant of the Standard Oil Company service station at Frankstown and Lincoln avenues, early today, escaped after locking him in a rear room. Their loot was $25.

Thieves Loot Store Of Air Rifles, Shot

Thieves stole an assortment of merchandise valued at $100 from the hardware store of Sam Dym, 1209 Carson street, after breaking a rear door last night. The loot consisted of six air rifles and ammunition, eight boxes of shotgun shells and two of rifle cartridges, six hair clippers, three electric curling irons, paint brushes, alarm clocks, flashlights, watches and locks.

Stop a COLD the First Day!

This Four-Way Remedy Does It.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine stops a cold quickly because it does the four things necessary. Opens the bowels, kills the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and tones the entire system. Get it today—in the handy, pocket-size box, cellophane-wrapped. Be sure to ask for Grove's Laxative BROMO QUININE. All druggists.

NOW! PILES MEET THEIR WATERLOO!

No more pain! No more itching or scratching! No more torture when you sit or walk! No more torment at the stool! The relief of Piles has now been solved. No matter what the form of Piles you suffer from—painful, itching, bleeding, blind or protruding—genuine relief for you lies in Pazo Ointment.

Pazo not only stops the pain and itching and makes defecation easy, but it tends to correct the condition of Piles as a whole. This is because Pazo is threefold in effect. It is (1) soothing, (2) healing, (3) absorbing. Thus, it not only allays the inflammation and repairs torn tissue, but actually reduces the swollen blood vessels, which are Piles. The method of application makes Pazo doubly effective (see picture below). Thousands say that Pazo is the first real relief they ever got from Piles. Thousands say it saved them the need of a painful operation. Try Pazo yourself and realize from one trial that your days of pile suffering are over. All drug stores sell Pazo in Collapsible Tube with special Pile Pipe, complete for 75c

Perforated Pile Pipe Attached to Collapsible Tube Makes Application Correct and Easy

The PAZO Collapsible Tube and Perforated Pile Pipe makes it very easy to apply the Ointment high up in the rectum where it can reach and thoroughly cover all the affected parts. Complete interior treatment in all cases of Piles is plainly important.

BUYER'S GUIDE AND BUSINESS REVIEW

ICE TO REPORT DEFICIT FOR QUARTER

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—Although tonnage sales of ice during the past year were off only about 12½ per cent, profits of American Ice Company for the 12 months ending December 31, 1932, will show a substantial drop from the $2,831,858 or $3.55 a common share earned last year. Cold weather this fall, and a general tendency toward lower prices are partly responsible for the less favorable showing.

Preliminary estimates, subject to the correction after the year-end results are in for all the divisions of the company, indicate that the last quarter's operations, which usually show a small profit for the common stock, will fail to do so this year, so that the 1932 net will be somewhat under the $1.40 a common share reported for the nine months ended September 30. For the nine months net profit was $1,411,820 against $2,559,273 in the like period of 1931.

DIVIDEND OUTLOOK

American Ice has invested a substantial amount in its new Knickerbocker Laundry plant, which started operations about September 1. This has all been paid for out of earnings, with the result that the company's working capital is again lighter than the management considers desirable.

For this reason it is likely that the quarterly dividend payments, which were reduced to 25 cents in September, will be omitted for a period. Directors will meet about the middle of the month for dividend action. The outlay for construction in 1933 is expected to be small, and this, together with prospective lower depreciation charges and the retention of cash for the common dividend, should build up cash position.

LAUNDRY DOING WELL

The company's officials are encouraged by the initial three months' showing of the new laundry unit which was erected, for the sake of efficiency, in Long Island City adjoining one of its ice manufacturing plants. Business has shown a continuous expansion since the opening, and has exceeded the estimates of the management.

At the end of 1931 American Ice had current assets of $2,862,712 and current liabilities of $1,681,376. Cash at that time amounted to $430,831. This was a considerable improvement over the position at the end of 1930 when current liabilities of $2,976,176, which included cash of $509,228, compared with current liabilities of $2,976,176.

RESEARCH AIDS RUBBER TRADE

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—Constant research by the staffs of many plants is develbping new uses for rubber and making this important raw material a greater aid to industry, according to The Index, published by the New York Trust Company. One of the most notable of these research problems is that of rubber paving, the perfection of which might result in the consumption of a large amount of rubber every year. The publication says:

"Several paving experiments are being conducted in this country at present, and other new uses have been found, such as in mounting automobile engines and in damping vibration in automobile bodies. Novelties are being frequently placed on the market, but none of these yet gives promise of materially increasing the consumption of rubber.

"Probably the greatest potentialities for increased use of rubber are with liquid rubber or latex. Although not required in great quantities as yet, a number of new applications have been discovered, such as in the manufacture of a rubberized thread, textiles, carpets and paper. Experiments are being made to find adequate methods of waterproofing buildings."

There are in the United States today 478 manufacturers making a vast range of rubber articles, and it is estimated that as many as 30,000 different uses for rubber exist. The greater part of the production, however, is by the four companies that make more than two-thirds of the tires and inner tubes manufactured.

Bond Trust Offered To Investing Public

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

NORTH AMERICAN Bond Trust Certificates constitute one of the newer investment mediums of the modified fixed trust type which have been presented to the American public.

Instead of holding stocks in its investment portfolio, as have most previous investment trusts, bonds constitute the sole investment medium. The trust sponsored by Distributors Group, Inc., sponsors of North American Trust Shares, was designed to provide the high degree of stability connected with the better grade bond issues with the advantages of wide diversification.

Only a single class of shares of North American Bond Trust Certificates is outstanding. As additional shares are sold, bonds, meeting specified requirements are deposited with the City Bank Farmers Trust Company, as trustee. The trust is not made up in units but each share, irrespective of the date of issuance, represents an equal undivided equitable interest in the entire deposited property.

* * *

Depositor Has Some Discretion

AS SALES ARE made, additional bonds are purchased for deposit with the trustee. The bonds purchased are limited to obligations of the United States, Canada or certain provinces of Canada, bonds guaranteed by these governments, bonds of corporations doing business in the United States or Canada and equipment trust certificates.

Bonds of railroad and public utility corporations must have earned their fixed charges 1½ times on the average over a specified period—usually five years. Bonds of corporations other than railroads and public utility companies must have earned fixed charges twice over during similar periods. Not more than 2 per cent of the principal amount of the deposited bonds may be the obligation of one corporation. Not more than 10 per cent may be Canadian government or provincial bonds. Bonds of foreign governments, or companies whose business is not principally conducted in the United States or Canada may not be included. United States government bonds may be held in any amount.

* * *

Requirements Not as Rigid as in Old Trusts

IN THIS TYPE of trust provision is made for some discretion in purchasing bonds to be deposited with the trustee. While purchases are limited to securities meeting specified requirements, the depositor may select securities which appear to be selling at particularly advantageous market prices at the time, providing that the holdings of a single issue do not amount to more than 2 per cent of the total holdings.

This is believed to be more satisfactory than the older type of fixed trust in which shares represented proportional interests in identical units, made up of specified quantities of each issue of a given list of securities. This necessitated purchases of small odd lots and often required the purchase of issues which were selling at prices which appeared out of line with the other securities.

In North American Trust Shares, a high degree of liquidity is maintained since holders of shares may receive the liquidating value of their holdings at any time upon the payment of a fee of $2.50 for each certificate.

* * *

Price Is Based On Market Value

THE MARKET PRICE of new certificates sold is based on the value of the underlying portfolio, plus the usual brokerage commissions and a premium of five points per interest. This premium was equivalent to 6.50 per cent of the market value on November 21. An amount for federal and state stamp taxes also is added. The selling price is adjusted to the nearest eighth point.

To provide for operating costs an annual fee of one-quarter of one per cent of the value of the deposited property is deducted daily by the trustee. On November 21 this amounted to 4.34 per cent of the annual income of the trust.

Provision is made to eliminate securities of doubtful prospects. The depositor, which is the originating organization, may certify that a particular security should be sold. The trustee then seeks the advice of an investment councellor. If the councellor agrees the securities must be sold, if the councellor disagrees, the trustee may use its own discretion.

Collector Has Many Amusing Experiences With Folk Who Like Animals

CHAPTER LI.

An animal fan I'll never forget was one I met through an official of the New York Zoological Park, who rightly thought I would find the experience amusing. This chap had made a regular menagerie of his home, a first-class apartment in Greenwich Village. All of its six rooms except one bedroom and the kitchen had been turned over to birds and small animals. Some of these were in cages, others had the run of the apartment. This lover of living creatures had a goodly assortment of specimens, including a young Malayan honey bear, a slow loris, a pair of American skunks with the scent bags removed, a lemur from Madagascar, an ocelot (the spotted cat of Brazil), a half-grown Asiatic porcupine so tame you could play with it without its bristling up its quills, a kangaroo rat from the Arizona plains, several kinds of monkeys, and birds of all sorts.

When you sat down in that apartment the first thing you knew a kinkajou got into your pocket or a marmoset started crawling down your back. A couple of garter snakes and a four-foot boa constrictor crawled about on the floor by way of representing the reptile kingdom.

It was a strange sight. The chap had even converted a large clothes closet into a breeding place for meal worms that he fed some of the birds and smaller animals.

A BIT FANATICAL

This fan of fans lived mainly for his specimens. He and his wife, to whom he had communicated an enthusiasm comparable to his own, were as devoted to the creatures as though they were their own children.

They didn't seem to realize that their miniature zoo had spread all over the premises until it had left them for living quarters with nothing but the smallest and least comfortable room in the place. They eagerly told me—evidently feeling that they acquired merit in doing so—that while they were interested in the theater they had not seen a play in over a year. They did not feel that they could safely leave their specimens long enough to do so.

No one is more devoted to animals and birds than I am, but there is such a thing as being a bit fanatical about a hobby. When faced by such overemphasis one wonders whether the people involved aren't slightly cuckoo.

Another animal fan I'll never forget was one who, having read an interview with me in a San Francisco newspaper in which I mentioned the binturong, decided that he simply had to have one. This animal—a woolly-haired combination of bear and cat—fascinated him, and, by sending me a letter in which he mentioned a good Pacific Coast friend of mine, he succeeded in selling me the idea that I ought to get him one on my next trip.

MAN IS UNGRATEFUL

I usually ignore such letters—having confined myself to filling the orders of the big zoos and circuses—but this time I made an exception. I went out of my way to land the binturong, making a side trip to Djambi that my itinerary did not call for, solely to please the friend this enthusiast had named in his letter.

Having landed the binturong, I sent its future owner a brief note telling him when I would arrive in San Francisco from my Asiatic travels and suggesting that he be on hand at the dock to pick up his pet.

By the time I started unloading the big collection I brought back with me on this trip, I had forgotten all about the binturong and the chap who had ordered it. I was forcibly reminded of the person, however, when he rushed up to me while I was engaged in the sizeable task of clearing my many specimens through the customs, and announced with choler that the binturong had bitten him. I had brought him a vicious animal, and he would have none of it!

It seems that this chap had located the animal on the dock and had stuck his hand in the cage. The normally harmless little creature, made nervous by the exciting process of unloading, had snapped at the hand that strove to pet it.

The resultant bite was little more than a scratch, but that didn't prevent this misguided nuisance, who had forced his order on me in the first place, from vowing that he would get even with me! If I thought he was going to accept a ferocious animal like that, I was mistaken.

I washed the fellow's hand with an antiseptic and tried to calm him down. I was much too busy to spend my time arguing with the pest, and my one aim was to get rid of him as quickly as possible.

OFFERED RACCOON

I sent him off, telling him not to worry about the binturong, that I would have no trouble disposing of it. "You ought to be arrested if you try to palm off anything as vicious as that!" was his parting shot.

A few days later the sap filed suit against me! However, when I gave his lawyer the facts the suit was quickly withdrawn.

A more amusing animal fan was the chap who called on me at my hotel with a raccoon that he wanted to sell me. "I've been reading about your work, Mr. Buck," he said. "That shipment you just brought to America sounds great. But you seem to go in for nothing but foreign animals. You ought to start collecting American specimens, too."

At first I thought it was all a practical joke, but it developed that the chap was in earnest. He'd let me have the raccoon cheap, he assured me. And I could see for myself, he earnestly went on, what a fine specimen it was. Tame as could be, playful, etc. I could have the animal for $15—and wasn't that a bargain? It developed into quite an impassioned sales talk.

I sent him on his way with a few words on the folly of parting with so fine a pet. After all, I pointed out, I had had little to do with American animals for years, and I probably wouldn't know what to do with a raccoon. He kindly volunteered to teach me how to handle it, but by this time I had the nut as far as the door and it was not difficult to ease him out.

Another time I was on the dock at San Francisco, clearing a shipment of over 10,000 birds through the customs, when a woman rushed up to me and exclaimed, "So this is Mr. Buck, is it? The very man I want to see!"

WANTED MONEY BACK

Then, before I knew what it was all about, she thrust a birdcage in my face, "So that's a whistling thrush, is it? Well, try to make it whistle!"

It seems that the woman had purchased a Himalayan whistling thrush at Sullivan's, a local pet shop. One day, without warning, the bird decided to stop whistling. No amount of coaxing could make it change its mind. It had given up music forever.

The woman took the bird back to Sullivan's and asked for a refund of the purchase price. As she had bought the bird some time before, Proprietor Johnny Sullivan thought this wasn't quite fair.

Johnny, who's a fair wag, thought it would be fun to blame it all on me. "It's Frank Buck's fault," he said. "He's the bird and animal man who sells me lots of my stock. I bought the bird of him. Let's wait until he returns to San Francisco and we'll make him make good."

The San Francisco papers always carry stories about my arrival with collections of animals and birds. This woman, reading that I was in town, decided to pay me a visit. She put in an appearance on the second day of my checkup with the customs authorities.

"Make it whistle!" she yelled, placing the cage at my feet. "Make it whistle or give me my money back."

"Madam," I said, "I'm afraid I can't do anything for you. And now, if you don't mind, I'll continue checking these birds of mine through the customs."

"I hope they aren't fakes like mine!" she screamed.

MANY REAL FANCIERS

Then, appealing to the revenue man, she added, "This man sold me a fake bird."

The customs man, amused by the situation, peered into the cage and said, "Fake? It looks real. I can see it moving."

I finally got rid of the lady, but it was not an easy job.

To this day I'm not sure it wasn't all a practical joke perpetrated by the fun-loving Sullivan.

Having told you about some of the more outlandish fans, let me add that there are a great many people in the United States who possess a deep and understanding love of birds and animals. The annual pet show at Madison Square Garden in New York is a good example of what I mean. Here thousands of pets of all kinds are intelligently exhibited, and the pleasure given to countless children and grownups is as warming a sight as I've ever seen.

My favorite animal fan still is the little girl who, surveying a baby elephant I had on display in that show—a little 300-pound creature 2 feet 10 inches high, which made it the smallest elephant in the world—remarked, "I'd like to take the el'funt home, but I guess I won't cuz when it started to grow up and get big, how would I ever get it out of the house?"

COURTS CLEAR INCOME TAX QUESTION

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—Gain or loss on a short sale is to be determined, for income tax purposes, by matching the short sale price with the cost of the particular covering purchase, even though the taxpayer at the same time maintains with the same broker a margin account containing similar shares previously purchased, under an important decision just announced by the United States Board of Tax Appeals, according to J. S. Seidman, tax expert of Seidman & Seidman, certified public accountants.

This decision clears up a point about which there has been considerable doubt. It validates the contention that a taxpayer can establish a short position in a stock in which he has at the same time a long position, without being required to apply one against the other, or to report the profit or loss that would result from such application. It also establishes that the short position can be separately covered, or the long position separately liquidated, without reference to each other for tax purposes.

The importance of the decision is reflected in the facts of the case that gave rise to the ruling, according to Mr. Seidman. The taxpayer (R. W. Bingham) had bought more than 1,000 shares of Victor Talking Machine stock in 1927 through his brokers. In 1928 he sold short, through the same brokers, 1,000 shares of the same stock. Later in 1928, without disturbing his long position, he covered the 1,000 shares of short stock by a purchase which, when compared with the short sale price, showed a profit of $18,000. The Government contended that the profit was approximately $100,000, arrived at by comparing the short sale price with the cost of 1,000 shares bought in 1927 for the long account. The Board sustained the taxpayer's position, saying that the longs and shorts are to be treated separately.

CANADA COPPER COSTS LOW

OTTAWA, Ontario, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Canada can produce 194,000 short tons of copper annually at a cost of 5 cents a pound or under, James Y. Murdoch, president of Noranda Mines, declared in a speech here. He described the development of the Noranda and then turned to the world copper situation.

The present world consumption of copper, Murdoch said, is about 65,000 long tons per month, and present world capacity 290,000 long tons per month, but of Canada's capacity it is estimated that more than 73 per cent, or 194,000 short tons annually, can be produced at a cost of 5 cents per pound or under. Canada can produce about one-quarter of the copper producable at the 5-cent figure or under, Mexico, South America and Africa making up the remainder. Foreign consumption of copper, apart from the United States, for 1932 is estimated at 700,000 tons and the highest it has ever been is 1,250,000 tons, figures which the speaker thought indicated relative stability in the foreign markets compared with some other commodities.

TRADE WRITERS FORECAST GAIN

BOULDER, Col., Dec. 11.—(AP.)—John T. Bartlett, of Boulder, secretary of the National Association of Business Writers, said in announcing results of the annual mail election of officers here, that members almost unanimously forecast economic improvement for 1933. He said:

"Our membership is convinced that the low point in the depression was passed last summer and that, while the upward movement will be irregular, it will have assumed such proportions by fall of next year that unemployment will have markedly decreased."

New officers of the association were announced by Bartlett as follows: R. A. Sullivan, New Orleans, president; Charles N. Tunnell, Houston, Tex., vice president; Ernest A. Dench, Hohokus, N. J.; William J. Hirsch, Rahway, N. J.; Edward Salt, Youngstown, O., and Frank H. Madison, Kilbourne, Ill., directors.

Reader Advises Not to Let Career Wreck Marriage

Or should she ditch the career, go to the country with him and raise a family?

That was the question Louise couldn't quite settle. She couldn't have both. The career was messing up her marriage, and she really did want the family. But a family was impossible, she knew, in a two-by-four city apartment, without much money. In the country there'd be a chance for the babies. But there'd be no Big Future, no more parties, no more silk what-you-may-call-'ems—and plenty of work. Should she go?

"You're crazy if you do!" snorted her lady boss. "What's a mere marriage, compared to what you can have if you stay here?"

"Go!" says Thelma, who doesn't think much of the lady boss.

SAME CIRCUMSTANCES

Dear Elsie:

I've just read Louise's letter, and I wonder if I may say a few words to her.

My dear, go on and go to the country. Have that family you want. That boss of yours is positively inhuman. Maybe marriage and children don't mean a thing to her, stacked up against her "independence"—but what does it mean to you? From your letter, I think it means plenty.

Of course I know that making a big success for yourself looks fine, too, but will it satisfy your heart as well as your pride? I'm afraid it won't. It wouldn't with me, and I think you and I are a good deal alike.

You say your husband is quiet, and you can't get him interested in your friends, and he seems to think he is "standing in your way." Well, there is another parallel. I have a husband who was like that, too—so long as we were in town. He would come home and read the paper and hardly talk to me. I got so sick of it that I didn't know what to do. We were both working, and I had a very good job that promised to be better. I didn't especially want to give it up any more than you do.

MADE NEW START

But I sat down one day and did some serious thinking. I asked myself just what I did think about it all. Was I willing to go on alone, successful maybe, but alone?

I decided that I would rather make every effort to make a success of my marriage. I decided that a job wasn't enough for me—and that I would try to find out just why my husband seemed so sort of lifeless. So we talked it all over. I told him that I couldn't stand going on like we were, growing apart, getting so we hardly spoke to each other, and I asked him for suggestions.

Well, the upshot of that was that we decided to make a new start. We found a little ranch, close enough for him to go to his work. And I gave up my job and went in for a garden. We saved money. He found he liked to tinker in the garden, too. Really, I was astonished. He seemed like a new man. And just a year after we moved, our first little boy came. That was seven years ago.

HAPPY NOW

He has given up his city job now, and we have a bigger place, and three youngsters. We are both crazy about them, and about each other. We have had time to get to really know each other. We have found something we are both interested in.

For the first time, we are really happy. We work hard, but we go out sometimes—together now. We have friends visit us, and he proudly shows them over the place.

So don't let that woman talk you into smashing up your marriage, honey. Take that chance, and go out where that family you want can be yours. I am sure you will never regret it. I haven't. Let someone else have the lonely glory if they want it. I don't think it would make you happy.

To live a full, human life, is more important than having a fat pay envelope and being a "lone wolf." THELMA.

That's a great letter, my dear, and here's my hand to you! You're regular! And you have handled that life of yours with wisdom and spunk. I know you're one of those wives whose husband calls her blessed. And whose own life is full, of the things that really count.

One Friend Worth Shoal of Admirers, Fay King Warns

ONE CAN SEE THAT SHE IS CONTENTED
TOO OFTEN THOSE WHO ARE SUPPOSED TO BE SO HAPPY DO NOT ADDIE IT.
SHE WOULD NOT CHANGE WITH SOME WHO IMAGINE SHE ENVIES THEM.
FAY KING

By FAY KING

The beauty who finds herself surrounded by many devoted admirers may think herself greatly envied by the girl who has only one beau, and he not rich or famous.

But the only man any girl is really happy with is the one she loves. Since all others must be more or less of a bore, the fewer of them the better, she thinks.

As for rushing around to expensive places, she doesn't much envy that, either. For when two are content, even three can be a crowd.

Madge's Father Gets Clue From Grocery Boy

Dr. Barnes' eyes were suddenly filled with comprehension as my father asked him if his people were familiar with the faces of the various delivery men coming to Whitney Hall; but without comment he answered:

"They know everyone coming here."

"Will you arrange at once, then, to have some trusted person on your staff at hand when all deliveries are made, so that if any strange face appears the man may be detained on some pretext, until I get a chance to look at him and set the man I have brought with me on his trail?"

"I will give those orders at once," Dr. Barnes said rising, and my father smiled suddenly.

"You are a man after my own heart," he said. "You do not ask unnecessary questions. Yes, I have one of my most trusted operatives with me, although you have not seen him. He is asleep in the back of the car, so camouflaged with blankets and apparent luggage—empty pasteboard boxes really—that no one will notice him. I'll rout him out when he is needed. He can get into action without a minute's loss. We both snatched breakfast on the way down, so we're ready for anything."

Dr. Barnes was at the door before my father had finished speaking, and at the last word he nodded and disappeared through it. He returned a few minutes later with the report that any stranger coming to either entrance of the school upon any errand would be detained for questioning by some plausible pretext.

INDUCED TO REST

"Then there's nothing to do now but wait," my father said. "Do you mind an old campaigner taking forty winks in this easy chair?"

"If you prefer it to a couch, certainly not," Dr. Barnes answered, with an absence of fussiness that I knew would meet with my father's utmost approval.

"What about you, daughter?" My father looked steadily at me, and I suddenly understood one reason for his "forty winks."

"Please don't ask me to go away and lie down," I pleaded. "I—I must be here."

"Why not lie down here?" Mrs. Barnes who had come back into the room, was at the wide couch as she spoke, beating up one of the comfortable-looking pillows. "You'll be right at the core of things, and if you should drop off to sleep, which I doubt, I will give you my personal and solemn promise to waken you if anything new develops."

"Or if Mrs. Underwood should need me?" I stipulated.

"That also," she nodded. 'Come, let me tuck you in."

She led me to the couch, and when I had stretched myself out upon it she quickly stooped to my shoes and had them off before I could protest.

"Now turn your face to the wall and rest," she commanded, and I obeyed her so literally that I must have dropped into exhausted sleep almost as soon as my head fitted into the pillow.

But I must have been subconsciously watchful, for a light tap on the door wakened me, and the low but excited voice of Lucy, the most trusted helper of the mistress of Whitney Hall, brought me to a sitting posture.

NOTE IS FOUND

"There's something in the kitchen. Will you come?" she said.

"A strange delivery man, Lucy?" her mistress queried. "If so, this gentleman—"

"No, Mrs. Barnes, no stranger," the girl answered quickly. "But they've just found a note pinned to the paper around—"

"Just a second," my father interrupted authoritatively. "Will you please have that entire basket or box of foodstuff, or whatever it is, brought to me here, together with the person who discovered it."

"Rose found it," we heard Lucy saying, as without further comment Mrs. Barnes hurried out of the room with her.

When Rose, wide-eyed and trembling, came into the room a few minutes later, Mrs. Barnes appealed quickly to my father.

"Rose fears that because she found the note, and brought me the story from her neighbor last night, you may think she knows something she shouldn't about this affair," she said. "I have told her that you will understand, and that I will vouch for her. I have known her since she was a little girl."

My father had been scrutinizing the girl keenly since her entrance, and I knew that he was not depending absolutely upon Mrs. Barnes' tribute. But when he smiled at the girl, I knew that he believed in her.

"Don't be afraid, Rose," he said winningly. "You're not suspected of anything. Instead, you may be the means of finding the girls. Tell me all about this."

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Note of Thanks

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—I am a member of the Order of the Eastern Star, and the young lady who is to be our presiding officer next year has asked me to be one of her officers. On the night of the installation, the officers usually receive quite a few gifts from their friends. Will you be so kind as to tell me how the thank-you notes for these presents should be worded?

2—Written notes are more appropriate than thank-you cards, are they not? G.

1—Besides thanking the givers at the time when the gifts are handed to you . . . if this is the custom . . . you should write gracious notes of appreciation the next day, if possible, or at least as soon as you possibly can.

Something like this:

Dear Grace:

How very kind you were to give me such a beautiful gift to celebrate the installation! Thank you, with all my heart, for your goodness and your generous thoughtfulness.

The portfolio is a beauty . . . and HOW I have always wanted one. It is just the kind, too, that I wanted, just the color and just the size. I can't tell you how often I need one, and I shall bless you and thank you every time that I use it.

I hope that I am to see you very soon, to tell you again personally how deeply grateful I am to you for your sweet thought and for your lovely friendship.

Devotedly,

2—Our note of thanks must be written by ourselves. We mustn't ever use the ready-made thank-you cards.

Contract Bridge

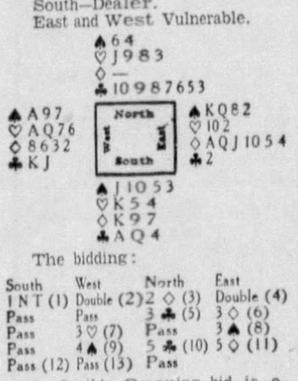
HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

An Unusual Psychic Result

It is somewhat out of the ordinary when an Opening psychic bid, coupled with an attempted sacrifice bid, literally drives the opposition at the Contract table into the best contract for their combined hands. However, the unusual has a way of happening very often in Bridge, and the hand below, which was played at Crockford's Club in New York, presented an opportunity for some excellent card reading and accurate drawing of inferences during the bidding. The hand was played in a Rubber game.

South—Dealer.
East and West Vulnerable.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 N T (1)	Double (2)	2 ◇ (3)	Double (4)
Pass	Pass	3 ♣ (5)	3 ◇ (6)
Pass	3 ♡ (7)	Pass	3 ♠ (8)
Pass	4 ♠ (9)	5 ♣ (10)	5 ◇ (11)
Pass (12)	Pass (13)	Pass

2—Not a very good Takeout Double, particularly when vulnerable. The hand barely contains 3 honor-tricks and is not well prepared for a weak spade response.

3—With a trickless hand, but a seven-card suit as an escape. North hopes to prevent his opponents from contracting for game by bidding the suit he most greatly fears.

4—Naturally, East doubles for penalties.

5—North rescues himself.

6—East discloses the psychic Takeout.

7—West, of course, must respond, as the diamond bid is now Forcing.

8—East infers that West's Double indicates ability to play the hand at spades. He therefore now bids his four-card major suit.

9—Again West's response is forced.

10—An attempted sacrifice.

11—East reasons that the penalty may not be sufficient to offset what he believes to be a certain game.

12—A wise pass.

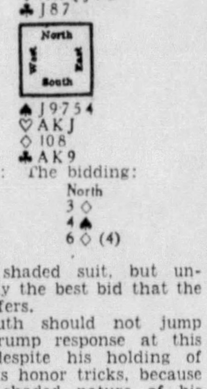
13—West correctly reads his partner as holding at least five diamonds and four spades. He therefore passes the game contract.

There is nothing to the play of the hand, which was made extremely simple by the opening of the club Ace. However, in any event, the heart finesse would have succeeded and permitted the fulfillment of the contract.

TODAY'S QUESTION

What is the correct bidding of the following hands?

South—Dealer.



Answer: The bidding:

South	North
1 ♠ (1)	3 ◇
3 N T (2)	4 ♠
4 N T (3)	6 ◇ (4)
Pass

1—A shaded suit, but undoubtedly the best bid that the hand offers.

2—South should not jump the notrump response at this stage, despite his holding of four plus honor tricks, because of the shaded nature of his Opening bid.

3—Now showing the additional honor strength.

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

Irish Again Show Flaws. Colgate's Rare Attack.
Hitters Hard to Figure. Waddell Loss to Grid.
Decision Soon for Bucs. Kayo of Fuller Seen.

FASTER THINKING EARNS TROY VICTORY

COMPARISONS OF THE teams and individual players shows there was little or nothing to choose between Southern California and Notre Dame in mechanical football ability. There was no such difference from that angle as the two touchdowns by which the Trojans won. But there is no doubt as to which was the better team above the ears. Howard Jones did another fine coaching job with a great team to have it just right mentally for its hardest test of the season. It was because they were smarter, more alert and the better opportunists that the coast stars won a cleanly cut victory that was fairly earned and well deserved.

Howard Jones

At times it looked as though Notre Dame wasn't doing even ordinary thinking. And again the Irish lacked a punch near the goal line. They were not new faults. Except in the victory over Army, there has been something lacking from Notre Dame's game all season. But that takes none of the glory from Southern California's victory. The Trojans deserved to profit by their ability to take advantage of Notre Dame's slow thinking. You don't have to look for the reasons behind any victory when a team has won 19 straight. It must have been playing the better football.

IT IS MAINLY in the hitting department that young baseball players brought up to the majors from the minors are viewed with doubt. The popular belief is that a club seeking new offensive strength ought to go after a proved hitter on some other team in the big show rather than gamble on a rookie from the sticks.

Yet that doesn't always turn out to be the wiser course. Established big leaguers sometimes are gambles, too. There's a question of luck in dealing with old timers, and you can't tell what you're going to draw any more than you can in taking a chance with a rookie.

THE BRAVES SAW that demonstrated both ways last season. Fred Leach was obtained from the Giants on the strength of an all-time major league batting average of .311, but the best he could do for the Boston club was to hit .243.

On the other hand, Bill Urbanski, from the minors, hit better than the Hub officials had expected, and probably would have finished in the .300 class but for an injury that handicaped him.

THE NEXT DAY or two ought to determine whether or not the Pittsburgh lineup is to be graced in 1933 by the presence of Freddie Lindstrom or any of the other players for whom the Pirate management has been angling. The gathering of all the major league club heads in New York will afford an opportunity for a showdown. Possibly, if the Giant officials discover that no other club is willing to give more for Lindstrom than the Bucs offered, they will consent to accept one of Pittsburgh's bids in preference to being forced to retain a dissatisfied player. If not, the Pirate lineup will be stronger without Lindstrom than it would be if he were obtained at the sacrifice of any of the more valuable regulars New York has been demanding in exchange for him.

Charley Grimm

EVEN IF HE doesn't succeed in making another deal, Charley Grimm believes the acquisition of Babe Herman will go far toward enabling the Cubs to pull a pennant repeater. Grimm says the Chicago club has waited years for a heavy-hitting left-hand batter.

"Herman may miss one in the field now and then," remarks the boss of the Bears, "but he can also ride the ball out of the park, and what this team needed many a time in the last pennant race and the world series was a home-run drive. Our park will help Herman, and he is bound to help us."

THOUGH THE FACT that they had not been scored on caused more comment about the Colgate Red Raiders at the close of the football season than other features of their record, the attack was the side that impressed veteran observers.

The most startling offensive maneuver, in the opinion of Harry Salsinger, was a fourth-down play that scored one of the two touchdowns made against New York U. Three preliminary plays were used to set the stage for this final thrust goalward.

COLGATE LINED UP in double wingback formation. Quarterback Soleau was directly behind the center, Ask was the right wing, Samuels the left, and Rowe was in the fullback position. The ball was snapped to Soleau, who went three yards to his right. Ask came around to his left. Soleau handed the ball to Ask, who continued toward his left end, with Rowe running abreast of him to the outside. The New York right end had tried to come in to stop the play behind the line, but was blocked off by Samuels. Ask, as he reached the scrimmage line, made a lateral pass to Rowe and went ahead as interferer. Smith, Colgate's running guard, came out of the line and started down the field, apparently to make interference for Rowe, who was sprinting down the sideline with the ball. Smith was running half a dozen yards to Rowe's right. Two of the New York secondary, still free, were heading off Rowe. Just as they closed in on Rowe, the latter made a lateral pass to Smith, who continued unmolested on his way.

THE FACT THAT Bob Waddell's resignation as football coach at Carnegie Tech had been expected did not lessen the regret with which it was received by gridiron followers in general. In 12 seasons here he proved himself an able coach and a fine sportsman, and his retirement is a heavy loss not only to Carnegie, but to football.

It is not improbable that Judge W. P. Steffen also plans an early withdrawal as advisory coach, unless prevailed upon to serve another season to "break in" Waddell's successor. As to the identity of that successor, Howard Harpster, now coach at Geneva, looks like the best guess.

LUKE CARNEY, manager of Eddie Zivic, the fourth fighting brother to come out of that family, writes that local boxing fans should not fail to get an eyeful of Eddie when the latter appears in his sixth professional bout at the hometalent four-round show tomorrow night at the Arena.

Jimmy McLarnin

Carney declares the fourth Zivic is on his way up and is one of the best lightweight prospects in the region. Luke sees the day coming when the name of Zivic will again be a drawing card around here as it was in the time of Jack and Pete.

THE LAST TIME Jimmy McLarnin visited the East he put an end to Benny Leonard's attempted comeback by stopping the former lightweight champion in six rounds. Sammy Fuller, whom McLarnin is to meet in New York next Friday night, figures to be a tougher customer than was the aged Leonard, yet Pop Foster, Jimmy's manager, predicts that if Fuller will mix and make a fight of it Sammy will be put away in even faster time. Foster points out that Leonard was strictly on the defensive, and that it is no easy matter to stop a smart old fighter who goes into a shell and leaves only elbows and the top of his head for targets.

BOB WADDELL RESIGNS AS GRID CHIEF

By JESS CARVER

They'll be a' picking a new football coach at Carnegie Tech next week and, from the batch of applications already on hand and the even greater number due to arrive, the athletic council will have a job on its hands.

Up until last night, Tech had a head coach, but, with little or no warning, Bob Waddell, who has been coaching at Tech since 1920, save for a single season spent at Bucknell, announced that he was through and that he'd devote his time in the future to his insurance business.

With the keenest regret, Graduate Manager of Athletics Buddy Overend accepted Bob's resignation and praised to the skies the departing coach.

STEFFEN IN DOUBT

The resignation of Waddell leaves the status of Judge Walter P. Steffen, who has been both head and advisory coach at Tech, somewhat up in the air. The situation likely will be taken up at the same meeting of the athletic council that selects Waddell's successor. The judge has been threatening to retire for the past four years.

The Tech authorities are silent as mummies when it comes to commenting on a likely successor to Waddell, though it is known that Howard Harpster, former all-America quarterback at Carnegie; Al Irwin, present assistant coach and assistant graduate manager and former Plaid center, and Harry Stuhldreher, quarterback of the famous Four Horseman of Notre Dame, who's contract at Villanova ran out this year, are being considered.

HARPSTER IN LINE

If it is decided to install the graduate coaching system, as has met with such success at Pitt and Notre Dame, Harpster may be placed at the head of the list of possibilities. In fact, by many observers, he is considered already "in."

It was with regret that Waddell resigned. He said:

"My relations at Tech could not have been pleasanter and it is only the fact that the hours of coaching, and the trips necessitated by such work have interfered with my insurance work that I am forced to take this step.

"I have found nothing but the finest co-operation from all my associates at Tech. And while I will no longer be connected officially with the team I know that I will be in the role of a special kind of alumnus of the Carnegie school.

"It is not without a keen regret that a man leaves a post he has held, barring one break of a year, since 1920.

"I will follow the fortunes of the team closely and if at any time I can be of assistance, either in an advisory capacity to my successor or possibly as a scout, I will be only too glad to help out."

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF LAST SATURDAY: RAINING SALT—One warm spring afternoon in April, 1909, residents of the small village of Sunset, Utah, were astounded to see the vicinity visited by a salt-rain, a phenomenon which occurs at intervals of about 20 years. Though the exact reason for such a unique downpour is not known, it probably is the result of wind storms blowing up salt dust around the shores of Great Salt Lake. The dust is carried into the heavy clouds over the towns at the foot of the Wasatch mountains, and precipitated to earth again in the rainstorms.

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

Here it is late in December and the indoor boxing season half over and Motor Square Garden staging only its fifth show tonight.

Herrera is an old story here, a popular figure and generally a winner. Falco recently made his first local appearance at the Arena to win over Johnny Datto, the Filipino. They are two of the best young lightweights in the game.

PROTEGE OF ENGEL

Here with Falco is George Engel, who left a job at the Westinghouse to lead Frank Klaus, of Braddock, to the middleweight championship of the world. Later he handled the late Harry Greb when the latter held the same title and was the outstanding fighter ever developed here.

Engel has aged somewhat. He no longer is the chipper young fellow he was. But he's added to his ring lore in the interim. During a long sojourn in New York, he has been associated with Benny Leonard, Gene Tunney and other topnotchers. In the beginning, he was a fighter, then he became a manager and trainer and matchmaker. Now he's back at managing, and in young Falco he believes he has a future champion.

REMINDER OF MADOLE

Falco started out as an amateur sensation in Philadelphia and then turned professional as a stablemate of Benny Bass, the former featherweight champion. He felt he could beat Bass and was being held back by his association with Benny. He challenged for a fight, discovered his mistake when he was beaten and broke away from his manager, Phil Glassman, to go with Engel. He has had several bouts under Engel's wing and has won all of them. If he gets safely past Herrera tonight, he will have arrived somewhere.

Engel says Falco is a natural boxer and fighter and reminds him not a little of Frankie Madole, the East Pittsburgh lightweight, who was a contemporary of Klaus and accompanied Frank and Engel on an invasion of European rings two decades ago.

ALVIS WITH HERRERA

Ray Alvis, of Chicago, as shrewd a manager as there is in boxing, is here with Herrera. He recognizes the importance of tonight's test. He probably will remain over until after his Jack King boxes Ted Yarosz in their return bout at the Arena, on the North Side, Friday night.

Matchmaker Jules Beck, of the Garden, has backed up his main event well to lure in the long-absent customers. In the eight-round semi-final, he has Frankie Bojarski, of Erie, and Sid Silas, local welterweight, formerly of New York. Silas recently lost an eight-rounder to Bojarski while ill in the same ring. Pee Wee Jarrell, of Terre Haute, Ind., the super-showman of the ring, boxes Freddie Edwards, tough stablemate of Yarosz, in the second bout, and Johnny Riske, of the South Hills, and Bearcat Jones, East End Negro middleweight, are in the opener, scheduled for 8:30 o'clock.

Between Rounds

The preliminaries in the Greater Pittsburgh amateur boxing tournament are scheduled in the McKeesport arena tonight, with the finals following on Thursday, if it is possible to weed out the large field that fast.

Patsy Hennigan, Clairton lightweight, wonders why he isn't being given some work by the local matchmakers. He is a youngster with a real punch.

Joe Marcus, Braddock lightweight, says, believe it or not, he doesn't care if he never gets a match with Pee Wee Jarrell, but he is out with a challenge to the winner of tonight's Tony Herrera-Tony Falco bout.

Ted Yarosz, barred by the N. B. A., for refusing to go through with a match against Pantie Walker in Detroit last Friday night when he was suffering from a cold, resumes training today for his bout with Jack King at the Arena on Friday night.

Two changes have been made in the card of four 10-rounders at the Arena tomorrow night, Jack Snyder taking the place of Bearcat Jones against Bill Nichy and Johnny Woods replacing Nat Litfin against Shorty Wahlco. Eddie Zivic and U. S. Carpentier box the main bout.

SPARTANS TIED BY BEARS

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—The Portsmouth Spartans and the Chicago Bears will play off at Chicago next Sunday for the National Professional Football League championship.

Beating the Green Bay Packers, 9-0, in a crucial game at Chicago yesterday, the Bears wound up the regular season in a tie for first place with the Spartans, thus necessitating a playoff.

Battling furiously in a snowstorm, the Bears and Packers played through three scoreless periods before the Bears finally broke through. Recovering a Packer fumble in the final period, the Bears, with Bronko Nagurski leading the charge, plowed through to the five-yard line. Here Green Bay held and on fourth down, Paul Engebretsen fell back and place-kicked a field goal from the 13-yard line.

Toward the close of the period, Nagurski definitely clinched the victory, sprinting 56 yards to a touchdown. Red Grange missed the boot for extra point.

Club	W.	L.	Tied	Pct.
Portsmouth	6	1	4	.857
Chicago Bears	6	1	6	.857
Green Bay	10	3	1	.767
Boston	4	4	2	.500
New York	4	6	2	.400
Brooklyn	3	9	0	.250
Chicago Cardinals	2	6	0	.250

Penn-Ohio League Set to Lift Lid

BUTLER, Pa., Dec. 12. — The Penn-Ohio Basketball League will open its season this week with 16 teams entered. St. Stans, of Youngstown, and the Ellwood City Merchants were admitted to the League at a meeting in New Castle yesterday. The schedule for this week:

December 15—Sharon at Beaver Falls; St. Stans at Farrell.

FOUR CUEISTS UNBEATEN

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—The national pocket billiard championship tournament entered its second week today with four of the 10 contenders still unbeaten.

Heading the undefeated brigade was the defending champion, Ralph Greenleaf, of New York. The champion had won three successive matches as had young Jimmy Caras, of Wilmington, Del.; Erwin Rudolph, of Cleveland, and Pasquale Natalie, of Chicago.

Trailing the leaders were Andrew Ponzi, of Philadelphia, with two victories in three starts; Benny Allen, of Kansas City, with an even break in four games, and Frank Taberski, of Schenectady, N. Y., who had won one game and lost three. George Kelley, of Philadelphia; James Mills, of San Jose, Cal., and Walter Franklin, of Kansas City, all were seeking their first victories.

Allen sprang the biggest surprise of the tournament when he handed Ponzi, previously picked to dethrone Greenleaf, a 125 to 85 beating last night. Ponzi, in his first two tests, had set a tournament high run record of 72, and contributed the best game as well when he ran out on Taberski in four innings. He could not get his game to click last night until Allen had pulled into a tremendous lead. Ponzi trailed by nearly 100 points at the end of the seventeenth inning, but rallied to run 25 in the eighteenth and 50 in the nineteenth. Seeing victory slipping from his graps, Allen promptly ran 12 in the twentieth inning for match.

ORIOLES VICTORS

BALTIMORE, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—The Baltimore Orioles opened their home schedule in the Tri-state Amateur Ice Hockey League last night by defeating the Philadelphia Comets, 5 to 0. The locals scored once in the first period, and twice in each of the other two.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Pitt, 12; Notre Dame, 0. . . . Southern California, 13; Notre Dame, 0. . . . Pitt, ?; Southern California, ?. . . . Just one point difference between the rivals in the Tournament of Roses game in their battles with a common enemy. . . . But, as might be remarked—that's just the POINT!

The Dickinson point system makes Michigan the national football champion for the year . . . It doesn't take into consideration post-season games . . . That's why the Pitt-Southern California game doesn't count . . . They're playing for nothing aside from the gate receipts . . . But, then, maybe they'd rather have the gate receipts.

Seventeen hundred folks brave the elements to see the North play the South in an all-star game at Baltimore . . . For virtually no gate receipts and a huge deficit for the City of Baltimore . . . The South wins, 7 to 6, both teams scoring on "breaks." . . . Yet both teams can complain they didn't get a break.

The all-America hemmorhage now is over . . . And it's safe for Santa Claus to come down the chimney . . . To a lot of empty stockings . . . Jock Sutherland, the Pitt coach, hopes the bewhiskered gent will bring him a tough schedule for next fall . . . No more setups for Jock . . . All they get a fellow is more grief in the way of a Rose Bowl battle with a football team . . . Fats Heller, of Pitt, will find the Rose Bowl game a soft touch compared with the banquets he'd have to attend as an all-American if he remained at home.

The day's best bet: . . . A fellow named Tony will win the windup at Motor Square Garden tonight . . . He can't miss . . . They're saying Jimmy McLarnin is all washed up and figures to lose to Sammy Fuller in their bout in New York's Madison Square Garden, Friday night, because he didn't show much in stopping Benny Leonard his last time out and it's been a long time between fights for him.

According to Andy Kerr, the Colgate coach, Bill Amos, of W. & J., was the greatest player he ever coached . . . Bill had football instinct.

So Bob Waddell has "went and done it," resigning as coach of the Carnegie Tech gridders, following a fine career in conjunction with Judge Walter P. Steffen . . . There is the natural speculation as to his successor . . . This hardly is necessary . . . If the Carnegie authorities do not select their greatest football product, Howard Harpster, for the post, there will be genuine surprise in many quarters . . . Harpster's name is a byword at Tech . . . He is the greatest football figure in all its playing history and would be an inspiration to its teams . . . He has been seasoned in coaching by going it on his own at Shady Side Academy for one year and at Geneva College for three, compiling a brilliant record at both places . . . His last Geneva contract was for one year and expired with the Duquesne University game at Forbes Field on Thanksgiving Day . . . Somehow, as things shape up, it seems it was planned to have him footloose and fancy free to come back to his alma mater next fall, with Waddell a year ago contemplating following Steffen into retirement.

Waddell always has been popular with the local football fans, the same as Steffen, and the naming of Harpster, who was developed by this pair, would be acclaimed as establishing a living monument to their efforts. —HARRY KECK.

WANERS SIGN AT INCREASE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The determination of the Pittsburgh Baseball Club officials to fight false economy moves at this week's meeting of the major leagues was emphasized today when the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph learned that both Paul and Lloyd Waner had signed 1933 contracts which call for an increase over the pay of this year.

The sensational brothers of the hickory stick received slight salary cuts one year ago in the general reductions agreed upon by the big league magnates. By a reliable source, this paper was informed that the cut was less than $1,000 in each case.

Brother Paul recently signed a contract for the same figure he received in 1931 and his younger brother is said to have been given a slight increase over the stipend of the 1931 season.

The older of the two boys is reliably reported as drawing better than $15,000 with Little Lloyd less than $3,000 short of this figure.

Quite a few of the high-salaried members of the Pittsburgh club sustained cuts for the season just past, but, in the case of the Waners, the money has been refunded and this may be true in one or two other cases.

Pitcher Larry French is among the stars yet unsigned, it was learned. The clever southpaw is said to have had some conferences with President William E. Benswanger, but so far he is on the outside of the fold. French, it was said, is after an advance.

Manager George Gibson and Vice President Sam Watters, of the local organization, left today for New York. The regular sessions of the National League will begin tomorrow. The board of directors' meeting was held yesterday, Benswanger being in attendance at this session.

Bike Grind Starts In Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Fourteen teams of veteran riders answered the starter's gun at 12:30 a. m. today as Philadelphia's second six-day bicycle race started.

The event was started after midnight to confirm with the city's Sunday observance law.

BARRED FROM MARINES, TUNNEY CARRIES ON FIGHT

INJURED ARM DELAYS WAR SERVICE

SYNOPSIS

Thus far the author has traced his career from scrappy school days along the lower Hudson River front to stirring nights as a club fighter in the Sharkey, Fairmont and Polo A. C.'s. At 18, the fans judge him "fast, clever, but with no punch." Meanwhile he works as a $17-a-week ship company rate clerk. While playing basketball in March, 1917, Gene injures his left elbow. . . .

By GENE TUNNEY,
Retired Heavyweight Champion

CHAPTER SEVEN

Congress had declared, on April 6, 1917, that a state of war existed between the United States and Germany. In May, I decided to join the service. Upon submitting to a physical and medical examination at the Marine recruiting station in East Twenty-third street, I was rejected because of the injury to my left arm, which was beginning to resemble a form of paralysis.

Gene Tunney

I was terribly disappointed. I then determined to get the proper medical treatment that would put my arm into shape. I wanted to be a Marine. The Marine slogan of "Fight to Fight!" and the definition of a Marine which I had gleaned from a pamphlet picked up at recruiting tent in City Hall Park fascinated me. "A Marine is a two-fisted fighting man!" I read. Enough.

I changed my doctors and was advised that the arm needed immediate exercise and sunshine. Whereupon I got a job as life guard for the summer season at Keansburg, N. J., quitting the office staff of the Ocean Steamship Company. This was in June, 1917.

BECOMES LIFE GUARD

I discovered during the season that the title "life guard" was no misnomer. One had to save lives. The vacationists and visitors to Keansburg frequently overtaxed canoes and themselves, keeping the retired rate clerk busy hauling them out of the tepid waters.

Just before the season closed, when the prospect of acceptance by the marine medical examiner was very bright, I had the indiscretion to put on the gloves with one of the boys on the beach. A feeble left starting for the face was slipped, and, in countering with a right, my friend hit me right on the elbow. This bent the arm backward, causing it to drop limply at my side. It was as badly injured as it had been at its worst. This was most disheartening. The world looked black. There was nothing to do, now that the season was about to close, but go back to New York to undergo more treatment.

Returning to New York, I found myself with no job, no money and a practically useless left arm. After two months of discouraging daily (7 a. m.) treatments in the mechanotherapy department in the basement of Bellevue Hospital, which produced very little improvement, my old stand-by, Old Eddie O'Brien, knowing my financial plight, offered to lend me some money. I refused to accept it because I had no idea as to how I could pay him back. I said if I could only get a couple of fights I certainly could use what money I received for them.

ARM BADLY INJURED

The Frawley boxing law had been repealed at the order of Gov. Charles S. Whitman. There was no boxing permitted in the state of New York. However, occasionally, clubs ran under the old membership plan. O'Brien said:

"You can get a fight."

"But even if I get one what can I do with only one arm?" I inquired disconsolately.

Whether I thought so or not, I told Eddie if he could possibly get me a match I would take it.

O'Brien went to see Pop Kirk, and Pop said:

"Sure I would like to have Gene box for me. When will he be able to box?"

"Any time," said Eddie O'Brien.

Pop said:

"I will see if I can get a big Italian who has been boxing around here and who thinks he is a pretty good fighter."

O'Brien advised:

"Anyone you want."

Eddie greeted next day with:

"Well, Gene, I think I have got you matched to box at the Polo A. C. a week from Friday night. Where do you think we can train?"

UNABLE TO TRAIN

I told him I could not train and that even rope-skipping was a strain on the arm. So O'Brien advised:

"Well, you will have to shadow-box a little and do some road work to sharpen your wind a bit."

I ran around Washington Square for four or five mornings, and shadow-boxed when I got home. That was all the training I did.

Young Borelli, my opponent, was a 200-pound coal passer with pugilistic aspirations. This was one of only two professional fights I ever went into without thinking of it as either fun or part of a definite plan. I wanted money. In the past, I had done it for the sport. Later, when I took boxing seriously, as a profession, all my matches were part of a plan.

Borelli was a southpaw, who boxed with his right hand and right foot extended, which made him an open target for my right. He sat on his haunches with the second blow I hit him and took the count the next round. I was not required to do any more than feint with my bad left in the four and one-half minutes that the fight lasted. This was the star bout and for my share I received $26.

KNOCKS OUT WEIR

The following week, O'Brien took me to see Charley Doesserick at the Pioneer Club. Doesserick was running shows at the New Amsterdam Opera House to which he admitted all men in uniform without charge. Civilians were required to pay. Doesserick said:

"Yes, I'll give you a match. I am looking for a middleweight to box Hughey Weir at my next show. I can pay you $40 to box six rounds."

I could train no more for this than for the Borelli match. I did three or four days' road work and shadow-boxing. Weir was a rushing fighter, and all I was required to do was to wait for him and let go my right with everything I had in it when he came into hitting distance. He succumbed in the third round. We both weighed 158 pounds.

Just as I had despaired of doing any more of this, Eddie O'Brien—faithful old Eddie—took me down to see his son-in-law, whom he had asked to recommend me to the J. G. White Engineering Corporation, for which he worked.

GETS JOB ON PIER

And thus I got a job at Erie Pier in Jersey City. The duties, for which I was paid $25 a week, involved receiving and checking airplane parts sent from different points of the country and re-shipping to the Hoboken piers for transportation to France.

My concern about my left arm kept increasing. And the shame over not being in uniform, though working with soldiers, caused constant secret humiliation. Discouragement about the arm grew into despair. I tried all kinds of home remedies, but the deltoid, triceps and biceps muscles continued to shrink. One of the staff over at Erie Pier gave me the name of a German physician, who, he advised, gave electrical treatments for neuritis, rheumatism and similar diseases. He said:

"Why not come with me to this man's office and see what he can do?"

With little hope, I accompanied him to the office of Dr. Frederick de Kraft, at 142 West Seventieth street.

After examining me, Dr. de Kraft said, in English with a heavy German accent:

"My boy, you have a traumatic neuritis, and I can cure you, but it will take some time."

ARM IS CURED

I could hardly believe what I heard. Suddenly I was filled with hope and I wanted to embrace this kindly old gentleman. I visited his office three nights a week for a sort of diathermic treatment. He knew I was not in very affluent circumstances, and made a nominal charge of $2 a visit. I continued these treatments from January to June, 1918, when he pronounced me cured.

My arm looked it, for it had gradually come back to almost normal size and strength. Curiously enough, it has remained shorter than the right arm to this day. The muscular contraction at the elbow causes this. I never told this gentle old German why I was so anxious to have him put my arm into shape until after I had been accepted for enlistment in the Marines. Curiously enough, I was accepted by the same medical examiner who had rejected me before.

On my last visit to Dr. de Kraft, I told him that I was going away to war. He said:

"Well, I wish you luck and hope you come back alive and uninjured."

It was then that the irony of this particular situation struck me. Here was a man born in Germany, of German scientific training and culture, making it possible for an American boy to join the Allied forces against his native land.

His early months with the U. S. Marines at Parris Island and with the famed Pontanazin barracks and Romorantin in France are described by Tunney tomorrow — His memorable parting with Doc Bagley, his mud ditch duel with a truculent comrade, and his winning of the camp's middleweight championship will be featured in this same chapter.

The Curry club, of the Keystone League, outpaced and outlasted the Lawrenceville eleven of the Central League yesterday afternoon in the National Amateur Cup game at South Park, to defeat the Strip aggregation, 2 to 0. Some 2,000 fans braved the slippery roads to the park to watch the contest.

It was a game of missed chances. Both clubs miscued on enough goals to change the score considerably. The Lawrenceville team lost when Kirk, the Curry right halfback, successfully bottled up Jimmy Dunlop, the Strip ace, and when Dunlop is stopped, the Central League line usually fails to function.

STRIP MISSES CHANCE

MOLLY GETS SCORE

Lawrenceville—0		Curry—2
Henreich	G	Stanko
Murray	R.B.	Valdeserri

McKNIGHTS WIN

Other games found McKnights defeating McGraths, 7 to 1, and Cecil beating McDonald, 3 to 1, while Morgan upset the Bridgeville Rosies, 3 to 2, in amateur cup contests.

In the Washington County League, Avella defeated Atlasburg, 5 to 4, and Cedar Grove nosed out Lincoln Hill, 3 to 2.

In the Allegheny Valley circuit, Harwick swamped Curtisville, 6-0; Athletics beat Millvale, 4 to 2; Springdale went on a scoring spree to beat Kinlock, 7-1, and Barsotti surprised the fans by holding Tarentum to a 1-1 tie.

Grove nosed out Houston, 1 to 0; Gallatin won over Vulcans, 1 to 0; Webers swamped Hills Station, 8 to 2; De Marco cinched the league leadership by beating Pleasant Hills, 8 to 1, and Local Union had an easy afternoon beating Leesdale, 7 to 2, in the Panhandle League.

Dado Awarded Bantamweight Title

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 12.—(INS.)—Speedy Dado, Filipino flash, was recognized as world bantamweight champion by the California State Athletic Commission at their final 1932 session here Saturday.

The recent Mickey Walker-Arthur Dekuh one-round knockout came up for discussion, but the commissioners seemed of the opinion that it was Mickey's fists that propelled De Kuh to the canvas and the matter was dropped.

DIXIE LEAGUE MAY EXPAND

WINTER PARK, Fla., Dec. 12.—(AP.)—The Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association, largest of Dixie's college groups, opens its annual meeting here today with the prospect of increasing its membership, agreeing on several minor changes in eligibility rules and arriving at dates and sites for its major championship tournaments this spring.

Rollins College, located on Lake Virginia here, is host to the convention. This is the first time the association has ever moved into Central Florida for its yearly gathering.

The executive committee held its session last night and laid plans for the first general assembly this morning.

Among the schools seeking membership are New River State College, of Montgomery, W. Va.; Union College, of Barbourville, Ky., and Tennessee Polytechnic Institute, of Cookeville, Tenn. Unconfirmed reports also say that Howard College, of Birmingham, which resigned from the association a year ago, will ask for admission again.

MAJORS READY FOR WINTER GATHERING

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Retrenchment and economy, these were the twin watchwords of the hour as big league baseball's moguls gathered here today for their annual meetings.

Facing them are a series of momentous problems, all dealing either with the necessity for further drastic economies or the means by which the customers can be lured back into the ball parks.

Except for a scattering few clubs, such as the New York Yankees, Chicago Cubs, Boston Braves and Brooklyn Dodgers, none was pointing with any particular pride to attendance figures for the 1932 season. A sharp drop in the daily figures was almost universal and the magnates came to New York determined to do something about it.

SALARY FIGHT SEEN

Just what direction their efforts toward economy would take remained to be seen, but a glance at the unofficial agenda for the meetings was significant.

Salary and player limits, admission prices, radio, shorter training campaigns, revision of the world series ticket system and the trials and tribulations of the minor leagues were just a few of the matters listed for discussion and possible action at the National League meeting tomorrow, the American League gathering Wednesday, and the joint conclave Thursday.

An effort may be made by some club owners to force adoption of a salary limit or at least a uniform salary slash all the way down the line, but the majority, it was believed, would rule that each club was entitled to handle its own financial affairs as it saw fit.

MAY CUT SQUADS

There was no doubt whatever that a strenuous attempt would be made toward reducing the player limit, either by including the coaches in the present limit of 23 or by cutting the maximum to 22 or 21.

The suggestion also has been made that the player limit be made effective a month earlier, May 15, instead of June 15, thus saving a month's salary that otherwise would be paid to players retained until the later date.

TERRY TO DICKER

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Bill Terry has been given free rein by the New York Giants to swing any player deals he thinks will benefit the club. He said:

"If the other seven National League clubs are interested in seeing a strong team in New York, and I think they are, I have several deals in mind that I think will greatly strengthen the Giants. I'm not asking something for nothing. I'm ready to trade, even up, with anyone."

Braves or Dodgers May Back Stogies

WHEELING, W. Va., Dec. 12.—(AP.)—The Intelligencer says support of the Boston Braves or Brooklyn Dodgers in the National League, is sought by persons wishing to obtain a franchise for Wheeling in the Central Baseball League.

Contacts have been made with officials of both major league clubs, the newspaper says, and negotiations may be closed soon.

The major league club, it is said, would furnish material for the Wheeling entry on the basis of having first call on the services of any player placed on the market. Under the plan, the supporting outfit could not recall, during the season, any player sent here and the local club could sell to anyone it choose after the backers had been offered the material.

W. Va. To Select Grid Leader Tonight

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Dec. 12.—(AP.)—The 1933 West Virginia University football captain is expected to be announced tonight at the annual varsity dinner honoring members of the gridiron and cross-country squads.

Lettermen will meet before the dinner to select the man to lead the Mountaineers next fall.

Noted Crew Coach Dies in Detroit

DETROIT, Dec. 12. — (AP.) — Charles Stevenson, 66, for nearly half a century an amateur and professional oarsman and rowing coach, is dead at his home here. He died yesterday after being ill only a day of pneumonia.

For nine years he was a coach at Harvard. Later he coached the University of California crew at Berkeley.

Vines-Gledhill Win Tennis Title

MELBOURNE, Australia, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Ellsworth Vines and Keith Gledhill today defeated John Van Ryn and Wilmer Allison, 10-8, 6-4, 7-5, in the all-American final of the Victoria doubles tennis championship.

Chocolate Must Battle Fidel LaBarba Again

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(INS.)—Kid Chocolate must meet Fidel LaBarba again before he is accepted as world featherweight champion.

James J. Johnston, boxing director of Madison Square Garden, delivered this verdict as a result of the clamor caused by the Kid's decision over LaBarba Friday night, when eight out of 10 sports writers declared that the crown should have passed to LaBarba.

No date has yet been set for the required 10-round return bout.

Table Net Play Resumed Tonight

Play will be resumed this evening in the first annual Allegheny County table tennis tournament, sponsored by Gimbels, action being slated to get under way at 7 o'clock.

FULLER FACES WELTER TEST

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Sammy Fuller, scourge of the lightweights a few months ago, aims at bigger game this week.

The aggressive Boston battler, an Eastern sensation last spring, faces Jimmy McLarnin, crack Vancouver welterweight, in the feature 10-rounder of Madison Square Garden's Friday night card.

Fuller campaigned almost exclusively in Boston rings until he came down to the Garden last February and belted Ray Miller, Chicago southpaw, into submission in 10 rounds.

In his next Garden start, in March, he knocked out Billy Wallace, of Cleveland, in seven rounds. He battled Jack (Kid) Berg, of England, to a draw in 10 sensational rounds and then outpointed the Briton in a return battle.

PITT QUINTET TO INVADE MIDDLE WEST THIS WEEK

PANTHERS LOOM AS POWERFUL COMBINATION

There is a suspicion lurking about today that Dr. H. C. Carlson, the Braddock Bombardier, has a nifty basketball team in the making out at Pitt and that his pre-season predictions of another "win 'em all" campaign may be more than mere Carlson propaganda.

The Panthers head for the great open spaces this week for meetings with crack Mid-Western opponents. Friday, the boys take on Northwestern. On Saturday they face Minnesota, and on next Monday they'll play Butler at Indianapolis.

Saturday night the Panthers soared to the top of the Eastern Intercollegiate Conference standing by beating Georgetown in the local inaugural. The score, 32 to 18, did not particularly indicate the class of the Pitt team. Had only a fair percentage of the Panthers' shots clicked, they'd have beaten Georgetown by 20 or more points.

SOPHOMORES STAR

Two two sophomores in the lineup, Skippy Hughes, at forward, and rangy Claire Cribbs, at center, looked exceptionally promising in their varsity debuts. Cribbs' passing was excellent, and it was not his fault that his mates missed several feeders in scoring position. Hughes brought to memory the famous exploits of as great a ball-hawk as Pitt ever boasted, Paul Zehfuss, as he flitted hither and thither about the court.

Another district quintet will precede the Panthers on the road as Cam Henderson and his Davis-Elkins squad start on their transcontinental tour. Tomorrow night they engage Valparaiso University at Valparaiso, Ind. On Wednesday they'll battle Loyola in Chicago, and on Thursday will play Kansas State and take on Denver Saturday.

ALUMNI STRONG

Meanwhile, Ray Montgomery, coach of the Pitt Alumni eleven, which is to meet the Golden Panther varsity in the Stadium Saturday afternoon in a practice game before the Cats head for Pasadena's Rose Bowl, reports an exceptionally heavy response to his plea for gridders and informs the general public that he'll have a powerful eleven on the field this week.

Coach Sutherland returned to the city yesterday from Baltimore, where last week he coached the all-North team which was beaten by the Southern stars Saturday, and will take charge of the Pitt drill this afternoon.

Rose Bowl Game Gives Reider Sporting Chance

Among the questions that should be asked as the Pitt Panthers prepare for their test in Pasadena's Rose Bowl, January 2, but apparently has been choked back by so many others, is:

"How about the Bulldog?"

Well, how about the Bulldog?

If ever there was a college football player who took a kick in the pants from Fate, it was Pitt's peppery little captain this fall. The Bulldog went to training camp with the eyes of the nation ready to be focused upon him. He and his running, or rather, passing mate, Warren Heller, had shone so brilliantly the previous fall against Army and Nebraska, and had reached such a state of perfection with their aerial game that they were hailed as likely to develop into one of the most dangerous forward passing combinations in the game.

Paul Reider

Now Reider was an acknowledged ball-toting threat, but there were few who realized his value as a blocker and defensive player.

For his size, the Bulldog is an exceptionally good blocker, almost on a par with Heller. The Bulldog could, and still can, work on a tackle or an end in highly laudatory fashion:

HURT IN INAUGURAL

The inaugural game of the season rolled around and rolled right over Reider. As he took a pass to score a touchdown against Ohio Northern, he twisted his right leg, a leg which already was none too strong.

The injury kept him on the bench as his mates crushed West Virginia and Duquesne, but he was sent into the Army game, still far from right. His performance against the Cadets was spotty, his speed wasn't there, and his injury was aggravated.

It was then that the ugly rumors began to raise their heads. They said he was "yellow," that he couldn't take it. They said he fought with the other members of the squad and that he was so unpopular that Coach Sutherland kept him on the bench so as not to have his eleven riddled by dissension.

Reider, a highly emotional chap, let his misfortune get him down temporarily, and he missed out in his classwork after the Notre Dame victory, with the result that he was ineligible for the Penn game. He pulled himself together, however, and was restored to good standing in time to start against Nebraska, where he showed signs of returning to form.

Against Tech, he gave a fine performance until his leg was twisted again, when he was tackled by Bunny Burzio, Tech guard—and Paul Joseph saw the Stanford game from the press box.

BACK ON SQUAD

Three days ago, Reider returned to the varsity squad. He still limps, and will not be able to undergo any rough work between now and time for the game with the Trojans, but the chances are in his favor and I've a hunch the Bulldog will survive to bark against the Californians.

This Bulldog is a swell kid. He's as likeable as they come, smart, aggressive, for all he pops off a lot, stands ace high with his coaches and instructors. He has a philosophy of his own as he explains his talkativeness. He'll tell you:

"Listen, I have to pop off to these birds. Almost every player I find against me has me beaten when it comes to size and strength, so I figure the only thing to do is to get a mental jump on 'em. Get 'em mad at you and they can't play ball."

MAY STAR IN BOWL

The addition of Reider, a Reider primed for action, to Pitt's backfield forces, will stand the Panthers in fine stead on the Coast. There is going to be a lot of forward-passing in that Pasadena game, you may lay to that, and the Bulldog can pull 'em down.

"How about the Bulldog?"

Jones Prodigal In Praise of His Trojans

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 12.—"Every man on the Southern California team played what I would call faultless football."

"I never have seen a team make fewer mistakes than mine did. Every man followed out his assignment to the letter and fought a hard, not-to-be-beaten game.

"I would not attempt to pick any one of them as a star of the game. They all gave everything that they had and played such errorless ball that I can find no word of criticism for any of them, only words of praise to be divided equally among them. I have never been more proud of a team in my life."

Giffen Club Wins In Y Track Meet

The Ben Giffen Club holds the Y. M. H. A. intermediate indoor track championship today following its triumph in the annual meet yesterday.

The Giffens led the field with 25½ points, with Kawode squad placing second with 19, Enoch Rauh third with 4 5-6 and the Keystones fourth with 4 2-3.

TROJANS PICKED OVER PITT BY ANDERSON

In a moment of despair a few days ago the Notre Dame mentor predicted a 13-to-0 defeat for his Ramblers, the likes of which Southern California's Trojans meted out here Saturday before the season's record crowd of more than 100,000 persons.

Followers of Coach Howard Jones' undefeated team today turned their eyes toward the annual Rose Tournament game at Pasadena January 2 with Pittsburgh, ready to heap more honor on the bowed head of Coach Anderson should he be right in that contest, too. Hunk said yesterday:

"Southern California should defeat Pittsburgh by two touchdowns. Pitt lacks the offense that the Trojans have, although it is a great defensive team. Heller is a great halfback. He is fast like Griffith, cuts and whirls and is a fine defensive player."

SEEK TWENTIETH WIN

All of which is enough to set the West to wondering if, perhaps, the Trojans wouldn't bob up with their twentieth straight victory on January 2 in the rose-bedecked bowl. If they did, it would be Pitt's third defeat in Rose Tournament play and Troy's fourth triumph.

CRICKETERS IN TIE

WAGGA WAGGA, New South Wales, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—A dust storm today prematurely ended an exhibition cricket match between England's test team, the Marylebone Club, and a team representing the southern districts of New South Wales. The match was drawn. The scores were: M. C. C., 313; New South Wales, 266, and 88, for seven wickets.

CORPUS CHRISTI WINS

The Corpus Christi Club won the class C division championship of the Lightweight Conference yesterday when it defeated Pastime Club, 19-0. The Rox Rangers-J. J. Verona game was postponed because of weather conditions.

FORMER CHAMPS IN SECTION VIII RACE

By JULIUS LEVIN

One of the best balanced sections in the W. P. I. A. L. basketball race this season is Section VIII, which includes in its membership no less than three former league champions in Braddock, Wilkinsburg and Scott High, of North Braddock.

Wilkinsburg won the league championship in 1922 under the coaching of Harry M. Springer, now at Allegheny High School; Scott was the champion in 1931 under the direction of Johnny Reed, while Braddock, coached by James (Ham) Hudson, ascended the throne last season.

Edgewood High, coached by Wally Pickett; Rankin High, coached by Jack Rosenberg, and Turtle Creek Union, coached by Foxy Miller, complete the makeup of Section VIII.

While Section III includes only one former league champion in its membership, New Castle, winner in 1927, this division promises to provide plenty of fireworks before the sectional title-holder is determined. This group includes Beaver Falls, Butler, Ellwood City, New Brighton, New Castle and Rochester.

New Brighton and Beaver Falls, adjoining towns, always put up their best exhibitions when opposed to each other and this feud will flare anew this winter when the two quintets meet twice. There is no love lost between these two old rivals as was attested on Thanksgiving day when New Brighton ruined the Tiger's hope for the W. P. I. A. L. title by handing them a 7-0 defeat, their only setback of the season.

School Notes

Washington High, checked in the opening battle of the seasons by a plucky alumni quintet, will be out to score its first victory tomorrow night when Roy Mann brings his Burgettstown Union passers to the Washington court, which, by the way, is reported to be one of the best in Western Pennsylvania.

Three football banquets are scheduled this week. Tonight Greensburg celebrates, tomorrow Donora holds its affair, while Wednesday finds Ellwood City bringing its football campaign to a fitting close.

Jack Rosenberg's Rankin High quintet will be host to the Duquesne University freshmen at Rankin tomorrow night.

Columbia, Irish Stars Honored By Navy

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Three members of the Notre Dame football team, two of the Columbia eleven and one each of four other teams which the Navy Tars met during the 1932 season, were picked by Rip Miller, Navy coach, on an "all-opponent" team.

Verona, Ranger Tilt Rescheduled

The Rox Ranger-J. J. Verona Lightweight Conference playoff football game has been rescheduled for next Sunday afternoon at Greenlee Field.

Originally slated to be played yesterday, the contest was called off by mutual agreement due to the snow-covered condition of the Greenlee Field gridiron and the cold.

Several other district sandlot tussles were postponed yesterday.

DR. KING, SPORT FIGURE, LAID TO REST

St. Lawrence's Roman Catholic Church in Penn avenue this morning was the scene of an impressive funeral service for Dr. Edward Ambrose King, a native of Pittsburgh, whose prominence in the field of medicine and surgery was accentuated by the fact that he was personal physician to Babe Ruth, of the world champion New York Yankees, as well as consulting physician of the New York club.

A solemn requiem high mass was sung over the body of Dr. King with three sisters and a brother in attendance at the services. Many St. Lawrence parishioners also were in the church.

The Rev. Father F. J. Dailey, of St. Lawrence, was celebrant. He was assisted by the Rev. Father P. E. Campbell, superintendent of the parochial schools, as deacon, and the Rev. J. A. Young, of St. Lawrence, as sub-deacon. As Dr. King was a veteran of the World War, his casket was draped with the flag of the United States.

Edward King attended Duquesne University after graduating from high school in Pittsburgh. From the local institution, he went to Antigonish, Nova Scotia, where he studied at St. Francis Xavier College. He gained his M. D. degree at the University of Pennsylvania.

Besides his widow, three children, Edward Ambrose, Jr., George Davis and Barbara, Dr. King leaves four sisters and one brother. They are Nora, Catherine and Margaret, of 5531 Columbo avenue, East End; Sister Austin, a nun of South Dakota, and H. J. King, of Huntington, W. Va. Burial was at Scottdale.

PITT GRIDIRON 'GATE' GROWS

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Despite a general decline of approximately 15 per cent for the 1932 season, college football attendance recorded an exceptional and unexpected number of gains, due to the attractions supplied by teams combining the winning habit with colorful performances.

A survey by the Associated Press among representative colleges reveals substantial gains in attendance in 14 out of a total of 40. These ranged from a fractional increase to a high mark of 300 per cent, reported by George Washington University (Washington, D. C.) in playing this season before 92,500 fans in seven home games.

The undefeated or championship teams enjoyed good business, although the reduction of ticket prices scaled down the year's profits. Purdue showed an increase of 40 per cent in attendance. Pittsburgh's Panthers, with the Rose Bowl game to go, drew 25 per cent more cash customers than last year. Michigan and Colgate, two other unbeaten arrays, reported only the slightest of decreases.

College	1932	1931
Notre Dame	440,000	413,000
Michigan	225,000	228,000

Tibbett Sings On WCAE Tonight

Grand Duchess Marie, of Russia, first cousin of the late Czar, broadcasts an appeal in behalf of the Salvation Army during the Caravan program heard over an NBC-WJZ network, including KDKA, today at 5:15 p. m. She is the first of a group of nationally-known celebrities who will face the microphone the next few weeks in a discussion of the Salvation Army's "Share-the Purchase" relief plan.

Grand Duchess Marie

The Caravan program, first to donate time to this welfare campaign, is heard each Monday, Wednesday and Friday at the same time. It is a desert romance by Edith Meiser, well-known radio playwright and presented by a cast including Lucille Wall, Alfred Shirley and Abdullah.

Lawrence Tibbett, celebrated baritone, returns to his regular tire-sponsored program over WCAE tonight at 8:30. Tibbett, who was heard in the Metropolitan Opera broadcast Saturday, will be featured for the next three Monday nights, including December 26. On January 2, Richard Crooks, young American tenor, is heard on the program again, with Tibbett returning once more January 9.

Program Pointers

The Country Doctor, as portrayed by Phillips Lord, moves his office hours ahead to 8:45 tonight. In order to accommodate many of his young patients, who found his 10 p. m. broadcasts too late, the Country Doctor will be heard at 8:45 regularly, each Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Sponsors changed the program to the earlier hour in response to requests of many children and their parents.

Mr. Lord

For the dance fans tonight: Paul Whiteman, WCAE at 9:30; George Olsen, WCAE at 11; Shafer-Englert, WWSW at 11; Jimmy Joy, KDKA at 11:15; Eddie Peyton, WJAS at 11:30; Anson Weeks, WCAE at 12:15; and Mark Fisher, WCAE at 12:30.

A medley of monastery bell numbers, including "Sanctus," from Gounod's St. Cecilia Mass, is presented by the quartet and orchestra as a high spot of the Contented program over WCAE at 10.

Symphony Features Greig Song

Howard Barlow, conductor of the Columbia Symphony Orchestra, fulfills an audience request, playing Greig's "Heart Wounds," during the concert broadcast over WJAS tonight, from 11 to 11:30, eastern standard time.

The Tipoff

The Pittsburgh Chapter, Eastern Intercollegiate Football Officials' Association will tie on the annual feed bag tonight in the Green Room of the Keystone A. C. Judging from past banquets held by the officials, the Green Room will be something else tomorrow.

Yesterday the West Penn Basketball Officials' Association held a rules interpretation meeting at the K. A. C., with Cal Bolster directing the gathering. More than 100 whistle tooters were on hand.

THE GREAT OUTDOORS
—By GIB MARSH—

As the big-game hunters return from the Pennsylvania mountains, their reports leave no doubt about the scant kill of deer since the opening of the season, December 1. Their experiences were unfavorable and would indicate the pre-season predicted kill of 20,000 head will not be realized. In fact, it is doubtful if the season's bag will total the kill made 10 years ago, which was 7,778 head. And the hunters contend that the deer-shooting sport has been set back 10 years as a result of the tremendous kill made last year, when 24,796 legal bucks and 70,255 does were taken out of the mountains—a total of 95,051 head.

KILL IS SCANT

During last week the hunters combed the mountains without success. And the alarming disclosures of their observations were that very few does were seen, also a minimum of spike bucks, which means less fawns and fewer bucks for future shooting. And the opinion of hunters of experience is that it will be six or perhaps 10 years before the hunters will make kills of 10,000 head again during a two-weeks' season.

After the season closes on Thursday, an accurate total will be available. However, it is predicted that the kill will be under the 1924 mark—7,778 head. When the various sportsmen's associations hold their annual meetings this winter, there will be much discussion about the wanton reduction of the deer herds which resulted from the open season in 1931.

LESSON TO SPORTSMEN

However, it is certain that it will be many years before any board of game commissioners will stage another open season on does and bucks. The 1931 slaughter was a lesson to the sportsmen and those in control of the conservation of the deer herds in Pennsylvania. The state game solons may have future surplus doe problems and they may declare a season for the exclusive shooting of does. However, it is more likely when any particular section of the state becomes overrun by herds of does the game commissioners will confine the shooting of does to the surplus doe areas.

Globe-Trotting

With the Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News

—By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN—

How are you ladies and gentlemen?

Back doing business at the old stand. And am I glad? Hope I can say the same for you. This enforced idleness gives one a clearer appreciation of what radio can mean. Bad enough being cooped up, but without a radio, I'd have gone cuckoo.

* * *

Who said I didn't have far to go?

* * *

Saturday afternoon, having one of the cranky spells, could not find a thing to listen to. It seemed that every breakfast food company was exhorting the youngsters to grow up like Popeye by eating Husky Oats, or like Annie Rooney by breakfasting on Peppy Flakes (What! No Mickey Mouse?) At the same time, unraveling ghost stories, a conglamoration of which caused chill after chill during the night.

* * *

Talk about tough breaks—all this beautiful snow—first of the year—the long-awaited opportunity to crash through with a spiel about feeding the birds, and I had to be sniffin'—Hark! Hark! What's that?—Jimmy Audubon Murray reminding the Globe-Trotters to care for their feathered friend.

Listening In On Radio Gossip

About Agnes Moorehead, who supplies the comedy relief as Nana, the nurse, in "Mysteries in Paris:" She was born in Boston in 1906, the daughter of a Presbyterian minister, and reared in St. Louis . . . Made her first public appearance at the age of 3 and has always had dramatic ambitions . . . First Broadway appearance was in "Scarlet Pages" in 1929 . . .

Miss Moorehead

Made her radio debut in 1930 . . . Likes dogs, old jewelry, bridge and reading, and goes in for tennis, horseback riding and swimming. She's a cousin of Natalie Moorehead, the Pittsburgh movie actress.

Cliff Hall, Jack Pearl's "Sharley": He's 5 feet 9 inches tall, weighs 165 pounds; dark eyes, hair and complexion; attended grammar school with Lilyan Tashman, the screen star; later attended Culver Military Academy; ran away and joined the Navy at 16; first stage appearance was in "Hanky Panky;" toured extensively in vaude; rejoined Navy when the War broke out and was dischar

STOCKS EDGE UP IN QUIET TRADING

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—The stock market again edged higher in a quiet session today.

Brokerage sentiment remained moderately cheerful, and some signs of professional bullish efforts appeared in some of the pool favorites, although scant public following was attracted.

Absence of important liquidation, and indications of a good technical position, appeared to constitute the basis of such cautious bullishness as was noted in brokerage quarters. Business news was not particularly inspiring, indicating further year-end recession in a number of lines, although motor makers are calling back workers in substantial numbers coincident with starting of production of 1933 models.

Some odd-lot buying has been reported, and a fair amount of switching of securities, both for tax purposes and with a view of placing holdings in a more advantageous position. Recent foreign buying of securities in this market, according to usually well-informed quarters, has been meager, but Wall street banks have received substantial deposits from abroad of late.

The oil situation remained rather cloudy, with some quarters expressing doubt that the recent crude price advance, in which Standards of New Jersey and Indiana refused to participate, would hold. Last week, the further reduction in crude output in Texas had been regarded as encouraging.

The Nickel Plate Railroad announced that it had arranged with the R. F. C. to go ahead with its note refunding plan, insofar as the notes already deposited are concerned. Less than one-fifth of the notes remain undeposited, and what will be done about them remains conjectural. The road is hopeful that holders of most of those undeposited will finally assent to the plan.

WHEAT PRICES TURN DOWN

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—Grains showed a downward price trend early today, largely as a result of Liverpool wheat quotations lower than expected. A cold wave and only limited snow protection in domestic winter crop territory failed to act as an offset. Opening unchanged to ⅜-½ lower, wheat afterward sagged all around. Corn started unchanged to ⅜ off and subsequently held near the initial limits.

Enlargement of the amount of wheat on ocean passage, with the total 40,552,000 bushels against 29,736,000 a year ago, was a bearish influence. There were also reports of improved weather for the Argentine harvest. Bulls in wheat, however, continued to put stress on assertions that moisture from snowfalls over dry sections of the southwest had been relatively meager.

COAL TARIFF HELD UP

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—(INS.)—Customs collectors were ordered today to suspend decision on the $2 a ton coal tax provided on imports in the 1932 revenue act pending a ruling by Attorney General Mitchell as to whether coal from Germany and Great Britain should be allowed to enter the country free under the most favored nations treaties.

Coal from these countries will come into the country free. If the attorney general rules that the tax does not violate the terms of the commercial treaties then the government will take action to collect the tax due on coal imported from Germany and Great Britain in the interim.

Wholesale Price Index at New Low

DEBT AGITATION MET FIRMLY BY STOCKS

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—Apparently the collective mind behind the stock ticker made allowance for the propagandist aspects of the weakness in sterling and francs as the due date for the payment of the December 15 installment approached.

In the face of the strong representation made by the debtor countries concerning the alleged adverse economic effects of debt payments, the security markets reflected vastly more steadiness than has been customary in December periods under depression conditions.

Mr. Rukeyser

Business, too, in a distinctly subnormal zone, maintained equanimity, in the face of seasonal declining tendencies. The chief economic effect thus far of the gloom engendered by the debt agitation has been in the further softness of certain commodity prices.

SPRING TEST AWAITED

The capacity of certain important economic indicators to hold their own while the gospel of contingent despair has been preached by leading governments may well be interpreted as an index of the thoroughness with which liquidation has already taken place.

Viewed as a whole, business, which is still very far below computed normal, has for months revealed a disposition to move sideways a little above the midsummer bottom.

Of course, there is only negative ground for cheer in this situation. Unless business can go forward in the spring, many enterprises will find it impossible longer to carry their inflated capitalization under existing levels of prices and gross volume.

PROFESSORS VOGUE

The leading business doctors of the country will foregather in Cincinnati between December 28 and 30 to hold a clinic concerning the prevalent ills. The meetings will be held under the auspices of the American Economic Association and affiliated societies. Monetary pathologists, tariff experts, statisticians and labor economists will meet together in this grand pow wow to find out why we still have suffering and malnutrition amidst plenty. Perhaps they will also essay the role of telling the world what to do about it.

Since President-elect Roosevelt has shown a disposition to rely heavily on Prof. Raymond Moley, of Columbia University, for advice, professors are in vogue again. Although congresses of specialists such as will meet in Cincinnati later in the month have no authority to do more than recommend, they frequently discuss methods and measures years before they get into practical politics. What they discuss now may get before Congress in a year or two.

RAILS PROTEST COST BURDEN

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—(Universal.)—Railroads of the country are facing an almost overwhelming burden in "the necessity—either through legal obligation or pressure of public opinion—to spend money on non-productive improvements," the American Railway Association said in a statement published today. It added:

"These improvements produce no compensatory return in the form of added revenue or reduced operation costs.

MARY FAITH

By BEATRICE BURTON

CHAPTER IV.

"Mary Faith, I've been thinking over something that you said a while ago," Kim remarked over the pot roast and browned potatoes that Agnes, the red-headed waitress, set before him.

He frowned down at his plate as he spoke. "You said that two women who care for the same man usually hate each other. Well, I think there's a lot of truth in that. There's a girl at the office—just a kid—really—I've driven her home in my car once or twice—and tonight—"

"And tonight you drove her home," she said. "That's why you were late, wasn't it?"

Kim nodded, helping himself to red currant jelly.

"She lives out this way," he explained. "Well, anyway, I told her that I was thinking about getting married and—gosh, but I certainly was surprised at the way she took it—" He stopped again, struggling to find words for what he was trying to tell her.

She saw him struggling and came to his help.

"I can imagine how she took it," she said with the peculiar second-sight of the woman who is in love. "She probably told you that she cared for you, herself, and hated the girl you were going to marry . . . wasn't that it?"

WILL NOT BE JEALOUS

His blond head jerked in a quick nod.

"That was just about it," he admitted. "But I didn't know until tonight that she felt that way about me. I swear I didn't."

"Did you spend last Sunday with her, Kim?"

He was silent for a minute. And when he finally did open his lips to answer Mary Faith stopped him.

"No. Never mind. Don't tell me any more about her, Kim," she said. "It makes me unhappy to hear about her. I'm going to forget her."

She was not going to be like Mrs. Dan Bassett, she reminded herself for the second time that night. She wasn't going to start now to be jealous and suspicious . . . If Kim didn't care for her he surely would not have asked her to marry him on the first of October, would he? He must have known this girl who worked in his office a long time.

She leaned forward and emptied the little glass dish of currant jelly on his plate. Like most men, Kim had a sweet tooth.

"Women will always make a great fuss over you, Kim. It's your fatal beauty," she chaffed him, smiling across the table into his eyes. "I've just made up my mind not to pay any attention to them. I'm going to be a good wife, but I absolutely refuse to be a jealous one."

WONDERS ABOUT GIRL

"She's sure to be feeling blue and down-hearted," she told him when he had finished his coffee and was hunting through his pockets for a cigaret, "and it will cheer her up to have you come home early. After all, Kim, it must be hard for a woman to give up her only son—and that's what she thinks she's doing."

Synopsis

Mary Faith, young and comely fiancee of Kimberly Farrell, handsome blond youth, just out of law school, gives notice that she will leave her position as secretary to the wealthy Mark Nesbit to marry "Kim." Mary Faith receives a note from Kim's mother inviting her to dinner. Arriving late, due to Kim's delay, Mary Faith is greeted coolly by Mrs. Farrell. Suddenly there is a crash and scream from the kitchen and Kim calls to Mary Faith. Mrs. Farrell has knocked over a pot of coffee, slightly burning herself. The unpleasant attitude of Kim's mother proves to Mary Faith that she does not favor the marriage. Driving home, Mary Faith realizes a mother's feelings in giving up her only son.

Now Go On

The yellow leaves on the trees beside the lamp post hung as motionless as if they were painted on a screen.

The stars were still very bright and large. But somehow they seemed farther away than they had two hours before . . .

She stood looking at the little car . . . How many times had he driven that girl home in it? Mary Faith wondered. How many times had she sat there beside him in the shabby leather seat?

"Good night, Kim. I must go in. It's cold out here," she said dully.

He put his arms around her. At his contact all the vague little doubts that had been in her mind a second before left it. The familiar odor of his tweed coat, his cigarets and the shaving soap he used brought back a hundred comforting memories to her . . . This was Kim who had loved her for years and was going to marry her on the first of October. On the Saturday after next.

She drew his face down to hers and he kissed her. Then he got into his car.

"Good night," he said.

"Good night, Kim."

Then, as she was turning to go up the steps of the house, he called her back to him.

"Mary Faith, how do you really feel about this first of October business now that you've had a chance to think it over?" he asked bluntly. "With my mother feeling about it the way she does . . . well, I just wonder if it wouldn't be better if we put off getting married for a while? What do you think?"

For a few seconds Mary Faith couldn't think or feel or speak. She was, as she told herself afterward, "knocked silly."

"Well, then, let's put it off for a while." His voice was filled with his relief. "Good night, old lady."

Mary Faith stood on the curbstone and watched his car disappear down the street, her misery in her eyes.

Mrs. Puckett was standing in the hall when she went back into the house. She had a large japanned tray in her hands. On it was a pitcher and some little glass cups.

"Now, don't tell me that Mr. Farrell's gone home so early!" she cried in a full, rich voice that somehow matched her full, plump body. "Oh, that's too bad! . . . I had this sweet cider in the house, and I thought we'd all drink to the two of you before he left. Well, we can drink to your happiness, anyway, Mary Faith. Can't we?"

Mr. McClintock and the two Brock girls, who "made their home" with Mrs. Puckett, were sitting on the wide sofa in front of the fire. Mrs. Puckett always spoke of her boarders as people who "make their home with me." She was very genteel.

Her house was a real home, however, to Mary Faith, who had come there seven years before with her widowed mother. And Mrs. Puckett had been a real friend right from the beginning.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Evelyn Parker, "official reporter" of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club sends in the following items of interest about the members of the Manor Chapter.

Little Jean Schwartz, of Wightman street, is expected to return to the regular Komic Club meetings Saturday. Edna Jean, for the past week, has been confined to her home with a severe cold.

Betty King, of Forward avenue, is back after spending her Thanksgiving vacation in New York. When asked if she enjoyed her stay in New York, she replied:

"I had a swell time and too much turkey."

Why Betty?

Jack McQuillan has returned to Pittsburgh and the Manor Chapter, after spending some little time visiting friends in Clearfield, Pa.

Florence Zeak, one of Pittsburgh's most popular "blues" singers, has promised to visit the Manor chapter real soon and entertain the members with some of the songs that made her famous.

Ethel Sapper, former member of the Manor chapter, who moved to California recently, writes that she is in love with California and its sunshine, but that at times she longs to attend one of the regular Saturday morning meetings and see Manager Joe Blowitz's famous smile.

Bobby Lavine attended his first Komic Club meeting in some time last week. Bobby, you know, injured his hand playing football and was laid up at home for quite a spell. Everyone was glad to see him back. No more football, Bobby!

Just a few of the new members who joined last week are: King Powell, Hugh Perger, Evelyn Rosen and James Bauer. There were many more registrations than this, and I'll send in the names later.

Earl Wilson, of Alderson street, is greatly improved and it is hoped that he will be up and around soon. Earl suffered a broken leg about six weeks ago.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAYS

Kenyon—Paul Richardson, Arnold McMillan, Francis Aiken.

Rowland—Wade Straw.

Congress Goes to School

Nevertheless, and notwithstanding, we must choose up sides on the question of intoxication, both as a word and a deed.

Looking back through the archives of the fine arts we find many definitions of the word and many synonyms for the bun.

The prohibitionist tag for the conditions was stinko. That ain't a nice word, but it described the protagonists who arrived at the stage where they could do a ground loop without knocking over a floor lamp.

The older authorities of the better sort agree that no man is intoxicated so long as his breath condenses on a bar mirror. This is no isolated snap judgment. Tests were accumulated through the centuries. And when the guinea pig could no longer walk a straight line across Chevalier's lower lip he was blotto. We like that word.

Back before 1920 the average citizen was soused, shellacked, simonized, kaflooey, stiff and could be found under a hundred more labels in the filing cabinet. No desk sergeant would find him pickled if he could do a nip-up with four policemen on his chest.

He got that way via the all-scenic route of 6 per cent beer. A tidy rate of interest.

So long as you could move a finger or balance your hat between your ears you were considered in full possession of your mental gearhouse. You could resist arrest until the police reserves started coming up on motorcycles and dropping from the skies in parachutes. Barbers not only painted black eyes, but they invented a beauty lotion that would remove sawdust from your hair.

Barroom bouncers became so expert at tapping the belligerent skull that they could give you lumps in quarter sizes. When you arrived at this station-stop you were considered just plain soused. If we remembered these gladitorial soirees correctly nobody was ever suspected by the New York State Boxing Commission which always met in Albany on Saturday night in New York. We scorned the six-ounce gloves. And even sand in a stocking was considered a pillow fight.

They were mild twilights compared with the New York speaky of today. Ten barrooms in a night was no fair summing up of the results. Our commutation tickets were punched for 30.

In case Congress is unable to define the word we will lend it the benefit of our childish romps and capers.

THOUGHT FOR TODAY

(Society Column—San Antonio Express)

Mrs. Hewatt's talk ended with a prophecy of the future town of Eagle Pass which was a pleasure to contemplate. In closing, Mrs. McFarland recited this appropriate poem:

"We are the dreamers of dreams,
Wandering by lone sea breakers,
And sitting by desolate streams;
World losers and world forsakers,
On whom the pale moon gleams:
Yet we are the movers and shakers
Of the world forever, it seems."

The Navy Pledge Broken

The Republican Party Has Permitted American Sea Power to Deteriorate to Third Place.

By the mere recital of the record, Charles Francis Adams, in his final report as Secretary of the Navy—the ablest since William C. Whitney held the same portfolio in the cabinet of Grover Cleveland—reveals the disgraceful deterioration which the Navy has suffered under Republican administrations and Republican Congresses during the last 12 years.

The plight to which the Navy has been reduced by the refusal of Republican Presidents and Republican Congresses to keep their pledges to build it up to "equality with the strongest" is shown by the following statement on combatant ships in commission of the three navies party to the London naval treaty:

1—Of 15 United States battleships only 11 are in full commission, one in reduced commission, and three in reduced commission being modernized.

Of 15 British capital ships, all are in full commission except one battleship under refit in reserve. OF 10 JAPANESE CAPITAL SHIPS ALL ARE FULLY MANNED.

Of six British aircraft carriers, three are in full commission and three in reserve commission undergoing refit. FOUR JAPANESE AIRCRAFT CARRIERS ARE FULLY MANNED.

3—Only eight United States heavy cruisers are in full commission, and one more will be commissioned in November, 1933.

SEVENTEEN OUT OF 19 BRITISH HEAVY CRUISERS ARE IN FULL COMMISSION; the other two are in reserve commission. TWELVE JAPANESE HEAVY CRUISERS ARE FULLY MANNED.

Of 33 British light cruisers, 25 ARE IN FULL COMMISSION and eight are in reserve commission. TWENTY JAPANESE LIGHT CRUISERS ARE FULLY MANNED.

JAPAN HAS SEVEN CRUISERS, SECOND CLASS, FULLY MANNED.

6—Of destroyer leaders, the United States has NONE.

Of 16 British destroyer leaders, 10 ARE IN FULL COMMISSION, and six are in reserve commission. JAPAN HAS 24 DESTROYER LEADERS FULLY MANNED.

7—Of 101 destroyers, the United States has only 72 in full commission, 10 in reduced commission, and 19 in rotating reserve.

Of 121 British destroyers, 74 ARE IN FULL COMMISSION and 47 in reserve commission. EIGHTY JAPANESE DESTROYERS ARE FULLY MANNED.

8—Of 54 United States submarines, only 42 are in full commission, 11 are in rotating reserve, and one is in reduced commission.

Of 52 British submarines, 44 ARE IN FULL COMMISSION and eight in reserve commission. SIXTY-TWO JAPANESE SUBMARINES ARE FULLY MANNED.

Except submarines, all of the United States vessels listed in this astounding statement by the Republican Secretary of the Navy as being in full commission, are actually "OPERATING WITH ONLY ABOUT 85 PER CENT OF THEIR ENLISTED COMPLEMENTS."

Of the Japanese vessels listed in this table, Secretary Adams significantly adds "SOME ARE CLASSED AS BEING IN RESERVE, BUT ALL ARE FULLY MANNED."

Instead of keeping its pledge to build up the Navy to "equality with the strongest" in every class of combatant ship, Secretary Adams proves that the Republican party during its last 12 years of power has actually allowed the Navy to deteriorate to third place in the first three navies of the world.

Under the presidency of Roosevelt and with the assistance of a Democratic Congress, the scandalous neglect of the Navy revealed in the report of Secretary Adams will end, and the building up of the Navy to "equality with the strongest" will become an imperative obligation to the nation.

Noble Work

The Western Pennsylvania Humane Society's annual report, which is just off the press, is a shocking and at the same time an inspiring document—shocking in its disclosures of cruelty to children and animals, inspiring in its account of what is being done to put an end to cruelty of all kinds.

Cruelty to horses does not require as much space as it once did in these reports; but the automobile, alas, has brought a new kind of cruelty with it—the cruelty of "hit and run" drivers who run over dogs and do not stop to aid the suffering animals.

In bright contrast with the stories of cruelty are the reports of kindness to animals, and of the kindness of animals to humans, as exemplified by the deeds of four dogs to which collars were awarded for saving human life.

The Humane Society handled during the year 6,158 cases of cruelty to animals and 720 of cruelty to children. Its agents were on the alert at stock yards, circuses and scores of other places to see that animals were not allowed needlessly to suffer.

The society, maintained largely by private contributions, is engaged in a noble work, and the community owes it a debt of gratitude.

Eliminating the Unfit

Revocation of the Licenses of 'Accident Prone' Drivers Tends to Make the Highways Safer.

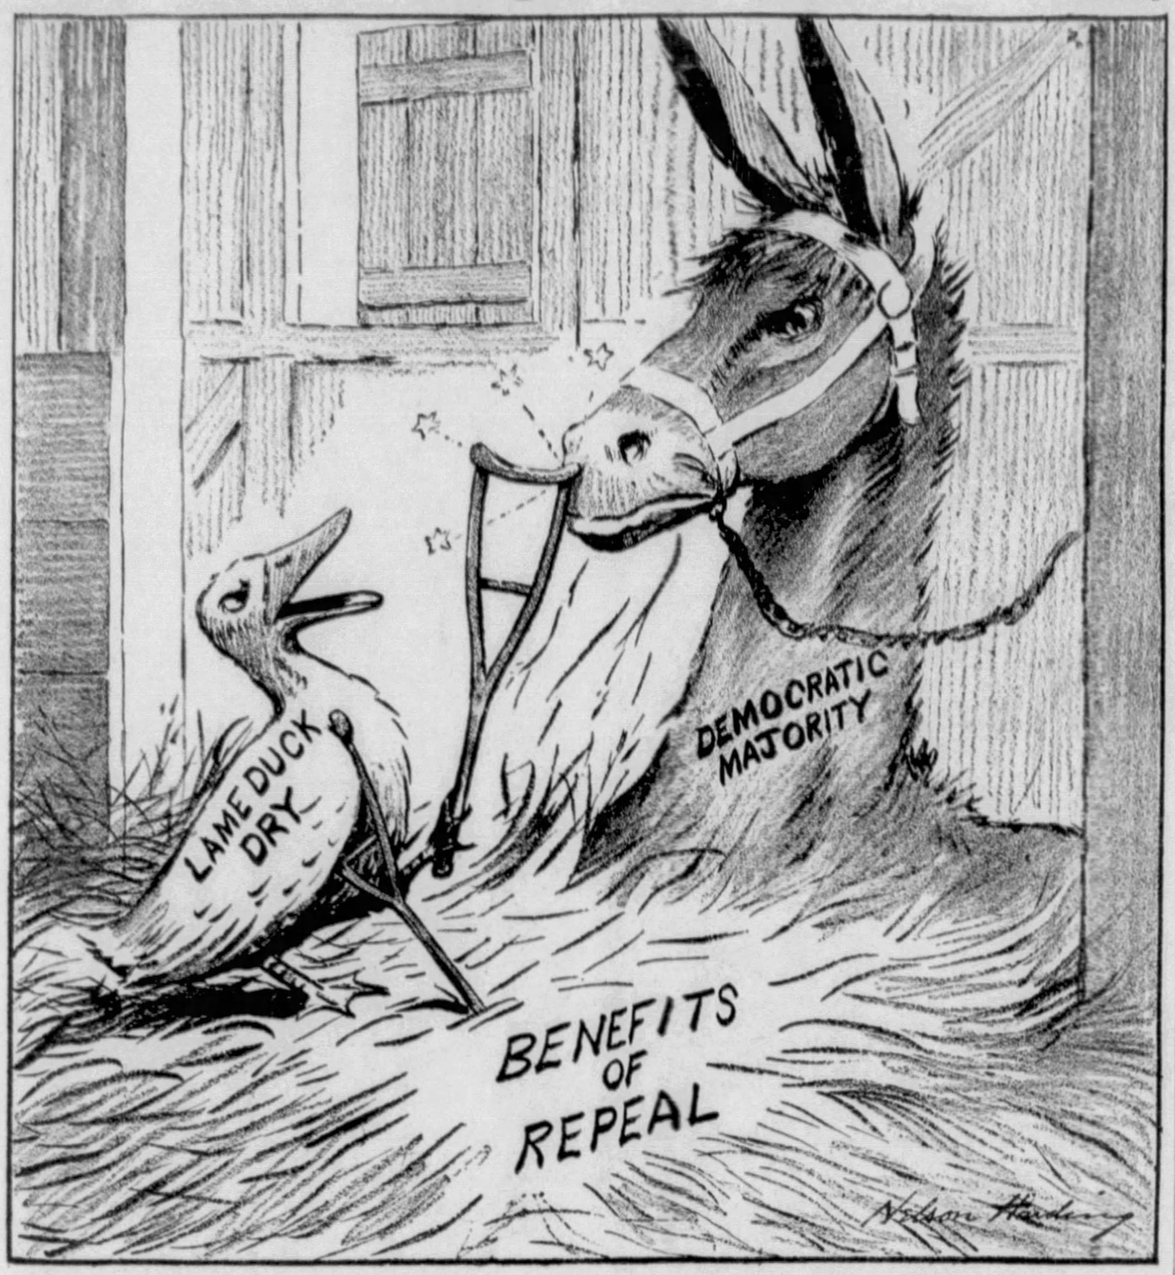
One hundred and sixty-seven motorists who have been involved in three or four accidents within a specified period have been called before the State Bureau of Motor Vehicles for examination so far this year. The operators' licenses of 110 were suspended. It was found that 66 were incompetent to drive because of physical and mental infirmities.

The elimination of these unfit drivers will promote safety on the highways, for it has been found that "accident prone" motorists, although constituting, according to safety authorities, not more than 5 per cent of all motorists, are responsible for 35 per cent of all automobile accidents.

It is to be hoped that the bureau ascertained if the physically and mentally unfit drivers were thus afflicted when their licenses were granted, and, if so, took to task those who granted them.

The Duck in the Manger

By Nelson Harding



The duck still in the manger lurks,
Although it can't enjoy the hay,
And, swinging a vindictive crutch,
Keeps hungry animals away.

The fable of the ugly dog
That held the manger isn't new.
In modern version it's a duck
That's selfish and the story's true.

Women More Ingenious

* * *

Of course, when it comes to great discoveries and inventions and all that, Man is the Master Mind. He will admit it, himself. But, in little things which require ingenuity, quick-thinking and a knowledge of human nature, the subtler sex can always "put him on the spot." * * *

Take the matter of "the little black bag," for instance. More unfortunate bank-runners and paymasters have been held up and shot, because they carried money in a "little black bag," than you or I can recall. Still, the great master-minds of finance continue to send their bullion out in little-black-bags.

The other day, I walked out of a hotel gaily swinging a bright, flowered hat box box, hopped into a taxi, and drove over two miles from one bank to another, without a tremor. In that box was a friend's entire fortune. But it MIGHT have been one of these tiny one-eared evening hats, from the airy, nonchalant way in which I swung it. They had offered me a little black bag and an armed guard. But I'm a woman—so I chose a flowered hat box.

* * *

Her theory was that if she locked them up, somebody would suspect they were valuable.

* * *

A well-known society woman was the unhappy possessor of some famous emeralds. Those emeralds got on her nerves and kept her awake nights, until she thought out a scheme for getting them off her mind.

* * *

That was in the days when there was a cretonne shoe-bag tacked on the inside of every clothes-closet door. Never shall I forget how my young eyes bulged as I beheld her reach down into the lower pocket of the shoe-bag, pull out a shabby pair of bedroom slippers and extract the famous emeralds from their toes.

* * *

Oh well! Woman may not have man's massive brain, eagle eye and practical commonsense. But she HAS a sort of instinct, let's grant, which would deter her from carrying anything more valuable than a nightie and a toothbrush in a "little black bag."

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Wakened by Charles G. Norris, circled in bluest collar ever I saw, to say farewell against Christmasing abroad. So up and found an autographed novel from Jim Tully, an hilarious dog etching from Watt Rothacker and jars of apple jelly from Margaret Illington Bowes.

Worked until 4 p. m. and to see Hattie Belle Johnston, newly home from Spain and the bull fighting, and met up with Walter O'Keefe, of the radio, exchanging a tayle or so. Thence to the Bernhard Bensons, and Florence Moore, whom I have not seen in years, there. Also Mrs. William Anthony McGuire.

In the evening to Phyllis Haver and Billy Seeman's penthouse, "Skye Hi Farm," and the Thomas Meighans, Mrs. William Gaxton and the Rube Golbergs came. And all playing a football game, controlled by electricity. Late to my couch, reading Burton Rascoe's "Titans of Literature," mightily fascinating. * * *

How meanings of expressions shift! Years ago when a lady was hailed as "handy with a needle," it indicated sewing skill. Today a girl of the stage, reputed a drug addict, was spoken of as "handy with the needle."

* * *

I've always been doubtful of motion picture people who stress annoyance at publicity. I have just talked to a truthful gentleman who knows the fellow who precedes a famed movie couple wherever they go. His job is to provoke publicity while they pose as fleeing from it. As Grandma used to say: "Just pinkypank."

* * *

Sime Silverman, founder of Variety, and his son, Sid, are opposites. Sime is a lovable mug, caloused a bit by the buffetings of a Broadway in which he has long been an outstanding figure. His son represents many generosities Sime was denied in youth—a college education, poise and cultural gloss. Someone tells me an interesting story of their mutual admiration. A year or so ago the son became a father. When news came to the pair waiting in the hush of a hospital reception room, Sime put his arm around the lad's shoulders and said: "Son, I only hope he will be like you." The young man replied: "That's fine of you, Dad, and thanks. But I'm rooting for him to be exactly like you."

* * *

My first visit to McGowan's, in a ringle-jingle of sleigh chimes, was with that rare Virginia gentleman, Willis Browning, long since gathered to his fathers. The inn was a bustle of fine food and vintage wine, and was its heartiest as the sun bleared a red eye over the lowering landscape. What I recall most vividly—at a near table sat De Wolf Hopper and Della Fox, aglow with their triumphs in "Wang." And even that long ago a hiccupy stayout roared for Mr. Hopper to recite "Casey at the Bat." * * *

Idiosyncracies: Rex Beach likes to plot novels chopping down forest trees . . . Albert Payson Terhune walks four miles before breakfast . . . George S. Kaufman never loses at poker . . . Don Marquis is a fool for finan haddie . . . Maury Paul hasn't had an evening at home in 14 years . . . Ernest Boyd and Willard H. Wright are the only American writers left, with beards.

A caller today was a small-time actor who, falling on evil days, plays checkers against all comers for 15 cents a game in a 14th street catch penny. "Not much action in that," I sympathized. "I don't know," he countered. "It keeps me on the move."

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

A tremendous amount of nonsense is written about mothers. We're given credit for saintliness which we do not possess; for wisdom entirely beyond our simple capacity; for heroism in which our own decisions played little part.

Take this painful business of both, for example. You and I know in our secret hearts, sister, that nine times out of ten we'd duck it if we could, and that we'd yell our heads off about it if said yells would do us a bit of good. But nature, fiercer than our own wills, drives us on.

And even if we welcome maternity, what of it? Any normal female animal can become a mamma—and most of them do. Which may, but frequently doesn't entitle them to medals. The truth is, many ladies would confer a much greater favor on the human race if they DIDN'T reproduce their kind.

Moreover, if the whole truth is to be told, the first that brings home the bacon endures quite as painful ordeals for the future generation as the hand that rocks the cradle. But do you hear any Theme Songs about Beautiful Father Love? No, you don't. Invariably, mamma gets the orchestration.

Also, it is doubtful if any human function is more overrated than the much eulogized "mother instinct." In the first place, there isn't any such thing. And even if there were, of what use would it be? A cow's instinct may be very helpful to her calf, in a pastoral life which hasn't changed since Adam "coo-bossed" the first old molly out of the deep clover of Paradise. But of what use would instinct be in raising a child in a world which changes over night?

The fact is, no class of workers know less about their jobs or make more serious blunders than mothers, as a whole. It's a long jump between bearing a human infant and turning that infant into a civilized citizen—fact which most mammas entirely overlook. According to them, a few disagreeable hours in a maternity ward should entitle them to gold medals and special exemptions for the rest of their lives.

So, if their case is to be judged on its merits, most of the praise bestowed upon mothers is for service beyond their control or actually never rendered. Yet, on the other hand, even the most inefficient mother endures a certain hardship which would break the most spirit of the bravest man, yet receives practically no credit for it.

And let us assure you, gentlemen, monotony is harder for the average woman to stand than any number of childbirths.

According to tradition, males are the excitement-seeking sex, while females shun risk and delight in the peaceful seclusion of the fireside. But nothing could be farther from the truth. No creature on earth craves excitement as fiercely or loathes boredom as deeply as a woman.

Give the ladies their choice, and ninety-nine out of a hundred will declare, with loud yells, that the Peaceful Fireside is the last place they want to be. If they had their way, half of them would be racing Amelia Earhart and the other half shooting lions in Africa.

But someone has to stay at home. So mamma does it—does it at a cost no man can estimate. She stills the wild leap in her blood, muffles the clamor in her heart, shackles her rebellious hunger for adventure and enters into the loneliness, the monotony, the despised peace and safety of the Domestic Life. And, noblest feat of all, makes the Big Boy down at the office and the little babies at home think that "mother likes it."

So give mother a hand! Not for the hifalutin nonsense the poets write her superbrain, which she usually hasn't; her perfect love, which it generally isn't—but for a service which is more necessary than a Master Mind and even lovelier than a Heart of Gold—FOR THE GRIMLY GALLANT FEAT OF STICKING ON THE JOB!

Text For Today And ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free.—John, viii:32.

The French Debt

France Has Three Times as Much Gold Per Capita as the United States and Less Unemployment.

By B. C. FORBES

FRANCE, after the war ended, agreed to pay the United States approximately $410,000,000 for foodstuffs and other war materials left there by the United States Army. France resold these materials for $270,000,000.

Under the funding agreement made by the United States and France, France has paid us only $200,000,000.

"This material was bought by the French government (for $410,000,000) and resold to private individuals for approximately $270,000,000. Since up to the Hoover moratorium we have paid the United States only about $200,000,000 in round figures, the United States is saying to us:

"'You have not only paid nothing on your political debt, but you have paid only half of what you owe us on your commercial debt. If you are going now to cease all payments you stand actually to make a profit on the goods you purchased from us equivalent to $70,000,000.'"

He added—slightly sarcastically—that it was "up to the French Parliament and French public opinion" to explain away such a stand.

THE Prince of Wales and King Alfonso once absented themselves, in pleasant company, for hours during a social function given in their honor. Knowing that the hostess would be deeply offended, King Alfonso was quoted as having said to the Prince of Wales as they approached the hostess, "You be the shock troops."

France palpably has maneuvered to employ Great Britain as the shock troops in pleading for remission of war debts.

Britain admittedly is sorely beset by financial troubles. Already she has sent this country $1,912,000,000 in payment of war debt interest and principal. She is harassed by widespread unemployment. She had to go off the gold standard and her currency has depreciated to a level never before experienced in her long history.

BUT what of France? The Bank of France has seven times as much gold as the Bank of England. France has not one-tenth the unemployment now afflicting Britain. French taxes do not compare with those borne by the British.

France has paid us only one-quarter as much as Britain has paid us.

France inveigled our government into making a far more favorable settlement of her war bill than our government made with Britain.

France has almost three times as much gold per capita as the United States—and only one-fortieth as much unemployment.

BUT France is destined to learn now that Uncle Sam does not propose to be as easily duped by her hereafter as she has been heretofore.

Only a few months ago France was viciously, demonstratively striving to convince the whole world that the United States was tottering on the brink of certain ruin, and she did her worst to precipitate such ruin: SHE CLAMOROUSLY WITHDREW OVER $800,000,000 GOLD FROM THIS COUNTRY.

Now these same Frenchmen plead that the United States is so opulent and they so poor that they should not be asked to remit even what they pocketed by reselling the post-war materials they "bought" from us—but didn't pay for!

France hasn't half a leg to stand on in scheming to transfer tax burdens rightfully belonging to her to the already overburdened shoulders of American taxpayers.

Britain would have fared better had she not been hoodwinked by France into misusing her as "shock troops" in storming America for further leniency.

WHAT DO YOU KNOW?

By S. H. Connolly

Do you know:

1. What is meant by "casting a horoscope?"
2. What is "opera bouffe?"
3. What and where is the Casa Grande Ruin?
4. Who wrote,

"My country, tis of thee
Sweet land of liberty,
Of thee I sing?"

5. When does Holy Week occur?
6. Where was the word "senate" first used?
7. Where is the fish called "tarpoon" found?
8. What is a discobolus?
9. What is a metrical unit of verse called?
10. From what is the liqueur maraschino made from?

Match correctly:

11. "I'm sorry that I spell'd the word
I hate to go above you." — Tennyson.
12. "I cannot tell what the dickens his name is." — O'Shaughnessy
13. "We are the music makers
And we are the dreamers of dreams." — Whittier.
14. "And the best of all ways
To lengthen our days
Is to steal a few hours from the night,
my dear." — Shakespeare.
15. "Better not to be at all
Than not be noble." — Moore.

Answers to today's tests:

1. By ascertaining what stars were in the ascendant at the time of the birth of any person. 2. A farcial form of opera. 3. The remains of an adobe house built in Arizona by prehistoric Indians, now a national park. 4. Samuel F. Smith. 5. The week immediately preceding Easter. 6. In ancient Rome. 7. In West Indian waters and off the Southern Atlantic waters of the United States. 8. A discus thrower. 9. A foot. 10. Distilled from the fermented juice of a certain cherry. 11. Whittier, "In School Days." 12. Shakespeare, "Merry Wives of Windsor." 13. O'Shaughnessy, "The Music Makers." 14. Moore, "The Young May Moon." 15. Tennyson, "The Princess."

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Are you the sort of person who, after starting a quarrel, turns about and does something nice to make up, believing that is sufficient amends?

Very often the wound is never effaced, no matter how many favors and kindnesses you extend.

That afterward you are genuinely sorry and desirous of doing something that will show that your words were due to a passion, so you did not know what you actually did say and do.

You must have proven this to your satisfaction at times when you have had to be careful not to go too far, because of probable serious results.

You did not want to suffer physical harm or public disgrace so you held yourself down—that much, anyway.

Unless you are willing to be dubbed "weak-minded," don't say again you could not help a devastating anger or you prove you should be in an institution.
